(Associated Press Sports Editor).

Newport, R. I., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Harold S. Vanderbilt's thoroughbred of the seas, Enterprise, sailing a winning race all the way, scored its second straight victory over Shamrock V today in smashing style and dealt what looked like a knockout blow to the lingering hopes of Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger in the classic yachting duel for the America's Cup.

Better weather, brisker breezes, a ton less ballast and a 30-mile triangular ocean course failed to change the ill luck of the green-bodied British sloop. It was beaten not only by a much wider margin than in the opening leeward-windward race, but given a spanking lesson in sailing skill by the trim, speedy American defender.

Enterprise crossed the finish line with an advantage of 9 minutes 34 seconds. She was approximately 2¼ miles ahead of the challenger as a heavy fog rolled in to blanket the concluding and enshroud the finish of the badly beaten Lipton sloop.

Timed in 4 Hours 44 Seconds.

The winner's elapsed time was 4 hours 44 seconds for the triangular chase, which began with a 10-mile beat to windward, southwest from the starting mark, 9 miles southeast of Brenton Reef lightship; had for its interlude a broad 10-mile reach, southeast by east, and a spinnaker run, north by half-east for the concluding 10 miles. The challenger's elapsed time was 4 hours 10 minutes 18 seconds.

Under Vanderbilt's brilliant handling Enterprise got the jump with a start that was magnificent in its precision and perfection; sparkling as the sun that shone upon the far-flung panorama of the seas. She was off at such a fast pace that within twelve minutes she was able to come about, cross Shamrock's bow on a port tack and blanket the challenger.

Outmaneuvered at Turns.

At every turn thereafter Shamrock was a badly beaten boat, sluggish, outmaneuvered and outrun with an ease that came as a startling shock to the thousands rooting for Lipton's gallant but seemingly luckless craft.

Enterprise rounded the first 10-mile mark with a lead of 5 minutes and 50 seconds at the 20-mile buoy, the American boat had run her advantage up to 9 minutes and 10 seconds slightly over 2 miles. Shamrock was just a hazy patch of sail on the horizon and on the last 10-mile leg, it was just a breeze under full sail for Enterprise, even though the challenger for a time showed some real speed and closed temporarily part of the gap.

The chorus of sirens that greeted the second successive American victory must have sounded like a dirge to Sir Thomas and those aboard his steam yacht Erin, far back in the naval pageant flanking either side of the race course.

Betting Odds Favor Clean Sweep.

For Shamrock V to lift the battered "old mug" that Lipton has been seeking for 31 years it will be necessary for her to take four races in five, a task that seems next to impossible in the face of the sensational performances of Vanderbilt's Enterprise. All that the defender now needs to do is capture two more races to keep

Milton Sills, Film Actor, Succumbs

Los Angeles, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Police from the Sawtelle substation reported tonight that Milton Sills, prominent film actor, died at his home at 6:30 p. m.

The police said that they received a rush call from the Sills home at 6:35 p. m., requesting that an inhalator squad be sent immediately.

Two officers went to the home, but returned shortly saying that Mr. Sills was dead.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Many of our people have watched with much solicitude the general election in Germany held last Sunday. Like other European countries, Germany is embarrassed by a multiplicity of political parties, making effective parliamentary government possible only by a coalition of none too friendly elements. This has been effected heretofore by the center moderates, opposed by the extreme reactionaries and radicals. When this method broke down in July the chancellor and president carried on the government under an emergency article of the constitution. This compelled an election.

As both radicals and reactionaries are opposed to the republic, and most of the domestic and foreign policies it has adopted, the continuity of present policy through parliamentary action depended on the moderates of the center. They are not strong enough to control parliament and adopt a sound financial program. Between Fascism and Communism the government will be subjected to a severe strain.

Under the republic the German people have shown a great reserve of courage and reason. The stability of Europe requires its continuance.

HOOVER WILL NAME TARIFF BODY TODAY

TWO OPEN POSTS REMAIN

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The new Tariff Commission to be announced by President Hoover today will go far toward reflecting the Progressive movement that has the control of the Senate.

A victim will be Chairman Edgar B. Brossard, who is to be retired. Replacing him as a member of the commission will be John Lee Coulter, of North Dakota, a nationally known economist and statistician, and at present chief economist of the commission. He is a Republican.

Alfred P. Dennis, Maryland Democrat, friend of Mr. Hoover and now a member of the commission, will, it is believed, be retained.

It has already been announced that Henry P. Fletcher, of Pennsylvania, would be chairman, and Thomas W. Page, of Virginia, would be a member. This leaves a Republican and a Democrat, whose names will be announced today.

Mr. Broussard's retirement will come as a surprise in some quarters, though not in others. In these latter quarters it had been realized for some time that his reappointment would provoke a bitter fight and most likely a losing one in the Senate.

The appointment of Fletcher has not met with enthusiasm in Progressive quarters, but if the two remaining members to be announced today are on the order of Page and Coulter it would not be surprising if Mr. Hoover's new commission did not go through the Senate with a bang.

The President is believed to have been making a particular effort to get men that would be satisfactory to the Senate and at the same time lift the commission to a more important place in the tariff scheme of things.

The appointment of Fletcher has given the impression that the first work of the commission will be with a view to taking out the kinks that the Hawley-Smoot bill put in the country's international trade, and in this connection Canada comes particularly to the fore.

The Canadian Parliament, in fact, is just setting about to revise its own tariff and, while the Canadian leaders have emphasized that there is to be nothing in the nature of retaliation against this country, it is believed, nevertheless, that Mr. Fletcher, if he gets down to work quickly, may be able to draw heavily on his diplomatic experience.

RITCHIE HITS FOES IN CAMPAIGN TALK

State Fight Opened as Chief Executive Addresses Hagerstown Group.

RUM CHALLENGE MADE

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 15.—Gov. Albert Ritchie struck back at his Republican critics in launching the State campaign here tonight at the Masonic Temple, and besides reiterating his continued opposition to Volsteadism and the recently-enacted tariff bill, he called upon the Republican candidate for governor and other state candidates to make known their attitude upon the prohibition question.

The occasion was sponsored by the Democratic Club of Western Maryland and approximately 800 Democrats, representing virtually every county in the State as well as Baltimore city, were present to hear the governor, former Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore and Representative David J. Lewis speak.

Maj. William Preston Lane, president of the Western Maryland Democratic Club, introduced the speakers. Incidentally, the address of former Mayor Jackson was his first public gesture in behalf of Gov. Ritchie, whose nomination he had opposed some months ago.

"National prohibition has been in force a long time," said Gov. Ritchie, "and one would suppose that Republican State candidates would have definite ideas on the subject by this time, and that they might even do something toward incorporating their ideas in the platform, instead of waiting to find out what the platform was going to tell them about it."

Just how far Mayor Broening and his running mates would go in making Maryland a free State, which the Republican candidate for governor indicated he would do if elected governor, was requested by Gov. Ritchie. "Would these gentlemen adopt the opinion of former Attorney General Armstrong (a Republican), which is also the opinion of Attorney General Robinson and myself, that Baltimore City police force are free both from right and the duty of enforcing Volsteadism in Maryland, or would they reverse that opinion and decide that Baltimore City police must enforce Volsteadism in Baltimore where it is adopted as a State enforcement act or not?

"Nor do I approve a tariff wall which can not conceivably do anything except injure, if it does not destroy, our foreign trade at a time when an excess of production has brought about the worst condition of employment the country has ever seen, nor the wall that invites re-

Vengeful Rainmaker Fails To Produce at Racé Track

Excessive Moisture Felt as Expert Tries to Obtain Downfall in Retaliation; Given $500 of Promised $2,500 for Keeping Park Dry Saturday.

Belmont Park Race Track, N. Y., Sept. 15 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Dr. G. I. A. M. Sykes, rainmaker extraordinary, who has already collected $8,000 this season for keeping rain away from the track here, vainly sought to bring a shower down on the races this afternoon after he clashed with officials of the Westchester Racing Association.

The shower had not been ordered by the racing officials; it was to be merely a rainstorm of vengeance, created by Dr. Sykes with no idea of financial gain.

The break between the scientist and the turf association came Saturday after heavy downpours drenched the metropolitan area of New York during the futurity but did not so much as moisten the track.

Dr. Sykes was to get $2,500 for this job of keeping away the rain, under the agreement; but the association paid him only $500, holding that prospective customers were kept away from the track by the rains in the metropolitan area.

This was too much territory for the rain controller to be responsible for, and so he and the racing officials came to a "parting of ways this morning.

The middle of this afternoon Dr. Sykes and his associates were at their rain-making machine as the races began. No amount of maneuvering brought a rainfall, though there was said to be excessive moisture in the air.

LOAN SHARKS' SLY METHODS THWART TRIAL

NOTE MADE PAYABLE TO ANOTHER PARTY

PAPER, DISCOUNTED, IS RETURNED LATER

Extra Cost Is Commission and Not Interest, He Tells Borrower.

By AUSTIN T. ROGERS.

Washington's loan sharks would wax highly indignant if one were to refer to them personally as loan sharks or even as money lenders.

They are, they insist, merely brokers, acting in an intermediary capacity to bring penurious wage earners and the moneyed interests together for their mutual benefit.

For performing this service, the self-styled broker will explain, he is entitled to a commission, and it is this commission which makes it necessary for the borrower to pay a fee amounting to more than 900 per cent annually for the use of any sum over a period of 20 weeks.

The borrower, as has been explained in previous articles in this series, gets $100 in cash from the lender, in return for which he signs a note for $140, payable in approximately 20 installments of $7 each. Twenty weeks is the customary period allowed for payment, although some companies may occasionally extend the period to 28 weeks.

Until it is filled out, the note form used by these loan sharks is just a blank form such as may be bought in pads at any stationery store. It has no cryptic verbiage to confuse the signer, and to all intents and purposes is entirely legal.

Aspect Is Changed.

But when that form is filled out and becomes a negotiable security, it assumes an entirely different aspect; it becomes something else again, and when the borrower stops to consider the transformation that has taken place, the situation is far from pleasant to contemplate.

Assume that the borrower has gone to the Hijack Loan Agency to borrow $200. He has signed his application and produced satisfactory indorsers for his note and has reached the final stage of the transaction—the signing of the note and delivery of the cash. The note is placed before him for his signature and those of his indorsers.

"On such-and-such a date," he reads, "I promise to pay to Mazie Magimp or order the sum of $280."

Now who in the world is Mazie Magimp? He has never heard of her, so he asks the loan shark for information.

"Why Mazie Magimp is the lady that's lending you the money," the shark replies in pained surprise. "You know we don't lend any money ourselves; we're just brokers and arrange with somebody that's got the money to lend it to you."

It might surprise the borrower exceedingly to learn that Mazie Magimp is none other than the blond secretary who attends to the loan shark's affairs while he is out of the office collecting delinquent accounts.

Salary About $20 a Week.

Mazie's salary probably is about $20 a week, and if she ever had all the cash represented by the outstanding notes for which she is payee and which she is supposed to have loaned out, she wouldn't be spending these torrid summer days in a grimy second-floor loan office in Washing-

NYE TO REVEAL 'SPIES' DATA AT HEARING TODAY

50 TELEGRAMS TO BE INSERTED IN RECORD

Alleged Go-Between for Forces of Funds Committee to Testify.

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, tonight issued a statement charging that Senator Gerald P. Nye adjourned the session of his Senate investigating committee abruptly today because he feared that senatorial disclosures reflecting on the committee were impending.

Mrs. McCormick said she was ready to prove that investigators for the Nye committee had tapped her telephone wires and added: "I say that if Senator Nye had knowledge of wire tapping by his employes, he is unfit to be a United States senator and unfit to be chairman of a senatorial committee."

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Demand for a hearing in behalf of the State and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and announcement that seized records of private detectives employed by her would be entered in the record, marked the brief but stormy session today of the Senate campaign funds committee investigating expenditures of the Republican senatorial nominee.

Request for the hearing was made by Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, and after a conference in chambers, with other committee members, Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman, acceded. Attorney General Carlstrom will be permitted to read a prepared statement at tomorrow's session.

No indication was given concerning the nature of the statement.

The flare-up at today's session, which lasted only ten minutes, was precipitated when Senator Nye announced that approximately 50 telegrams pertaining to the Dannenberg Detective Agency had been obtained by the committee from telegraph company files and would be read into the record tomorrow.

Agency Protests Action.

Attorneys for the agency shouted emphatic protest, terming the action "an outrageous invasion" of their client's rights.

Senator Nye's statement came immediately after the committee was called to order.

"During the morning," he said, "members of the committee and I have received from the Western Union Telegraph Co. a large number of telegrams pertaining to the work of detectives employed to follow this committee," he said.

"Of the number delivered to the committee, 47 have been retained and 3 have been returned. Photostatic copies of these will be ready tomorrow and at this point I wish them inserted into the record. The committee will adjourn until 10:30 o'clock tomorrow."

Raps Disclosure of Records.

Charles O. Rundall, attorney for W. C. Dannenberg, whose detective agency was employed by Mrs. McCormick to shadow Senator Nye, rose to his feet.

"All of Mr. Dannenberg's private papers and documents, intrusted to the telegraph company, whether they concerned this case or not, have been taken without his knowledge and without his consent," Rundall declared. "They might just as well

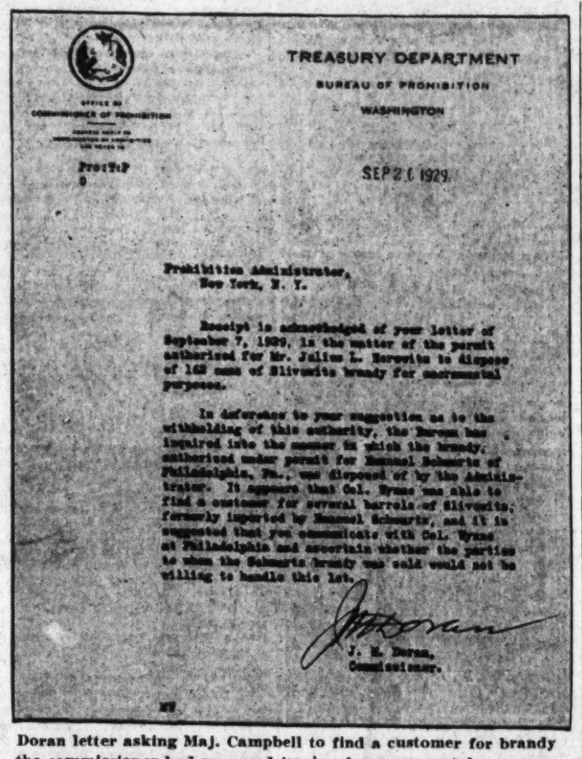
CAMPBELL OFFERED $250,000 TO RELEASE SACRAMENTAL WINES



TREASURY DEPARTMENT
BUREAU OF PROHIBITION
WASHINGTON

SEP 2 0 1929

Prohibition Administrator,
New York, N. Y.

Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of September 7, 1929, in the matter of the permit authorized for Mr. Julius L. Horowitz to dispose of 162 cases of Silvovitz brandy for sacramental purposes.

In deference to your suggestion as to the withholding of this authority, the Bureau has inquired into the manner in which the brandy, authorized under permit for Emanuel Schwartz of Philadelphia, Pa., was disposed of by the Administrator. It appears that Col. Wyman was able to find a customer for several barrels of Silvovitz, formerly imported by Emanuel Schwartz, and it is suggested that you communicate with Col. Wyman at Philadelphia and ascertain whether the parties to whom the Schwartz brandy was sold would not be willing to handle this lot.

Commissioner.

CHIEF UPSETS ORDER OF ADMINISTRATOR

Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in Charge of Prohibition, told me at a conference in his office on December 19, 1927, that he thought I would be justified in permitting the issuance of two or three million gallons of wine each year to the Jews of New York for their ceremonial purposes.

This would have meant a return to the scandalous conditions of 1923, when more than 3,000,000 gallons were issued and flooded the bootleg market of New York. I refused to do it.

Only a few months before this I had been offered a proposition by which it was said I could make $25,000 if I would thus loosen up on the sacramental wine, cloaking the distribution behind a commission of rabbis.

A former business associate approached me, offering to set my son up in the advertising business as a means of disguising the passage of money. When I refused to see him any more he tried to get one of my old friends to press the offer. So I knew that a strong effort was being made to get wine for bootlegging.

I told Mr. Lowman about this at the conference in Washington and he said that he could not understand how I could have been offered money for what I ought to do anyway.

In subsequent months, during the presidential campaign, Republican politicians made strenuous efforts to obtain the Jewish vote in New York City, and I was continually pressed to increase the issuance of sacramental wine. Many, many times politicians went to Washington and protested to Mr. Lowman and the prohibition commissioner with regard to my curtailment of sacramental wine, and while I was never actually ordered to loosen up (as I was with the breweries) it was many times intimated to me that it might be wise for me to do so.

I believe the sacramental wine situation in New York today is fairly satisfactory, but, as indicated yesterday in the story of the Strictly Kosher Wine Co., this was not accomplished without trouble with Washington.

Several years after the establishment of prohibition the bureau in Washington, at the behest of Jewish politicians in New York, permitted in New York the establishment of wine stores; and through them an enormous quantity was bootlegged. No doubt an exposing of this situation, which never really came to light, would

WORKABLE REGIME SOUGHT IN GERMANY

VOTE TALLY COMPLETED

Berlin, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Now that more than 34,000,000 German voters have endowed 576 fellow citizens with Reichstag mandates, it is up to somebody to sift this motley array of widely divergent groups in such a manner as to construct a workable government.

It is generally conceded that this will be no easy task, since fifteen parties landed seats and in view of extraordinary gains made by two revolutionary parties, the German Fascists and the Communists.

As often before, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's Centrist party is in the most pivotal position. Upon Herr Bruening and his party, who have been returned to the principal legislative house 68 strong—or eight more than in the previous Reichstag, will largely depend which of two possibilities presenting themselves shall be adopted.

One obvious line-up is to expand the present coalition to include the Socialists—although this likely would mean loss of eighteen from the Farmers' League and five Conservatives—so that the coalition would be composed of 143 Socialists, 68 Centrists, 30 People's party, 23 Economic, 20 State party, and 19 Bavarians, or 303 out of the total of 576.

This calculation was somewhat disturbed today, however, by the Economic party's pronouncement that since the Socialists hitherto had opposed all the Economic group's financial demands the latter would prefer to enter a coalition with the Fascists.

If this is adhered to, Herr Bruening will have a difficult situation, for his only possibility will be a block of the Right parties, composed of 107 Fascists, 41 German Nationals, 18 Farmers' League, 5 Conservatives, 30 Peoples, 68 Centrists, 19 Bavarians, 3

DRY AGENTS' HIRING IS EXPENSIVE TASK

$80,000 Emergency Fund May Be Asked for Investigation.

EACH INQUIRY COSTS $33

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The hiring of Federal prohibition agents is an expensive business from the standpoint of Uncle Sam. Applicants must be examined just as are all other Civil Service workers, but in addition they must be investigated, and that costs money.

Consequently, Thomas W. Campbell, chairman of the United States Civil Service Commission, is thinking about asking the Bureau of the Budget for an emergency appropriation of something like $80,000.

Whether he does or not will depend on what the Bureau of the Budget and Congress do about the plan of Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock for the employment of 500 additional prohibition agents.

If the Woodcock plan is adopted, the Civil Service Commission will ask for ten additional investigators to pry into the records of the applicants for the 500 prohibition jobs.

Each investigator would be paid a salary of $3,200 a year, a total of $32,000 for the ten.

It costs about $33 to investigate an applicant for a prohibition agent's job, and in order to get 500 agents who would be acceptable it would be necessary to investigate at least 1,500. Thus, under this head, the Civil Service Commission would have to have another $49,500.

The Civil Service Commission has 42 investigators, stationed in the headquarters cities of the thirteen civil service districts. When an applicant lives in Montana, say, he will be investigated by an agent stationed in the nearest headquarters city, which is Seattle, Wash.

The investigation is most thorough, leading into every phase of the applicant's life, and the number turned down is quite large.

John Dolph Gets License To Wed Mrs. L. C. Corbett

Friends Believe Retired Insurance Man, Well Known in Capital, Has Taken Bride and Gone to Canada on Honeymoon.

A marriage license has been issued at Rockville to John Dolph, 60 years old, wealthy man-about-town, and Mrs. Lucille C. Corbett, 45 years old, of 1222 Massachusetts avenue northwest, it was learned yesterday. While neither one could be reached, friends expressed the belief that they had been married secretly and gone to Canada for a wedding trip.

Mr. Dolph, until his retirement December 21, 1929, was manager of the Washington office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and dean of insurance managers in the city. He had been with the company 45 years.

In addition, he is a director of the Federal-American Bank and the Continental Ice Cream Co. He is a member of the Congressional and Columbia Country Clubs and the Racquet Club. Always active in civic club work, he was the first president of the Washington Rotary Club. Likewise, he is a leader in Masonic circles and a Shriner.

During the World War he was a leader in the drives to sell Liberty bonds and War Savings Stamps. He has long been a backer of the Boys' Club.

Although a native of Canada and of an English family, Mr. Dolph has spent the larger part of his life in Washington. At the time of his retirement he was guest of honor at a huge dinner staged by officials of the develop one of the greatest scandals in the history of prohibition. Under Maj. Mills, my predecessor, these wine stores were abolished.

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Pages 2, 5 and 7 Today

Mills Halted Flow.

In 1925 more than 3,000,000 gallons of wine were issued, nearly 2,000,000 in the four months during which the Jewish holidays fell; but in May, 1926, following the indictment of several rabbis for conspiracy, Maj. Mills arbitrarily cut the issuance of sacramental wine to a negligible quantity, so that in the last nine months of 1926 only about 8,000 gallons were issued.

When I took office July 1, 1927, I continued Maj. Mills' policy. In consequence less than 35,000 gallons of sacramental wine was issued to the Jews during that entire year.

Because of the scandals the better class of rabbis ceased their withdrawals, and when I came into office most of the applications I had for wine came from rabbis who might be classed as irresponsible. Under stringent regulation, however, the better rabbis gained confidence, and in consequence I issued 319,000 gallons in 1928 and about the same in 1929. There are about 2,000,000 Jews in New York, and undoubtedly they do require a certain amount of wine for ceremonial purposes. Even at that, a rabbi is caught diverting wine every now and then.

It should be explained that a rabbi is not an ordained priest, but a man of learning in the Hebrew law and scriptures, who may or may not be elected head of a congregation. Many who call themselves rabbis are responsible to no one.

Woman Clerk Spurns Bribe.

In fact, the agents of my sacramental wine section had frequent offers of money, and one young woman clerk could have had all the silk stockings and coats she wanted.

The regulation issued by the Treasury Department authorized the issuance of one gallon of wine per Jew per year, with a maximum of five gallons to any one family. This is called sacramental wine, but is not precisely sacramental. It is more for ceremonial purposes held in connection with orthodox Jewish festivals, weddings, &c., and as the national prohibition act provides only for the issuance of sacramental wines, the issuance of this wine to the Jews is of doubtful legality.

At any rate, vast quantities of wine had been shipped to New York's many wineries in 1925 from California, and the cutting off of this market was a severe blow to the wineries. In August, 1927, Emanuel Hertz, a New York attorney, representing the rabbis, filed a protest with Assistant Secretary Lowman regarding the cutting down of wine withdrawals. In consequence my permissive assistant, Barnitz, and I were called into conference; and on December 19 met Mr. Lowman, Hertz, Commissioner Doran, and a politician named Oppenheim.

Suspects Source of Protest.

At this conference I learned that Hertz until recently had represented a number of the wineries, and I began to feel that the protest came more from them than from the rabbis. (Hertz later was one of the attorney in the strictly Kosher case.)

Hertz, protesting against the treatment given the rabbis and obtaining Lowman's approval of his desire for 3,000,000 gallons a year, volunteered to get together four or five of the representative rabbis in New York who, as a committee, would certify to me a list which would comprise about 400 rabbis who had congregations and synagogues; but Mr. Hertz was never able to make good on this proposition.

Later in New York I personally called on a number of our better known rabbis and endeavored to get them to cooperate with me in the legitimate issuance of sacramental wine; but in every instance I found a disinclination on their part to enter into the situation.

New Plan Inaugurated.

Still later I laid before Treasury officials a plan to distribute sacramental wine to Jews similar to the procedure adopted for medicinal whisky, which is done by prescription or order. The department approved this procedure and thousands of blanks were printed; but the method never was successful, because the wineries refused to establish distribution depots. My personal opinion is that the plan was not adopted because under it diversion would have been extremely difficult.

However, I desired to get the confidence of the outstanding rabbis in New York. They did not withdraw wine to distribute to their congregations because of the stigma which might be attached to them if they did. In 1928 I devoted the time of many of my agents to this problem. I investigated the rabbis and congregations very carefully and issued sacramental wine very conservatively. As a result of this policy, I found that rabbis who had never withdrawn wine before, rabbis who were outstanding in the community, began to draw wine; and I started to eliminate the irresponsibles.

I was glad to see the withdrawals increase above the stringent reductions of 1926, for it certainly was not proper to drive the Jews to bootleggers for the wine they needed.

Troubles With Washington.

In all this I had troubles with happenings in Washington that did not look strictly kosher, especially the Strictly Kosher Wine Co. case, of which I told yesterday. On January 13, 1928, Commissioner Doran wrote me instructions to issue a permit to J. A. Horowitz to import sacramental wines from Palestine. This, Doran later told me in New York, was issued at the solicitation of Ogden Mills and for the benefit of the Republican party. Horowitz tried to get special attention from my office, but was treated just the same as others. Another instance in which Washington took interest was the matter of the Mizrach Wine Co.

Early in 1928 I disapproved an application of the Mizrach Wine Co., represented by Mr. Julius L. Horowitz, for a permit to import Palestine wines for sacramental purposes. After I had investigated Mr. Horowitz's prior activities in sacramental wine matters I was not convinced that he was entitled to the confidence of the Government.

However, over my disapproval, the commissioner instructed me to issue the permit, which I did pro forma. This permit has been used from time to time to import modest quantities of Palestine wine, doing business at 320 Grand street. Mr. Horowitz was represented by Emanuel Hertz as attorney.

40% Plum Brandy Imported.

The records in my office disclosed that on March 22, 1922, there was imported into this country, for some purpose of which I am not aware, by Sonn Brothers, under permit N. Y. T-47, 605 cases of slivowitz, totaling in all 1,462 wine gallons. Slivowitz is a Jewish plum brandy and this particular lot contained an alcoholic content by volume of 48 per cent. The records further show that on the same date when it was imported it was purchased by the Mizrach Wine Co., of 320 Grand street.

Shortly thereafter the Mizrach Wine Co. applied to Palmer Canfield, then Federal prohibition director, for a special permit to sell this kosher slivowitz. Mr. Canfield recommended to the bureau at Washington that this permit be approved for the sale of slivowitz for nonbeverage medicinal purposes.

By some strange chance a permit was issued to the Mizrach Wine Co. for the sale of this slivowitz for sacramental purposes; and in justice to Mr. Canfield, the records show that he protested against this use of brandy for sacramental purposes. The records also show that withdrawal papers were issued to Rabbi Klein for the entire balance. On these papers some of the slivowitz probably was issued, but later the withdrawal papers were canceled. All these matters were handled by Mr. Hertz as attorney. Incidentally there is a lot of correspondence from the Prohibition Bureau pertaining to the matter, all of which does not look exactly kosher.

However, that part of this plum brandy which was not sold under these permits remained in a bonded warehouse, tax paid. I gather that there was a court action at one time with regard to a part of it, and the court ordered the bureau to allow the distribution of one lot for sacramental purposes. The Volstead law allows only the use of wine for sacramental purposes.

Told to Find Customer.

Under date of August 20, 1929, I was advised in a letter from the commissioner that Julius L. Horowitz, doing business as the Mizrach Wine Co., had requested the bureau for permission to dispose of the remainding stock of about 162 cases of this slivowitz brandy for sacramental purposes. The letter further instructed me to permit the issuance of this brandy for sacramental purposes.

I immediately telephoned the commissioner in Washington and told him that the issuance of the brandy for sacramental purposes was entirely contrary to law, that I would not issue the permit and that, if he wanted it done he would have to issue it himself.

Under date of September 20, 1929, I received a letter from the commissioner which said in part:

"In deference to your suggestion as to withholding this authority, the bureau has inquired into the matter in which the brandy authorized under permit for Emanuel Schwartz, of Philadelphia, Pa., was disposed of by the administrator. It appears that Col. Wynne was able to find a customer for several barrels of slivowitz formerly imported by Emanuel Schwartz and it is suggested that you communicate with Col. Wynne at Philadelphia and ascertain whether the party to whom the Schwartz brandy was sold would not be willing to handle this lot."

Needless to say, I totally disregarded this communication. It wasn't my job to hunt up customers for liquor.

I wrote the commissioner that the law permits only wine to be used for sacramental purposes, and suggested that the distribution of this liquor be restricted to sale for medicinal purposes. Shortly thereafter he wrote me reversing his instructions to issue this permit and stating that the legal staff of the bureau disagreed with him as to the legality of the issuance of this brandy for sacramental purposes.

DRY AGENTS' HIRING EXPENSIVE TO U. S.

called on the Bureau of the Budget for $2,200,000 last Friday, stating that the money is needed for the actual field operations contemplated under the administration's new prohibition program.

The money would go toward the hire of 500 additional agents, the operation of the new school for agents, its 24 instructors, and for a new force of special permit reviewers to check on the alcohol permits issued by the Treasury.

Dr. James M. Doran, head of the permit division of the Treasury, has indicated that he will ask for $1,000,000 more to hire 200 additional employes.

At present $15,000,000 is appropriated for prohibition, $9,000,000 of which is spent under Director Woodcock and $6,000,000 under Dr. Doran.

Colored Justice Aid To Be Sworn in Today

David E. Henderson, of Kansas City, Kans., will be sworn in as a special assistant to the Attorney General at 9:30 o'clock this morning at the Department of Justice. He will be the second colored man to hold this position with headquarters at the National Capital. The position was held by Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman from Mississippi, under the Coolidge administration.

Under the Taft administration, William H. Lewis, of Boston, was appointed an Assistant Attorney General, the position requiring confirmation by the Senate, while W. Clarence Matthews, of Boston, served along with Howard, under the Coolidge administration, as a special assistant, with headquarters in San Francisco. Henderson is a protege of Senator Allen, of Kansas, where he has served for a decade as prosecutor in Wyandotte County.

PRIMARY CONTESTS TO BE ENDED TODAY

RUM, HOOVER ARE ISSUES

(Associated Press.)

Five States wound up their primary campaigns yesterday and will tomorrow select candidates for the general election seven weeks hence.

With exception of New Mexico, which will choose its party candidates later in the week, primaries in New York, Massachusetts and Wisconsin and nominating conventions in Connecticut and Delaware will conclude party selections.

Prohibition has marked primary campaigns in Massachusetts and Delaware, where senatorial candidates are to be chosen. Chain stores, chain banking and the Hoover administration have been debated in the Wisconsin gubernatorial contest. Connecticut and New York campaigns have developed little of interest. The former will choose a Republican candidate for governor and the latter, like all other States, will nominate House members. Massachusetts also will nominate gubernatorial candidates.

Bay State Candidates.

Three Republicans and five Democrats are seeking the seat the Republican Senator Gillett will vacate in Massachusetts. The Republican candidates are William M. Butler, former chairman of the Republican national committee, a dry; Eben S. Draper, a former State senator, a wet, and Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, "moist" mayor of Newburyport.

The Democrats are Marcus A. Coolidge, a wet, former Fitchburg mayor; Eugene N. Foss, a dry, former governor; Peter J. Joycezn, a manufacturer; Thomas C. O'Brien, a former district attorney, and Joseph F. O'Connell, a former House member.

Delaware Democrats will nominate a candidate to oppose Senator Daniel O. Hastings, who has been redesignated by the Republicans. Their choice will lay between former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, a wet, and Josiah Marvel, national committeeman, who was supported by drys.

La Follettes Fight Kohler.

In Wisconsin Philip F. La Follette seeks the governorship which his father, the late Robert M. La Follette, held for three terms. Philip had the backing of his brother, Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., and the campaign has brought criticism of the Hoover administration.

Gov. Walter J. Kohler, a millionaire manufacturer, is running for renomination.

HOOVER WILL NAME TARIFF GROUP TODAY

economist, so his appointment must have been intended to give the experience of a diplomat to the commission.

Fletcher is to have a conference with the President this morning, after which the entire new commission will be formally announced.

Beyond the outlining of a general policy the impression is that Mr. Hoover will give the commission a free hand, and one gets the impression, too, that he is in the mood to follow its recommendations literally, which President Coolidge did not always do.

With the possible exception of Fletcher it would seem that the President is to set up a scientific rather than a political body, and of Fletcher it might be said that he has the knack of getting along with everybody. Perhaps he will turn out to be the very man to leaven the findings of the tariff students with diplomacy.

Will Show Hoover Stand.

Particular interest attaches to the composition of the entire commission because it, for the first time, will disclose what Mr. Hoover really thinks about the tariff.

He kept his silence during the fight in Congress, the Progressives claiming that he was with them and the regulars always seeking to give the impression that he stood with them.

As a matter of fact it is not believed the President had any deep-rooted convictions with either side or that he had any on the many outstandingly controversial items. His attitude seemed to be that inasmuch as the political situation required the passage of a bill the sooner it was passed the better it would be.

There are grounds for the belief that he looks upon the tariff now as sort of a necessary evil, and this being the case, that he would like nothing better than to entrust it to a scientific body and leave it there. This points to the new commission having a free hand. It is not believed that it will have any interference from the President. He does not think enough of the subject to interfere. His mind does not run that way.

prisals from other nations with which we trade and whose friendship and good will we ought to have, and which is causing a rapidly increasing migration of American industries abroad.

Striking back at Republican charges that he was violating the provision of the bill of rights of rotation in office, Gov. Ritchie reminded them of the Constitution of 1864 which left the governor free to succeed himself if the people wanted him.

"Mayor Broening has held public office pretty nearly all of his adult life, including city councilman, State's attorney and mayor, and it is hardly consistent for his friends to complain about any one running again for the same office when he has been running so often for the different offices which happened to appeal to him most," he declared.

The following officers were elected by the Democratic Club of Western Maryland to serve until the general election of 1932 at the meeting tonight: President, William P. Lane; vice presidents, Richard F. McMullen, J. Ward Kerrigan, Harvey Gortner, Robert Peter, jr., and C. Walter Baker; secretary, Joseph D. Mish; treasurer, F. Ross Myers.

Youth and Girl Hurt In Automobile Crash

Norman Advy, 19, and Estelle Hellman, 17, both of Seat Pleasant, Md., were treated at Casualty Hospital last night for severe injuries received shortly after 9 o'clock, when a car driven by Advy left the hihgway near Seat Pleasant and crashed into a telephone pole. The machine was damaged beyond repair.

Miss Hellman suffered a fractured pelvis, fractured thigh and a broken jaw. Ady had a broken nose. They were brought to the hospital by the Seat Pleasant Fire Rescue Squad.

METHODISTS SCORE M'CORMICK STAND

Started Out as Dry and Now Has Switched, Says Illinois Body.

NEW CANDIDATE FILES

Danville, Ill., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for the United States Senate, who has said she will abide by the result of the forthcoming referendum on prohibition in Illinois in November, was criticized by the Illinois Methodist Conference in a resolution adopted today.

The resolution offered by the conference's committee on public safety, said:

"In the primary last April Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick received the indorsement of the dry forces of the State, and by announcing herself as a dry, secured the primary nomination to the United States Senate, but she has seen fit by what to us seems to be political chicanery to put herself in a position where she has forfeited the confidence of the moral forces of our State."

Motion to Table Lost.

Adoption of the resolution followed extended debate. A motion to table an entire paragraph referring to the Democratic and Republican parties was lost by a vote of 124 to 53.

"The political situation in Illinois," the resolution said, "is not only confusing but threatens to overthrow the moral victories that have been won by the churches in recent years. While the church takes no interest in party politics as such, yet it is duty bound to take notice of any movement that affects moral welfare.

"In Illinois the Democratic State convention has taken the position as favoring the repeal of the eighteenth amendment of the Volstead act, and the repeal of all the State prohibition laws. The Republican party, from which we expected better things, has gone on record as willing to bind itself by a State referendum upon the same questions. We regret that the opportunity to become a leader in this great moral question has taken a backward step.

Clear-Cut Candidates Favored.

"We furthermore pledge our loyal support to those candidates whose stand in favor of the dry cause is clear-cut and positive. We are determined also to energetically oppose all candidates and measures favoring the liquor traffic in any way whatsoever."

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, of Downers Grove, candidate for the United States Senate on a "bone dry" platform, today filed her petition for a place on the November ballot. Mrs. O'Neill is a Republican and was the first woman member of the Illinois Legislature. She will oppose Ruth Hanna McCormick, who won the Republican nomination in the April primary, and former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic nominee.

Maj. W. B. French 72, Will Take Bride Today

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Maj. William B. French, 72, a retired Army officer, obtained a marriage license today and said he would be married tomorrow in the Little Church Around the Corner to Evelyn E. S. Weems, 39. Both are residents of Washington, D. C.

Maj. French, who is a widower, gave his address as 3017 N street, and Miss Weems' as 1200 Sixteenth street. Maj. French was born in Albany, N. Y., the son of the late Edward French. Miss Weems is the daughter of Sutton S. Weems 3d, of Baltimore.

LAFOLLETTE, KOHLER CAMPAIGN IS CLOSED

2,500 SPEECHES GIVEN

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Wisconsin primary campaign switched from controversy to conversation tonight as candidates rested their cases and awaited the outcome of voting tomorrow.

The contest lies wholly within the Republican party, since its factions have controlled the State government for the last 30 years.

The most bitter battle in years had been waged between the candidates for governor, Philip F. La Follette, leading the progressive Republicans, and Walter J. Kohler, heading conservative Republicans. Kohler was nominated and elected two years ago.

Both these candidates wound up their speaking tours tonight with addresses summarizing issues of the campaign. La Follette returned to his home town, Madison, to speak at the University of Wisconsin Auditorium. Gov. Kohler used a hoop-up between Superior and Milwaukee radio stations.

The campaign has been harder fought than any since Robert M. La Follette, sr., ran for governor, and for the United States Senate. Both factions view the outcome as a genuine test of strength, since Kohler and La Follette represent in the most definite form the principles of their groups.

Kohler, who has had a stormy two years as governor, climaxing in his trial and acquittal on charges of campaign corruption, issued a statement saying that if the record of his administration is an influential factor, there is no doubt as to the outcome.

La Follette, whose brother, Robert M. La Follette, jr., is a senator, declined to predict the result, but said that "I end this campaign as I began, profoundly convinced of the correctness of the Progressive program and the principles of the Progressive movement."

The canidates and their adherents made a record number of speeches, more than 2,500.

Delaware Rivals Gather Delegates

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Rival roundups of delegates to the Democratic State convention, which meets in Dover tomorrow to nominate a United States senator, representative and three State officers, were in progress tonight.

Josiah Marvel and Thomas F. Bayard, Wilmington lawyers, contesting for the senatorial nomination, sent emissaries through the State to check up on the 210 delegates to the convention, who were elected in Saturday's primary. Marvel's campaign managers claimed 112 delegates. The Bayard forces countered with the claim they had captured a majority of the delegates.

Bayard, a former United States senator, is an avowed wet and is supported by Pierre S. and Irenee du Pont, lifelong Republicans. Marvel, recently elected president of the American Bar Association, has not come out with a positive commital on the liquor issue, but dry forces have rallied behind his candidacy.

Helen Kane Choked by Man In Bankruptcy Case, Claim

Boop-a-Doop Girl Testifies Refusal to Perjure Herself Resulted in Attack by Posner, Alleged Donor of $50,000; Latter Denies Charges.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Helen Kane, boop-a-doop actress of stage and screen, testified today that because she refused to let perjury pass the lips she had trained to innocent inflections of baby talk, her life was threatened.

On the witness stand in a referee's hearing into the bankruptcy of the Bond Dress Co., Miss Kane testified that Murray Posner, a partner in the firm, visited her in a Chicago hotel and tried to choke her when she refused to agree to give false testimony.

She said he told her that she must swear that $50,000 he gave her just before the bankruptcy had been placed with him by her for investment in the dress company. As a matter of fact she asserted that she had given him the money two years before to buy Liberty bonds for her and that he had put it into his own company.

Pushing her against the wall of her hotel room, Miss Kane testified, Posner seized her by the throat, but her secretary entered the room, called a house detective and had Posner ejected.

Posner followed Miss Kane to the witness stand and called her story of violence "ridiculous and absurd."

Miss Kane was brought into the case when it was discovered that before the bankruptcy she received the money from Posner, a close personal friend, transferred it to a bank in Chicago, converted it into Liberty bonds and placed them in a safe deposit box.

The boop-a-doop baby talker faces a suit by the receiver in bankruptcy, who seeks to get both the $50,000 and also $20,000 worth of jewelry which Posner says he gave her.

NYE WILL DISCLOSE 'SPY' RECORDS TODAY

break into his office and take whatever papers and documents they found lying around.

"Senator Nye has said all the time that this committee will hold no secret session, and yet this morning he and the committee will hold a secret session and receive all the papers and messages they wish. They say they will make them public tomorrow, which means that no matter what confidential business Mr. Dannenberg has, of any nature whatever, it is open to the public eye."

"Neither the committee nor I have any statement whatever to make," Senator Nye said. "We shall begin tomorrow where we left off on September 3 to investigate this espionage and campaign expenditures."

During the morning, R. F. Bashford, the mystery man of the previous special hearing in Chicago, and of the first "spy" hearing at Fargo, N. Dak., a week before, was held in bonds of $1,000 by the Department of Justice on a charge of ignoring a committee subpena.

Subpenas were issued at Fargo for two shadowers, C. Clark Albers, and "one R. P. Bashford, R. F. Bash, or R. F. Bosh." Senator Nye declared these were the detectives who had followed the committee to Fargo from Glacier National Park.

Dannenberg in Court.

Albers appeared before the committee, but "R. F. Bash" disappeared from his hotel before he was examined. He was unavailable two weeks ago when Senators Nye and Porter H. Dale, of Vermont, held their shadow hearing in Chicago.

Dannenberg, his brothers, John E. and Earl, and a number of his operatives employed on this case, were in the courtroom today, as were Mrs. McCormick and some of her political workers.

Dannenberg was required in his subpena to produce his records and papers in this case on September 3, but through his attorney he asked for a continuance until September 15, while his "rights and duties toward the committee" were examined.

It is understood that the telegrams submitted to the committee today by telegraph company managers include a number mentioned in previous testimony concerning the employment of agents in other cities to follow Senator Nye and his investigators when they were out of the jurisdiction of Dannenberg's Chicago and North Dakota sleuths.

Wagner, Dale Epected.

Another mystery witness is expected for this hearing. He is the man Senator Nye called "the ubiquitous Dave Groh," alleged by Dannenberg operatives to have attempted to play go-between from Dannenberg's men to investigators for the committee.

Sleuths for Mrs. McCormick charged that Dave Groh shadowed them, attempted to bribe them and made himself generally present wherever they happened to be.

Senator Nye said today he knew nothing about the Frank Ortlepp, rumored to be a committee investigator, and Frank Cole, clerk of the North Side Apartments, who disappeared Sunday morning.

Harry Meyers, an attorney, obtained writs of habeas corpus to learn whether they were in custody of any local authorities and said he was gravely concerned about them.

Health Building's Plans Are Studied

Two Sites Are Considered for New Structure of U. S. Service.

Plans for a new building for the United States Public Health Service were studied yesterday by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Heath, in a conference with health ervice officials. No site has been picked for the proposed building.

One of the places under consideration is near the United States Naval Hospital on B street near the Lincoln Memorial grounds. The other is bounded by B and C streets and Nineteenth and Twentieth streets.

The second site is considered more desirable by the officials, since the place near the memorial is being considered for the extension of the National Institute of Public Health and the Naval Hospital. The architecture of the new building will harmonize with the headquarters of the National Academy of Sciences on B stret, overlooking the Memorial

Man Dies After Being Saved From Harbor

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Herah Martin, former University of Missouri full back, now a professional football player with the Stapleton, Staten Island, National League Team, leaped fully clad from the municipal ferryboat Richmond in the upper bay today in an effort to save an unidentified man from drowning.

Martin seized the man and kept him afloat until a lifeboat arrived but efforts to revive him failed and he was finally pronounced dead. Police said the man had jumped overboard from a lower deck.

Second Death Results From Fight Argument

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 15.—The final chapter in a double tragedy originating from an argument over the Dempsey-Sharkey prize fight was written here today in the death of Daniel Lubich, 39, coal loader, who shot to death James Cutlip, 32, mine cutter, a year ago at the County Poor House.

Lubich died of injuries inflicted by Cutlip with a hatchet, which rendered him a hopeless cripple. For the assault Cutlip got a year in jail. Lubich later slew Cutlip and was acquitted.

Hoover Will Attend World Series Game

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday told Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, that he would attend the opening game of the world series in that city October 1. The mayor came to the White House especially to extend the invitation.

The President attended a game of the world series in Philadelphia last year. He plans to leave the Capital during the forenoon of October 1 and after the ball game, to go to Cleveland, where he is to address the American Bankers Association the following day.

Landbund and 23 Economic, a total of 314 out of 576.

Such a combination not only would be resented by the Labor wing of the Centrists, but would necessitate a radical change in the foreign policy laid down by the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann—that of conciliation. Whether the Peoples party, although preferring a bourgeois coalition to one with the Socialists, would cooperate under such conditions and thereby disown its dead leader, Dr. Stresemann, is doubtful.

Bruening to Carry On.

Hence the question of the complexion of a future government continues anybody's guess, but in any case Chancellor Bruening seems determined to continue in office.

At first it was believed that 575 had been elected to the Reichstag yesterday, but a recount late today gave the Peoples party an extra vote, raising its number from 29 to 30. It is said also that the system of counting left-over votes from other districts may add three to the present Conservative total of five. Under the German system 60,000 votes obtains a seat in the Reichstag, and any over that number may be applied toward other seats.

It is this practice of allowing a Reichstag seat for every 60,000 votes that has raised the number from the 491 of the last session to the present 576.

Platform of Ludendorff

In the campaign just ended one former leader had a platform all his own—Gen. Erich von Ludendorff, army quartermaster general in the World War, beseeched his few remaining followers to stay away from the polls and thereby show their contempt for parliamentarism. The unprecedented balloting indicates that few took his advices.

Gen. Ludendorff, who, in Don Quixote fashion, is fighting Masons, Catholics, and Jews, now is a tragic figure, deserted even by Fascists after previously parting company with President von Hindenburg.

But his one-time partner, Adolf Hitler, is the most talked-of man in Germany today. Herr Hitler, a 41-year-old Austrian, is leader of Germany's brown-shirted Fascists, the group which amazingly climbed from 12 seats to 107 in this election.

Won Iron Cross.

Once a draughtsman, Herr Hitler entered the German army in the World War and gained a commission after being twice wounded and receiving the iron cross.

After the great conflict he became the leading figure of the growing Fascist movement in Bavaria, organizing his party on military lines and emulating the organization of Mussolini in Italy.

He soon came in conflict with the Bavarian government, but his power increased so when he became associated with Ludendorff that in 1923 he and Ludendorff carried out a "putsch" in Bavaria, declaring that the Berlin regime was out and that they were chiefs of the national government.

Overpowered by Government.

The Bavarian government, taken by surprise momentarily, pretended to submit, but quickly took countermeasures, and after some bloodshed in the streets of Munich the "putsch" collapsed and Herr Hitler was sent to prison for five years.

He was released after some months on a promise of good behavior.

Herr Hitler's stentorian voice and somewhat dandified appearance in his familiar Fascist garb has made him a welcome subject for cartoonists and also has given him a certain amount of favor among the feminine elements.

Frank B. Barnes Expires Suddenly

Efforts of Rescue Squad Fail to Revive Son of Fireman.

Despite efforts of the rescue squad, Frank S. Barnes, of 1611 Lincoln road northeast, died yesterday morning at his home of heart disease. Barnes, who was the son of Charles Barnes, a fireman of No. 17 Engine Company, was also a division chief in the War Department.

He had arisen from his bed and was walking about, when he collapsed. The squad failed to revive him when called by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Barnes, who heard the sound of his fall and found his body.

He is survived by his parents and two brothers. His family physician, Dr. J. Chester Brady, said that he believed death was due to heart disease.

BAY STATE PRIMARY WILL BE HELD TODAY

DEMOCRATS ARE SPLIT

Boston, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Massachusetts tomorrow will nominate Republican and Democratic candidates for United States senator, governor, representatives in Congress and minor State offices.

Prohibition has been the principal issue in a stirring fight for the Republican senatorial nomination, while the question of racial discrimination has entered the Democratic gubernatorial race. These two campaigns have aroused the greatest interest and considerable bitterness within the two parties.

William M. Butler, former chairman of the Republican national committee under Calvin Coolidge, and Eben S. Draper, of Hopedale, a former State senator and son of a distinguished Massachusetts Governor, seek the seat to be left vacant by Frederick M. Gillett, who is retiring. Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, Mayor of Newburyport, is also a candidate.

Draper Urges Repeal.

Butler is a dry. He has sought labor support and attempted to divert campaign discussion from prohibition by urging a national 48-hour week law, although he is a textile manufacturer, who has been attacked for his hostility to labor by the State department of labor.

Draper advocates the repeal of the State prohibition enforcement law, which will be voted upon this November, and of the eighteenth amendment. He has sought the support of young Republicans anxious to overthrow what he terms the "reactionary leadership," now in control of the Republican party.

Until a week ago there were three candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor. They were former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, Joseph B. Ely, of Westfield, and John J. Cummings, of Boston. Then Fitzgerald retired because of illness, although it was too late to take his name from the ballot.

Curley Draws Fire.

On his retirement the campaign became intensely bitter, with Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, occupying a pivotal position. Curley urged true Irishmen to vote for Fitzgerald anyway because Ely was an enemy of the Irish and urged that the State committee substitute for Fitzgerald after he was nominated.

Curley's statement drew the fire of many Irish-American Democrats in Boston and provoked Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the State committee, into coming out for Ely with the accusation that Curley had betrayed the party and Al Smith by introducing racial bigotry into the campaign.

Cummings had confined his campaign largely to accusing Ely of being connected with the power trust and to denouncing Curley and all other "bosses."

Five Democrats For Senate.

The winner will face either Gov. Frank G. Allen, who seks a second term, or former Mayor John D. Devir, of Malden. Neither Devir nor Allen has conducted a campaign.

There are five candidates for the Democratic senatorial nomination, three of them active. These are Marcus A. Coolidge, wealthy Fitchburg manufacturer; former Representative Joseph F. O'Connell, of Boston, and former District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, of Boston. All three are wet and have confined their campaign largely to economic issues.

Of the other two candidates, former Gov. Eugene N. Foss is a dry, but has made practically no speeches, and Peter Joyce, of Boston, has conducted no campaign whatsoever.

Although the Democrats claim to have a good chance to win the senatorial seat from the Republicans in November, thus duplicating Senator Walsh's feat in 1926, the senatorial primary campaign has been dwarfed in interest by the governorship battle.

NOMADIC SHEPHERDS HAD ONLY ONE WEAPON, A STAFF WITH A CROOK ON THE END, WHICH THEY USED WITH GREAT DEXTERITY IN HOOKING RUNAWAY LAMBS, BREAKING BRANCHES FOR FAGGOTS FROM TREES, PLUCKING FRUIT, OR DEFENDING THEIR FLOCKS.. IT WAS FROM THEIR SKILLFUL MANIPULATION OF THESE STAFFS THAT THE EXPRESSION, "BY HOOK OR CROOK" ORIGINATED.

CAPT. BOY-ED DEAD; GERMAN WAR AGENT

Fall From Horse Kills Man Recalled From U. S. for Activity in 1915.

DECORATED BY KAISER

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Capt. Karl Boy-Ed, 58, German propagandist and diplomat whom the United States, in 1915, deported as an undesirable alien, is dead at his estate near here, after a fall off a horse.

Capt. Boy-Ed, whose wife was Miss Virginia Mackay-Smith, daughter of a Pennsylvania bishop, was crushed under his fallen mount a short distance from his country home on Saturday morning. He was hurried to a Hamburg hospital for surgical attention, but died before efforts could be made to relieve the effects of fractures and internal injuries.

He was one of the outstanding German figures at Washington with the kaiser's ambassador, Count Von Bernstorff, before entry of the United States into the World War. Long an authorized propagandist, his activities at the German Embassy in behalf of his government, linking him with fraudulent passports, sabotage in American munitions factories and other banned operations, finally resulted in December, 1915, in his recall at the request of the American State Department.

Decorated by Kaiser.

He was decorated by the emperor for his propaganda success in 1916. Almost a year after his deportation the American State Department published correspondence disclosing the charges against him. It was widely circulated that Capt. Boy-Ed was responsible for the German submarine operations off the American coast.

Boy-ed himself wrote a book on the war, after he had gone into a comparative retirement. The story, titled "The Plotter," recounted his last days at Washington and his recall.

Eleven years after his dismissal from America, in which time he had been variously occupied, Capt. Boy-ed expressed a desire to revisit the United States, but the American Embassy in Berlin refused him a visa. Mrs. Boy-ed visited the United States, going to her mother in Philadelphia in 1923 and again in 1926, each time alone.

Recall Caused Sensation.

Capt. Boy-ed's recall from the German Embassy in 1915 caused a mild sensation in diplomatic and social circles, as the press had been clamoring for his removal because of his propaganda work for the kaiser.

The Government asked for dismissal when it was found that he was directing propaganda largely against England. Charges of sabotage in munition plants in America were even directed at the German naval attache. He was also connected with the issuance of fradulent passports that led to several arrests in New York.

Although the charges against Boy-Ed and Von Papen were not announced officially, it was said they had aided in the distribution of about $27,000,000 to keep this country neutral. They also allegedly spent several million dollars attempting to unite expelled Mexican revolutionaries in a new revolt.

Wife Made Debut Here.

His wife was Miss Virginia Mackay-Smith, daughter of Bishop Alexander Mackay-Smith, who made her debut and was socially prominent in Washington. Although he asked permission of Grand Admiral Tirpitz, whose chief lieutenant he was, Capt. Boy-Ed was unable to marry her until after the war because a cable giving him the permission was held up by the American Secret Service, who believed it in code. The wedding was in Hamburg in 1921.

Mrs. Mackay-Smith, widowed mother of Mrs. Boy-Ed, who still figures in Capital society, lives at 1325 Sixteenth street. An elder sister, Mrs. C. L. Mariatt, wife of the curator of the Bureau of Ethnology Smithsonian Institution, lives at 1521 Sixteenth street.

Eight years after the armistice was signed the United States Embassy at Berlin refused to visa a passport so the German officer could revisit this country. It was rumored that he would have liked to return to Washington to make his home.

REAR ADMIRAL'S SON IS FOUND SHOT DEAD

CLIPPING FOUND BY SIDE

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Lieut. Woodward Phelps, eldest son of Rear Admiral William Woodward Phelps, was found dead last night from a self-inflicted bullet wound on the deck of the cruiser Northampton in dry dock at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Today, shortly after his death became publicly known, a naval board of inquiry reported that he committed suicide.

The lieutenant's wife and father, who came to New York after being informed of his death, were almost prostrated by grief. Mrs. Phelps said she could ascribe no motive for her husband's act.

A newspaper clipping found beside the body contained an account of the suicide in Southampton, England, three days ago of Lieut. Comdr. Benjamin F. Staud, a close friend and former shipmate of Phelps. Officers at the navy yard entertained the possibility Phelps might have brooded over the suicide of his friend.

It was recalled that Lieut., then Ensign, Phelps was in command of a landing party from the United States gunboat Noa at Nanking during the Chinese disturbances of 1927. Phelps escorted a group of refugees from a compound to the ship, while Staud, aboard the ship, was in command of the guns that covered the retreat of Phelps' party. Both were later commended for bravery in action.

Admiral Phelps is commandant of the United States Navy Yard at Portsmouth, N. H. He was formerly a member of the Naval Board

Lieut. Phelps was 29. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1924 and was immediately assigned to sea duty. He saw service with the U. S. S. Preston and Noa during the Chinese disturbance. In the spring of 1929 he married Miss Janet Bell Whitall, of Baltimore, who, with a son, Woodward, jr., survives him. They live in Boston.

Mrs. Phelps and Admiral Phelps will leave tomorrow morning with the body for Annapolis. Funeral services will be held in the chapel of the United States Naval Academy and interment will be in the academy cemetery.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

NOW in our neighborhood when I was a kid there was a bully of whom I lived in constant dread. His approach was enough to send me and the other kids helter skelter into our homes.

There came one day, however, when he overtook me, got me into a corner and began to pummel my face. In sheer self-preservation I fought back, and, developing a frightened frenzy, I beat the livin' stuffin's out of him. Ah, boy, even now it is delightful to contemplate the beating I gave him.

Then the bully that he was, he ran crying to his father, a big, burly type with a gun around his hips. He was the United States marshal, not one of those with numbers of men under his command, but one who had to do the arresting himself.

• • • •

THE father then came up, and, before we kids could run, proceeded to lash me with a buggy whip.

Thus it was that when my own father came home he was faced by three very determined youngsters, who, after relating what had happened, insisted that he had to go and beat up the marshal. A father doesn't like to get mixed up in these kiddish squabbles, of course, but as we presented the situation to him he soon realized that it was not simply a request we were making, but that we were testing his courage.

This being the case there was nothing for him to do but to go and see the marshal, and with the three of us youngsters trailing right along after him.

• • • •

WHEN the marshal appeared at the door in answer to the doorbell he was in his accustomed raiment, the gun slung on his hip. Without any ado he put his hand on it.

It was a most formidable challenge, but I think that my father, rather than risk our disrespect, was prepared to go through with the matter at hand. Then my early conservative nature asserted itself. I think I sensed the whole situation and began to scream and implore my father to come away.

It gave him a graceful out from a most embarrassing situation. I haven't the slightest doubt but that the big brute would have shot him and explained that my father had drawn a knife or something of the kind.

• • • •

IT is a picture that I have retained over the passing years as more and more men are given guns and badges and told, "Go forth; you are the law."

Indeed, it seems to have grown more vivid since with our advancing civilization, that brought prohibition, we have so equipped and endowed thousands of men. And the end is not yet.

The ultimate goal of this country seems to be, in fact, to give as many men badges as can possibly be crowded within our borders.

More and bigger armed men, more spies, more espionage—that seems to be our aim. Mr. Woodcock is asking for 200 more right now.

A. T. VOGELSANG, 69, ONCE OFFICIAL, DIES

California Lawyer Served as Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

WAS ALSO SOLICITOR

Alexander Theodore Vogelsang, 69 years old, well-known attorney and from 1916 to 1921 Assistant Secretray of the Interior, died yesterday after an illness of several months at his home, 2400 Sixteenth street northwest.

Mr. Vogelsang since 1921 has been a member of the Washington law firm of Vogelsang, Brown, Cram & Feely, while still retaining membership in the law firm of Vogelsang & Brown in San Francisco.

Born in Calveras County, Calif., the son of John H. and Ann Margaret Vogelsang, he attended public and high schools and was graduated in law from the University of California.

From 1912 to 1916 he served as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of San Francisco and as a member of the board of supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco. He served as solicitor of the Department of Interior here from February until September in 1916 before assuming the position of Assistant Secretary. His public service also included the presidency of the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners of California.

He was a member of the Cosmos and the Columbia Country Club of this city, the Family Club, of San Francisco, and several Masonic bodies, including the Knights Templar.

SHARKS' SLY WAYS BALK PROSECUTION

In most instances, the payee to whom the note is made out, then, is an employe of the loan shark. On the other hand, it may be a silent partner of the loan shark. In one instance the proprietor of a cigar store is the payee named on all notes handled by a Washington loan shark, while another large operator has all notes made payable to a tailor whose shop is around the corner from the loan agency.

The reason for this is obvious. It protects the loan shark against any possibility of being accused of collecting illegal interest. He will insist that he gets no interest at all; that he gets a fee from the payee for investigating the borrower, and that he gets another commission for introducing the borrower to the lender.

Haled into court, the payee named in the note will explain volubly that he has not the faintest inkling of what relations may exist between the borrower and the "broker." All he knows is that he loaned a certain sum of money to a person vouched for by the loan broker, in return for which he accepted a note with interest payable at the legal rate of 6 per cent.

Out of It, Shark Asserts.

He will point out that he did not even demand the contract rate of 8 per cent which he might have collected legally. Having loaned the money, he explains, he found himself later a litte strapped for cash, so he asked the loan broker to discount his note, and turned it over to him. Therefore, the payee insists he is out of the transaction entirely.

The loan shark will substantiate these claims. He will point out all he did was arrange for the lender to advance the money to the borrower; that he made all the arrangements, even to investigating the responsibility of the borrower in order to protect the lender, and that in return he was paid an investigation fee and a brokerage commission.

Later, he will add, the lender asked him to discount the note because he needed cash to lift a shipment of goods, or to pay off the mortgage on the home, or, if it happens to be his stenographer, for something else.

In any event, the loan shark insists—and he can not be contradicted except by accident—he did not lend any one any money, and therefore it is most obvious that he can not be accused of collecting illegal rates of interest, or any other rates.

And it is one thing to be morally certain that a $20 stenographer never had more than eating money to her name and therefore could not possibly lend such sums as the notes in her name indicate, but it is something else again to prove it, or to prove that the money represented by the notes had been advanced to her by the loan shark, who was the actual lender.

In tomorrow's article there will be an explanation of what happens when a borrower runs behind on his payments.

BROMLEY WILL HOP AGAIN FOR AMERICA

DELAY OF DAYS SEEN

Tanabe, Japan, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Harold Bromley, who returned to northern Japan yesterday after a flight of 1,200 miles over the Pacific Ocean toward Tacoma, Wash., said tonight he would make another attempt to fly to America as soon as his plane could be refueled and made ready. Experts said this would require several days.

The plane must be dug out of the sandy beach at Shitsukari, near here, some minor repairs made and a short hop taken to Samishiro Beach, from which Bromley and his navigator, Harold Gatty, soared away at 5:08 a. m., Sunday.

Bromley ascribed his failure to a broken gasoline feed pipe, from which he and Copilot Gatty were sprayed. Their faces chafed and eyes inflamed, they held the plane on its course as long as possible, and then turned back.

On landing, Bromley said his plane had flown 2,400 miles in nearly 25 hours. He said his fuel was sufficient to have carried him to Dutch Harbor in the Aleutian chain of islands, extending thousands of miles from Alaska's mainland. Whether a landing was possible at Dutch Harbor for a land plane was doubtful.

Bromley's perseverance caused wonder and comment. Three planes were wrecked in his attempts to take off from America to Japan and only after weeks of disappointment was he able to obtain a runway in Japan long enough to enable his plane to lift 1,020 gallons of gasoline in the air for the 4,532 miles flight to Tacoma.

Truant Officer Hit By Angry Mother

Missouri Official Causes Stir as Children Are Ejected.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A truant officer was slapped by an angry mother and six elementary school children were ejected from the Bliss Junior High School here today, bringing to a climax a dispute between parents of grade school children in the neighborhood and the board of education.

After the fracas, attorneys for the parents, who have protested an order making the school a junior high and transferring the grade school children elsewhere, called out all the younger children in the building and announced that a private school would be started tomorrow.

When Truant Officer Robert Critchfield began to oust the children today he met with no resistance from the first five. Critchfield ran to a window and summoned two policemen to restore order.

Farm Hand Is Held In Child's Slashing

Coroner's Jury Cites Man in Keystone State as Her Killer.

Coudersport, Pa., Sept. 15 A.P.).—A coroner's jury today held Harry Coon, 23, a farm hand, on a charge of premeditated first-degree murder for the killing of Helen Cass, aged 6, whose body, mutilated and slashed with a knife, was found in woods in Allegheny Township late yesterday.

Coon told officers that he killed the girl because she and other members of the Cass family, by which he was employed, "treated me like a dog." The slaying, so far as the authorities were able to determine, was committed late Saturday.

The child disappeared Saturday afternoon, when Coon was sent by his employer, H. D. Cass, to repair a fence on the farm. Coon took the girl with him. According to his statement to authorities, he seized the child and cut her throat with a jack knife. He then stripped off her clothing and slashed the body, he said.

Even his most intimate friends did not know last night whether or not the veteran insurance man was married, though they said they were fully aware of his intention. He had told them several days ago that he exxpected to make the move, and then he had quietly disappeared the latter part of last week. No one was at his home, 5303 Colorado avenue, last night.

San Sebastian, Spain, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Prowlers who entered Arbaicenea, the summer villa here of American Ambassador Irwin B. Laughlin, obtained considerable loot yesterday. No one was at home at the time.

A statement said that the following articles had been stolen from the ambassador: A platinum cigarette case, which was the ambassador's wedding gift; gold opera glasses, a large sapphire, several pictures of considerable artistic value, three jeweled shirt studs, a cravat clasp and a silver paper clasp.

A guest of Mr. Laughlin lost 800 Spanish pesetas (about $33) and 1,000 French francs (about $40), while the butler lost 325 pesetas, (about $36) and a gold watch.

Troops Withdrawn In Lynching Threat

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Adjt. Gen. Homer C. Parker today ordered withdrawal of National Guard troops from Cartersville, after a Negro, charged with the slaying of Police Chief Joe Ben Jenkins, of Cartersville, had been removed from the Bartow County Jail.

John Willie Clark, the Negro charged with slaying the police chief, and two other Negroes said to have been with him during the shooting, were brought here today by a detachment of troops and placed in the county jail.

Clark was arrested near Chatsworth, Ga., yesterday by officers, who wounded him with pistol shots during the chase with bloodhounds.

Last night a crowd gathered outsire the jail and was harangued by a man who suggested that the Negro be lynched, but the crowd quieted after several officers had spoken.

The audit shows that there is as of June 30, 1930, $4,822.31. The audit further shows that upon resolution of board of supervisors, April 30, 1930, this amount was transferred to the water fund.

Recognizing the urgent need for water in many sections of the county, Edward Duncan, chairman of the county board of supervisors, at its meeting yesterday loaned from the Jefferson District road fund $25,000 which, added to the $21,000 reported by County Treasurer E. Wade Ball to be in the water fund, gave a total of $46,000 which County Engineer C. L. Kinnier was instructed to use in extending lateral lines where 50 per cent of the frontage is taken care of by the property owners.

Preceding the offer made by Chairman Duncan and which was readily accepted by the two other members, several applications for water extensions were made upon the board.

It was further announced by Chairman Duncan that the board will hold a special meeting next Monday at the courthouse, at which time a further study into the needs of further extensions of the water mains will be made.

To assure the taxpayers that the board will do all in its power to extend the mains, announcement is made that where applications cover 50 per cent or better of the entire frontage those extensions will be made by the county. Chairman Duncan stated that the county can get money and it could be put to no better use than in extending the water mains, as the situation is and has been for some time most serious.

The application of the Alexandria Park Association to extend Columbia Gardens Cemetery was considered and the board voted to consider the matter further at its meeting next Monday. Attorney J. Hammond Brewer, representing the Lee Boulevard Association and advocating the granting of the application, stated that the association is prepared to give to the Lee Boulevard Association about six acres of land for right-of-way providing the application is granted. Ashton C. Jones supported Attorney Brewer in his statement. Attorney Emery Hosmer appeared for property owners opposing the application and declared that proper notice had not been given. Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, being a stockholder in the association, took the view that it would not be proper for him to render a decision.

T. J. O'Connell, chief engineer for the American Oil Co., appeared before the board asking for a permit to lay three 6-inch pipe lines extending from the river above the Key Bridge in Rosslyn to the Lee Highway, thence along the highway to Lamben Terrace to Greenleaf street to the plant formerly owned by the Penn Oil Co.

Mrs. Nat Hynes and Mrs. Mary Lockwood appeared in the interest of the Clarendon public library. It was shown that unless aid is given the library will be forced to close.

Supervisor B. M. Hedrick declared that inasmuch as both Jefferson and Washington districts had a library and the county was providing the space, that Arlington district was likewise entitled to the same. It was shown by the women that the rent was $3 a month. The matter was held in abeyance by the board.

The afternoon session opened with what promised much excitment when Supervisor B. M. Hedrick raised strong objections to the method being followed in the collection of delinquent real estate taxes. In the ccourse of his remarks he said: "I want a gentleman to collect the taxes." Gloth jumped to his feet saying, "What do you mean?" Hedrick arose and said: "All right, when you want to start something, go ahead." Gloth replied: "For heaven's sake, do you think I am afraid of you?" Hedrick apologized and the discussion continued quietly.

Hedrick contended that the property owners should have been notified. Gloth stated that both he (Hedrick) and the two other members instructed him to proceed to collect the taxes and he was only doing his duty.

County Treasurer E. Wade Ball told the board that he notified all those for whom he has addresses twice a year. He stated that at least 50 per cent of the property is owned by nonresidents.

The Arlington County Civic Federation, at a special meeting to be held tonight in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock, will continue its consideration of the proposal to change the form of county government. The federation will have before it a supplementary report from its better government committee setting forth the advantages and disadvantages of incorporation, as well as the original report, which carries with it the recommendation that the county manager plan, with the election of a county board of five members to be elected at large, be adopted.

Philip Jones, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was held for the action of the grand jury by Bryan Gordon, substitute trial justice, in police court yesterday.

Jones also was sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail on a charge of assault in addition to paying a fine of $19.25, including costs.

Faithful Hay Kelly Yields Place Today to Nobby Felt

The straw hat is dead! Long live the felt!

With fiendish glee the haberdashers of Washington gave this cheer yesterday as Dame Fashion pointed to the calendar and issued an edict that all summer headgear for men is passe until next season.

But the populace as a whole did not join the cheering so joyfully, for to most of them it meant the price of another hat or the resurrection of the old from the cedar chest and the moth balls.

Together with the change came the question of disposing of the faithful sun guard. As with the razor problem, many men were at loss as to know what to do with the straws that were obviously not good for another season.

Among other suggestions was that one might go on top of the Washington Monument and skim the lid while the guard wasn't looking. But if one is not ingenious, there's always the ashcan.

TAKOMA PARK FUND AMOUNTS TO $24,000

General Treasury Has That With $20,000 More for Improvements.

WARDS' CREATION URGED

Takoma Park, Md., has $24,420.63 on hand in the general fund, Town Treasurer Bryan Davis reported at a meeting of the council held in the Takoma Park, Md., last night. There is also $20,375.59 on deposit as an improvement fund, he stated, and a balance from tax redemption sales of $79.

At the meeting presided over by Mayor Ben G. Davis, it was decided that an ordinance adopted at the last meeting of the council covering dogs in the town, which pertained to the impounding, licensing and muzzling, should be printed and posted in conspicuous places about the community.

For the purpose of correctly proportioning the taxes of the township, Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, who addressed the council as a visitor, advocated the dividing of the town into wards. He also stated that the man who declared his property honestly, is at the present time paying a major proportion of the city taxes, while tax evaders are getting by with their methods, and he urged that more comprehensive laws be made for the collection of delinquent taxes. He explained several proposed laws which he said will be referred to the next session of the Maryland Legislature.

It was announced at this meeting, which only three of the local councilmen attended, that contracts for the construction of several thousand square yards of concrete sidewalks have just been let, as well as the contract for a concrete bridge across Sligo Creek at Flower avenue.

WARNING TO PUBLIC OF CANCER "CURES"

300 SPECIALISTS MEET

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Regret that the public is deluded from time to time with announcements that cures for cancer have been found was expressed today as 300 X-ray specialists, physicians and surgeons from 41 States opened a three-day postgraduate school session.

"Constant progress is being made in knowledge of the disease, and therefore in the ability to diagnose it accurately," said Dr. Joseph S. Ames, president of Johns Hopkins University, in an address. "But so far as I am aware, the decrease in fatality, as shown by hospital records, comes entirely from two sources—radiation in the case of certain types and earlier recognition of the disease so that operations may be effective.

"I wish it were possible for the public to recognize fully this fact and not be deluded by false hopes."

Opening the session, Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, director of the research fund bearing his name and sponsor of the meeting, said there has been a tremendous and startling increase in the number of cures of cancer of the bone since 1913, based on the records at the surgical pathological laboratory at Johns Hopkins.

A hotel ballroom was converted into a giant laboratory for the session.

Developing increased accuracy in X-ray diagnosis and spreading that skill is the primary object of the course, the expense of which was borne by the Chemical Foundation, it was announced.

No longer need patients living far from the great medical centers spend hundreds of dollars to visit the clinics staffed by experts, Dr. Bloodgood said at the evening session. "Their ailment can be diagnosed as readily and as accurately, if they mail X-ray photographs to the clinics," he explained.

G. O. P. Tennessee Governor Is Seen

Representative Depends on Democratic Strife to Aid Republicans.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Taylor, Republican national committeeman for Tennessee, said yesterday in a statement through the committee, "We expect to elect a Republican governor in Tennessee this year."

Taylor made the statement after a group of Tennesseeans, including Arthur Bruce, of Memphis, the Republican nominee for governor, had called upon Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the national committee.

"Our party is more harmonious than ever before, while there is factional strife among the Democrats," he said, reminding that Tennessee has had Republican governors in the past.

No Decrease Seen By Va. University

August 1 Enrollment Was 50 More Than That Date Last Year.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—University of Virginia officials do not expect the enrollment for the session 1930-31 to show any decrease in comparison with that of last year on account of either the drought or business depression.

Advance registration of students on August 1 was 50 more than the figures on the same date last year. In the last six weeks there has been some falling off, but not enough to bring the total below the total for the last session, which included 2,458 men and women in all departments.

Registration for the one hundred and seventh continuous session of the university will start Thursday and will continue through Saturday. First classes will be held Monday, September 22.

Entrance examinations for those applicants for admission who have not been properly certified now are in progress. They were started this morning and will be concluded Saturday. Last year's registration of 2,458 was the largest in the history of the university. There were students from 44 States and from many foreign countries.

125-Mile Wind Imperils Medjerja En Route to Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The British steamer Medjerja, of the national mercantile fleet, left port here today after repairing damage done by Friday's hurricane. The steamer's deck was damaged by a shifting cargo, her galley pipe blown away and two steampipes smashed.

The Medjerja arrived here late last night from Brunswick, Ga., with a deck cargo of rosin en route to United Kingdom ports. Her skipper, Capt. Estill, reported that in passing Frying Pan Shoals the steamer encountered winds which at time reached a velocity of 125 miles an hour.

Capt. Estill was slightly injured when he fell while walking the deck during the storm. The Medjerja was bound to Norfolk for bunker coal.

Herman Clark was fined 5 and costs and given six months in jail for the manufacture of ardent spirits. Harry E. Toston was fined $50 and costs and given one month in jail for possession of liquor. The indictment against Leon Bicksler was returned not a true bill by the grand jury. A capias was ordered issued by the court for Vernon, alias "Highpockets" Murray.

In charging the grand jury yesterday, Judge McCarthy called attention to a section of the State code which requires the grand jury at this term of court to investigate whether or not the report of the school board and divisional superintendent of schools had been completed and published. Divisional Superintendent Wilbert T. Woodson, who was called by the grand jury, made the following report: The accounts of the school board should not be closed prior to July 15, as required by the code. The divisional superintendent's report has been completed and sent to the State Board of Education in Richmond and since its completion time has not permitted him to prepare a public statement, as the opening of schools and the employment of teachers have taken most of his time since the county treasurer's accounts have been available. The school board has not checked the treasurer's accounts this year, but it will do so in the very near future. At the last regular meeting of the board the members did not have time to check these accounts.

This report was accepted by the grand jury and it filed a written statement of the report, which showed that the time limit established by the State law was not practical. It further required the school board and divisional superintendent to make the required statements and file and publish them on or before October 15, 1930.

ROCKVILLE FUGITIVE GIVES UP IN CAPITAL

County to Hold Quiz Today Into Riley's Escape From Montgomery Jail.

FARMERS IN DIRE NEED

Mervin Riley, 25-year-old Washington man who escaped from the Rockville (Md.) Jail Sunday night, surrendered to headquarters detectives here last night, and announced that he would fight efforts to return him to Rockville jurisdiction. Riley severely sprained both his ankles when he fell from a tree he had reached through a trap door in the roof of the jail.

He told authorities here that he remained within the shadow of the jail all night, as he was unable to walk. Early yesterday morning, he said, a cab brought him to Washington, where he spent the day at his brother's home.

Riley is wanted by Washington police on a charge of grand larceny. He was being held for the Rockville grand jury on charges of housebreaking.

An investigation into his escape will be launched at a meeting of the Montgomery County Commissioners today at Rockville, according to Lacy Shaw, vice president of the board of county commissioners.

Riley's escape makes the fifth prisoner to escape in the same manner from the jail in the last several months. Only one of the escaped prisoners has been recaptured. Three of the men who escaped in the last jail delivery were to be tried on charges of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and robbery. Riley had been held for action of the grand jury on five charges of housebreaking and larceny.

In each case the prisoners have broken the lock from their cell and pried open a trap door to the loft under the roof. Breaking away several slabs of slate they climbed down a tree adjacent to the jail building.

Riley released Charles Reed, of Gaithersburg, who had been arrested with him but Reed was frightened by the outcries of other prisoners and returned to his cell.

Commissioner Shaw said yesterday that the escape of the prisoners makes clearly apparent the need for the new county jail, which will surmount the courthouse now under construction at Rockville on the block west of the present courthouse. The fact that the present jail is antiquated, however, is no excuse for the escape of prisoners, he said, and the whole matter will be delved into deeply by the county commissioners today. In the event it is found necessary, additional guards will be furnished the jail, Commissioner Shaw said.

Sheriff Joseph B. Pyles will be asked to tell the commissioners what measures he believes necessary to safeguard the prisoners, as will Jailer Joseph Moxley.

Montgomery County farmers are in a desperate condition at present as a result of the drought, according to County Farm Agent O. W. Anderson, who is striving for some way in which to finance farm relief in the county. County farmers suffered damages which will run into approximately $2,000,000, the farm agent estimates. About 15 per cent of the farmers will be unable to secure any credit to enable them to pull through the time of need and will be forced to the wall unless some plan of financing them can be worked out.

Mr. Anderson figures the crop losses as follows: Corn, 85 per cent, $750,000; oat crop, 95 per cent, $17,000; hay, 65 per cent, $520,000; barley, 10 per cent, $3,000; apples, 40 per cent, $110,000; milk production, about 25 per cent, with no valuation figures; potatoes, 75 per cent, $35,000; pasturage, about 75 per cent, with no valuation figures; vegetables and truck crops, 65 per cent, $118,000.

Approximately 50 per cent of the farmers will be able to secure loans at financial institutions and about 35 per cent can borrow further money on collateral or reputation. The remaining 15 per cent have exhausted all channels of credit and are faced with extinction.

While the farmers are in desperate straits now, the real pinch will come later in the winter and will continue to grow worse until cows go on pasture about May 1. The hay crop will be shorter this time next year and the hay shortage probably will be more acute the following winter than this winter and so will grains unless rains permit preparation of the ground for seeding within a month. The ground is much too hard to plow and land already plowed can not be sufficiently prepared for seed so that unless several inches of rain falls within the next month the ground can not be properly prepared.

The foundation of next year's hay crop is from seed planted in the spring of this year and the young plants which grew from the spring planting have been entirely killed out by drought and sunshine. All hay produced next year must be from expensive special hay crops seeded next spring. It is the common opinion that the hay shortage will be much more acute in 1931 than at present.

In addition to the farmers' woes, the Farm Bureau is worried about the labor situation. The day laborer who usually begins corn shucking about this time of year and works at it nearly through the winter will have little or no work. Laborers who formerly commanded $3 and $4 a day are working for $1.25 a day now and the work is given them in a charitable spirit by farmers who believe it best to do all repair work possible now in order to keep the men employed.

The day laborer class probably will be destitute, although the regular labor supply will no doubt be kept under employment but at substantially lower wages. Farmers are cutting down their labor supplies for two reasons; first, because of lack of work and, second, because of their own precarious financial conditions.

Perry Boswell, president of the school board, and J. Albert Miller, assistant superintendent of schools, yesterday inspected the building and decided it was safe. The parents permitted the children to enter school yesterday morning, a normal number of students reporting for classes.

Mr. Miller said that while the water supply was none too abundant because of the drought, it was sufficient for the school's needs.

Man Jailed, Charged With Theft of Plane

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 15.—Carl Coughenour, formerly of this city, is in jail here charged with the theft of a Berliner monoplane valued at $1,200 belonging to John H. Abbott, former Cumberland policeman.

When Coughenour resisted arrest on a drunk and disorderly charge late yesterday and had to be clubbed into submission, it developed he was wanted on the monoplane-theft charge, the warrant being more than a year old.

William S. Swank, of Montgomery County, has filed suit for absolute divorce from Mrs. Mary F. Swank, also of Montgomery County, in the circuit court at Rockville. Through Attorney Stedman Prescott, of Rockville, the husband alleges infidelity and names a corespondent.

The couple was married 24 years ago at Frederick, Md. The three children are with the father and he asks permanent custody of them.

The county board of election supervisors met yesterday at Rockville and created a new voting precinct at Poolesville. Ten new ballot boxes and other election supplies were ordered.

$50 Store Theft Reported.

Thieves took six hams and 200 pounds of lard from a store at 1420 Seventh street northwest, according to a report made to police yesterday by Isadore Gordon, of 1123 B street northeast. The goods, valued at $50, were removed by a rear door, which was forced.

FIREMAN'S ARREST STIRS COLLEAGUES

Volunteers Will Protest Action of Policeman in Prince Georges.

SCHOOL STEPS REPAIRED

Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen are scheduled to appear before the Prince Georges County commissioners today at Upper Marlboro to protest the arrest of Edward George Boyer, truck driver of the College Park department while en route to a fire.

Charges of reckless driving preferred against Boyer in Upper Marloboro branch of county police court were dismissed when the arresting policeman, Frank Prince, arrived in court ten minutes late. The policeman had believed that court would not be in session as it was Defenders' Day, a legal holiday in Maryland.

Firemen declare that the policeman had no right to arrest the fireman as fire trucks have the right of way in the county. The College Park fire truck forced a private car from the Defense highway while attempting to pass the Marlboro fire engines.

Prince admits that the firemen have the right of way, but claims they have no right to all of the right of way. The fire engine's handling constituted reckless driving in that it gave no consideration to the rights of the private motorist who was coming to a stop to permit the engines to pass and was forced to run his car down a bank to avoid a collision when the College Park engine ran to the left of the road, Prince says.

"I don't believe there is a man in the county who has contributed more liberally or has done more than I have for the volunteer firemen," the sheriff declared last night. "I have always been glad to go out of my way to help them, but I do not believe that they should be permitted to risk the lives of passing motorists unnecessarily. The driver of the Marlboro engine said he was speeding at 60 miles an hour when the College Park engine attempted to pass him. There was need for the College Park engine to pass when the road was not clear at that rate of speed. I intend backing Officer Prince, whom I consider one of the best policemen on my tiny force, to the limit. The sentiment of the average citizen, as expressed to me, also has been in favor of Prince, and I believe it my duty to stand behind him in this instance," Sheriff Early concluded.

Pupils of the Beltsville School yesterday began classes in the school building. They received an unexpected holiday last Wednesday, when their parents refused to permit them to attend the school until the entrance steps had been completed and proper plumbing and sewage facilities installed.

Parents declared that a narrow planking which had been arranged in lieu of the entrance steps while they were being built did not supply a sufficient safety factor in the event of fire, and that it would not be safe for the children to attend school until the sewage system had been completed.

Garber Asks Writ To Get on Ballot

G. O. P. Representative Files Petition in Virginia; Hearing Saturday.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15 A.P.).—Representative Joseph A. Garber, Republican incumbent from the Seventh Virginia District, today, through his counsel, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus, seeking to require Secretary to the Commonwealth Peter Saunders to print his name on the ballots in the November election.

The petition was filed in the city circuit court of Richmond, and arguments will be heard before Judge Julian Gunn Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Representative Garber failed to file his notice by midnight, September 5, 60 days prior to election. Attorney General Saunders has ruled that the legal time for filing expired at that time.

Starving Youth Flees Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 15.—William Penny, 18 years old, who was found unconscious after having collapsed from exhaustion, caused by hunger, on the roadside near here last night, today disappeared from Memorial Hospital, where he was taken. Penny, who told a pathetic story of hardship upon regaining consciousness, left the institution without having eaten.

A lunch was prepared for him but he refused to eat. He had stated that he had been discharged from the Piedmont Orphanage in Texas and was making his way to his sister's home in Norfolk.

He said he had not had any food for several days and was walking along the highway near here when he collapsed. No trace of the youth had been reported late today.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS.

Germany's election reveals that the spirit of unrest, which recently flared up in Latin America, has also taken root in Europe. The conservative forces, which for years have been struggling to rejuvenate Germany by an orderly and constructive process, were buried under a Fascist landslide and a smaller Communist avalanche. Business depression and unemployment coupled with heavy taxation have left their mark upon the German people. In their unrest they are turning to radical doctrines and quack remedies. The returns do not indicate wholesale conversion to the reactionary policies of the German Fascists, nor to the illusions of communism; but the electorate has used the ballot to express its dissatisfaction with conditions as they exist.

Observers are predicting the disintegration of the German Republic. But this appears to be a hasty and unwarranted conclusion. The Fascist party multiplied its representation by 9, and the Communists gained 22 seats. But this brings the combined representation of these extremely radical parties to only 183 out of 575 members of the Reichstag. The Social Democrats retain the largest delegation with 143 seats. Should they now consent to enter the coalition in control of the government, the moderate elements would be able to fend off attacks from the extremists on both the left and the right.

Whether or not the Brüening administration will fall is not certain. But there is every indication that the radical elements which made such unexpected gains will not be able to take over the reins of government. The Fascists have less than one-fifth of the total membership and their only possibility of forming a coalition would be with the Nationalists, who suffered heavy losses in the election. A coalition of this kind could command only 148 votes.

At the other extreme the Communist gains will serve to increase the difficulties of forming and maintaining a moderate coalition. The Communists are only a barb in the side of the government, but they will be in a position to cause more trouble than before. The increased strength of the radical parties on both the left and the right should, however, drive the moderate forces closer together in resistance of a menace common to them all.

The Reichstag was dissolved last July by Chancellor Bruening because of its refusal to support the new taxes which the administration considered necessary to balance the budget. A national emergency was declared and the chancellor appealed to the people for vindication of his policies. It is now evident that he chose an extremely unfortunate time. Adolf Hitler, the German Mussolini, made capital of unemployment and economic depression. His impassioned denunciation of the republic and frank advocacy of a dictatorship reaped an unusual harvest of votes from hungry workmen. His schemes for nationalization of land, socialization of industry, repudiation of the Versailles Treaty and reacquisition of Germany's former colonies were music to the ears of distressed German taxpayers. But German sentiment as a whole must still undergo a vast transformation before the republic is pulled up by the roots and a combination of Italian and Russian dictatorship planted in its place.

Germany is plunged deeper in the morass of factionalism as a result of Sunday's elections. The progress that has been made toward stability is threatened, and the patient endeavors of that country's most able statesmen to build up Germany internally and in the eyes of the world have been, to some extent, repudiated. The difficulties of forming a cabinet that can carry out the provisions of the Young plan have been multiplied. But the nature of the radicals' gains suggests that they are temporary and that the moderate parties can keep Germany headed in the right direction if they lay petty rivalries aside and work for the general welfare.

WARRANTLESS RAIDS.

Warrantless liquor raids now stand condemned by the District Supreme Court. Justice Cox ruled in the case of Frank Nocciolino that evidence obtained by police in raiding a private home without a search warrant can not be used in a criminal prosecution. In addition to suppressing this evidence the court ordered property taken from the defendant in the illegal raid to be returned.

Police have no authority to follow their noses when they think that they detect the odor of liquor or mash from an open window. If evidence that the law is being violated is sufficient, they can secure a warrant and conduct a lawful search of the place. To follow any other policy is to violate rights that have been sacred since American history and tradition began.

The policy of the District attorney in throwing out cases resulting from warrantless raids was vindicated by the lower courts. It is now sustained by the highest tribunal in the District.

ENTERPRISE AGAIN.

Yesterday's race between Enterprise and Shamrock tested the merit of the two sloops and presented an opportunity for Harold Vanderbilt, skipper of the cup defender, to exhibit the exceptional seamanship for which he is noted. He put Enterprise across the starting line ahead of Shamrock, and shortly thereafter maneuvered her across the bow of the challenger to a position to windward. With Shamrock in Enterprise's lee, the American boat had a decided advantage in that her sails would be first to feel every puff of air and that with her towering canvas she could keep the full force of the wind from the sails of her rival. Capt. Ernest Heard, Shamrock's professional skipper, tried in vain to shake Enterprise but Skipper Vanderbilt matched his every move, keeping his boat to weather until the 10-mile turning buoy was reached.

Enterprise made the turn 6 minutes in advance of Shamrock. She had a 9-minute lead at the 20-mile buoy. When she crossed the finish line Shamrock was two miles to the rear. Yesterday's race was sailed in a 10-mile wind over a triangular course. Saturday's race was sailed in a light breeze over a windward and leeward course and was won by Enterprise by a 1,000-yard margin.

Having won two of the four contests required to decide victory in international contests, Enterprise promises to defeat Sir Thomas Lipton's cherished hope of returning the America's Cup to England. The contest, of course, is not decided. Almost anything can happen to a racing yacht, but it appears as though Enterprise, the finest product of American shipbuilding genius, is superior to Shamrock, the finest product of a British builder. It would be interesting to compare the performance of the rival boats if, perchance, one of the remaining contests is favored with a ripsnorting breeze.

THE COSTE-BELLONTE TOUR.

The great benefit rendered to aviation by Col. Lindbergh in his country-wide tour that followed the successful flight to Paris will hardly be duplicated by the tour of American cities of Coste and Bellonte. Lindbergh's flight to Paris dramatized the possibilities of flying. His tour through this country made the airplane a tangible thing. The rapid development of commercial aviation of recent years may be traced from the Lindbergh transoceanic flight and the subsequent tour. Today the American people have generally accepted the airplane as a practical means of travel. During the first six months of the year 133,000 passengers were carried on commercial airlines as compared with 49,000 for the corresponding period of last year. Air travel is habitual with thousands of business men.

The Coste-Bellonte tour, however, promises to attract attention equal to that attracted by the Lindbergh tour. The flight from Paris to New York was a signal achievement. It will be written large in the history of the development of aviation. The American people watched the progress of the Question Mark as it sped across the ocean and picked its way down the American coast. The public admired the courage and skill of those who sat at its controls. Coste and Bellonte are popular heroes. The public desires to see them, to shake hands with them, and to extend them a personal greeting.

It is a good thing for representatives of foreign nations to mingle with the American people. Coste and Bellonte typify to the average American the best of French manhood. They are assured of a cordial welcome in each of the twenty cities they will visit.

BROMLEY'S FLIGHT.

Lieut. Harold L. Bromley estimates that he was 1,200 miles out from Japan on his flight to the United States when a broken gasoline feed pipe and unforeseen bad weather made it advisable to turn back toward Japan. He landed safely close to his taking off point early Monday morning, not quite 25 hours after the start of the flight.

The transpacific flight has held Lieut. Bromley's undivided attention for upwards of a year. Originally he planned to fly from the United States to Japan. His first plane was wrecked in an attempted take-off from a Tacoma field. The tail assembly fell off his second plane while it was being tested and his third plane burst into flames in the air and was consumed. The series of disappointments was climaxed in the failure of the flight eastward from Japan. Bromley, however, has announced that he will try again as soon as he can have his ship repaired.

Nothing is to be proved or gained by a transpacific flight at this time. The chief explanation of Lieut. Bromley's four failures lies in the fact that no plane has yet been designed that is capable of flying the Pacific with even reasonable safety. Lieut. Bromley may thank his lucky star that he has not sacrificed his life to the transpacific flight. While the fact that he had the courage to turn back when the chances against completing the crossing were slim may be strongly commended, his announcement that he will try again is disheartening. The transpacific flight is futile and foolish. Lieut. Bromley might well devote his attention to some more worthwhile activity in the field of aviation.

Why worry about peewee golf regulations? Just cut down the size of the print and use the standard course regulations.

That new instrument for measuring the height of clouds ought to be tremendously popular in pacifist circles.

RETIRING SENATORS

By EARL EASTWOOD,
In the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Senate will welcome an unusual number of new members after next March 4. It is reasonably certain that at least fourteen of the "old familiar faces" will be missing when the roll of the Seventy-second Congress is called.

Notwithstanding the old Senate adage that "few die and none resign," seven members will voluntarily retire in 1931. Six Republicans—Baird, of New Jersey; Gillett, of Massachusetts; Goff, of West Virginia; Gould, of Maine; Phipps, of Colorado, and Sullivan, of Wyoming—are not candidates to succeed themselves. Senator Brock, Democrat, of Tennessee, who was appointed to fill a vacancy, has been nominated for the unexpired term, but does not seek the full term beginning next March.

Defeats in the primaries mean the retirement of two Republican senators—Deneen, of Illinois, and Grundy, of Pennsylvania. On the Democratic side, Blease, of South Carolina; Ransdell, of Louisiana, and Simmons, of North Carolina, have been eliminated in the same way. Heflin, of Alabama, who was barred from the Democratic primary because of his opposition to the party's presidential nominee in 1928, is seeking reelection as an independent, but the odds are against him. Steck, of Iowa, is not expected to return next year.

The records of the retiring Republican members vary greatly. Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts, entered the Senate in 1925 after a notable career of 32 years in the House, where he was Speaker for three terms. He will celebrate his seventy-ninth birthday next month and has spent more than 50 years in public life. Charles S. Deneen, an astute politician, who was twice governor of Illinois, also entered the Senate in 1925. He was defeated for renomination last April 8 by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of his predecessor, after a spectacular contest.

Lawrence C. Phipps, of Colorado, entered politics after retiring from active business. He is a native of Pennsylvania and was vice president of the Carnegie Steel Co. in Pittsburgh at the time the company was absorbed by the United States Steel Corporation in 1901. Subsequently, he moved to Denver, was elected to the Senate in 1918 and reelected in 1924. Guy D. Goff, who is retiring after a single term, used to be a lawyer at Clarksburg, W. Va. Arthur R. Gould, who has operated lumber mills, built railroads and directed a power company in Maine, was elected to the Senate in 1926 to succeed the late Bert M. Fernald.

David Baird, jr., who is holding his first public office, was appointed senator from New Jersey on December 9, 1929, to succeed Walter E. Edge, who resigned to become Ambassador to France. On the same day Patrick J. Sullivan, who has held various State and municipal offices in Wyoming, was sworn in as successor to the late Francis E. Warren. Three days later Joseph R. Grundy took the Pennsylvania seat which the Senate had denied to William S. Vare.

The dean of the retiring Democrats is Furnifold M. Simmons, of North Carolina, who is the oldest senator in length of service and ranking member of his party on the powerful finance committee. He is completing his thirtieth year in the Senate. He lost the nomination this year for his refusal to support Alfred E. Smith for the Presidency in 1928. Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisiana, a member of the Senate since 1913 and a leader in waterway and flood-control legislation, is another primary victim, his defeat last Tuesday being one of the major political upsets of 1930.

"Cotton Tom" Heflin, whose dilemma has been mentioned, entered Congress in 1904 and advanced to the Senate in 1920. He has been chiefly noted for his white waistcoats and his virulent, intemperate oratory. Coleman L. Blease, the spoiled darling of the South Carolina Democracy, entered the Senate in 1925. He won a slight plurality in the recent primary, but was defeated for renomination in the "runoff" last Tuesday.

William E. Brock, a Tennessee manufacturer and banker, never held public office until his appointment in September, 1929, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Tyson. Daniel F. Steck, of Iowa, was seated by the Senate in 1926 after a contest with Smith W. Brookhart.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A COMMONER TALKS.

To hammer always at a bolted door;
To tread a path that nowhere seems to lead;
To be denied the goal you struggle for;
To be the slave that never can be freed.

To have the wish for better things and yet
Always the golden chance to be denied;
To wear a number managers forget;
To pass their rooms, but never get inside.

I wonder if you know how hard it seems
Never to find that step on which men rise;
To see your neighbor realize his dreams

Too soon, too late, or scarcely good enough
Into this world, where some succeed, I came,
Wanting the best, yet doomed to common stuff,
Having no merit thousands cannot claim.

I lack that subtle something of the hands
Or eyes or brain by which men triumph gain.
Good work I do, but better fame demands
And so a slave to duty I remain.

If You Kick the Dog Around, He Will Run From a Tramp Who Kicks.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF there is no other good in warfare, it serves at least to reveal the quality of manhood.

And a comparison of the men who fought in America's first and last wars will reveal, as nothing else could, the change effected in the common man by a few generations of freedom.

That first war was not a struggle by a whole people against a tyrant. There were, first and last, more than four hundred thousand men under arms, but never at one time was the army greater than two modern divisions.

Men deserted by the thousand. They ran at sight of the enemy without firing a shot. They ate army food until a fight threatened and then disappeared. They cared nothing for independence, and liked fighting so little that the authorities at last found it necessary to bribe and enlist deserters from the English army and to give Negro slaves their freedom in exchange for military service.

Why were these early Americans such sorry soldiers? Because they were, for the most part, small farmers, mechanics and laborers who were not considered worthy to vote. Because they were despised illiterates not permitted to dine with "gentlemen" in time of peace, and were whipped and tortured by their officers in time of war. Because they were naked and hungry while the gentry waxed fat. Because they starved at Valley Forge while Pennsylvania farmers got rich by selling supplies to the British. In short, because they were for the most part a scorned "lower class" who had nothing to win and no pride to preserve.

The doughboy in the last war had nothing to win, either, and the cause for which he fought was equally obscure; but he had the pride of free manhood to preserve and he felt in all ways equal to his officers.

As a free man and an equal of kings he had ideals to preserve—ideals of courage and fair play and good sportsmanship.

He saluted, but he despised the officer who was yellow or puffed up by his little authority. He was afraid, but too proud to show fear. He submitted to discipline, but resolved to lick arrogant lieutenants when the war was over.

The American has come a long way in 160 years. And neither wealth nor education can account for the change. He is a braver and finer man because he is schooled in independence and no caste system requires him to jerk a forelock to his betters.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"HOSPITALITY" OR "NEVER GIVE A HERO AN EVEN BREAK."

"Well," demanded the chairman of the reception committee to transatlantic fliers, "what's on the program today?"

"Nothing special," said a committeeman sadly. "Yesterday was the ninth day of the reception, you know."

"What?" cried the chairman. "Do you mean to say we are letting those splendid heroes off so soon?"

"Yes sir," sighed the secretary. "There's nothing else on the program."

"What's the condition of the heroes?" demanded the chairman, quite agitated.

"They're quite exhausted, sir, and suffering extremely from bruises, abrasions, contusions and shock Both are on the verge of complete breakdowns," informed the secretary.

"But are they still conscious?" barked the chairman.

"Oh yes."

"Then it would be against the policies of American reception committees and a violation of all the traditions of American hospitality to let them alone at this time," insisted the chairman. "We must arrange another parade and banquet at once."

"For today?" asked the secretary.

"Certainly. You realize what any delay would mean don't you?"

"What?"

"It would mean that they would get a day's rest and a night's sleep. This would restore their strength and make it necessary for the reception committee to begin all over again. It is unthinkable. Summon the committee at once and let us prepare to put these brave fliers under a further ordeal."

"I doubt if they are able to stand another parade," warned the secretary. "Both are completely exhausted from standing up in official cars and bowing to strangers. They are showing quite clearly the strain of being changed all over the city and forced to appear as if they enjoyed it. They also are suffering acutely from confetti consciousness."

"What's their mental attitude? asked the chairman.

"They are depressed and disheartened. They now tremble at the slightest suggestion of a cheer and become delirious at the words such as 'Mister Toastmaster and gentlemen'."

"How do they act when anybody refers to them as vikings of the air, trail blazers of the blue?" asked the chairman.

"It makes them quite sick," said the secretary.

"Good!" concluded the typical chairman of the typical American reception committee. "Notify them of another parade immediately and arrange for the big testimonial banquet tonight. See that the dinner includes everything indigestible. And Jason!"

"Yes sir."

"Get that toastmaster who never knows when to stop! We'll kill these heroes and prove that American hospitality is not a thing to be trifled with!"

The first convincing sign that unemployment is on the decline is furnished by the announcement that Charlie Chaplin is going back to work and make a moving picture.

This department knows a yacht owner who is so timid that whenever he gets back from a short cruise where he can see the markings of his home channel he refers to them as the Happiness Buoys.

Song for International Polo: After the ball is over.

Well, anyway, those South American revolutions have done a lot to acquaint the American public with the names of men who were presidents down there.

The midget golf craze has spread to England. And yet we send ambassadors abroad to establish good will!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Kane Pleads for More and Better Paths and Parks for Pedestrians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Too much attention is given to bridle paths in connection with the construction and improvement of parks and driveways. The need for footpaths receives but scant consideration, although the encouragement of pedestrianism is of first importance in the laying out of our larger parks.

Our beautiful Rock Creek Park is noticeably lacking in this respect. It is true that there are some narrow paths on the rocky slopes of the valleys therein, and that they are fine in their way. On account, however, of their uphill and downhill contour, and their roughness, they are hardly suitable for healthful relaxation by any but the most vigorous hiker.

The park drives (originally provided for horse-drawn vehicles), are entirely too narrow for today's automobile demands. If widened, the urgent need for easy bypaths should be attended to.

In this age of breathless speed and reckless drivers safe pedestrianism is almost impossible. To undertake a gentle walk within city limits, or even beside country roads, is foolhardy if not suicidal. Therefore, in the interest of public health, safety and contentment, it would be a good thing if motor-verboten parks for pedestrians were provided by all cities.

I should like to believe that the day will come when Rock Creek Park, provided from one end to the other with an abundance of pathways, will serve as a pedestrian's sanctuary.

Indeed, I don't think it would be a waste of time if the International Road Congress, which meets in Washington October 6-14 next, devoted one of its sessions to consideration of the social and civic value of wayside paths in connection with the development of national highways.

WALKER KANE.

Important Traffic Regulations That Are Seldom, if Ever, Enforced.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When I went to get my car the other day, one of the "anti-parking cops" was busily at work in the vicinity chalking up tires and slipping little pink slips beneath windshield wipers. When I tried to get my car out of his path (I would have gotten the next ticket) I couldn't budge it, because the cars in front and in back were jammed up against my bumpers. Moreover, these cars were parked farther than 6 inches from the curb. There are regulations prohibiting parking closer than 3 feet to other machines and further than 6 inches from the curb. These regulations are designed to prevent the jamming in of cars at the curb so that they can not be moved. The "anti-parking cop" made no effort to help me out or to enforce these important regulations. He was too busy chalking up tires and posting little pink slips.

Says Coolidge, the Columnist, Grows Better Each Day.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The comment on The Post's front page, under the caption "Calvin Coolidge Says," grows daily better. Those who relish printed opinions only when peppered with twisted meanings, irony, sarcasm, or satire, right or wrong, may not agree with this. But newspaper readers may be divided into more than one class, and a great majority, no matter how fond of seasoned opinions now and then, will show a preference for truisms inspired by a good-natured outlook.

Former President Coolidge is properly celebrated for his pleasing clarity. Limited to something like 200 words, he can not go into details and consider exceptions. But his brief and cheerful daily viewpoints are well calculated to steady the outlook of the earnest citizen who, for the moment, may happen to be worried by the idea that events are not sizing up as he thinks they should.

ADMIRER.

Opposes This Form of Postal Economy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Johnson's article in The Post recently on postal collections and deliveries being delayed by substituting foot carriers for motor trucks, meets with my hearty approval.

Twice this week I have walked nine blocks to the City Post Office to make certain that my letters would go out promptly.

Mail that is collected by men on foot and then taken to branch postal stations, instead of directly to the City Post Office, is certain to be delayed.

Of what particular advantage is further use of the special delivery stamp if its employment is no longer to indicate speed?

N. VAN METER.

THE WASHINGTON BICENTENNIAL.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, according to the Jerseyman, is already making active plans for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Washington, which will begin on February 22, 1932, and continue until Thanksgiving Day of that year. One suggestion for the first day of the celebration is that at noon on February 22, 1932, the President of the United States deliver an address at the Capitol Building in Washington, this address to be broadcast to every meeting place of the people in the entire country, the facilities of every broadcasting system in the entire land being brought into use for the purpose of this broadcast. In this way it is probable that close to 100,000,000 people would hear the address. It is then proposed that at the close of the address by the President the people of the entire nation join in singing "America," thus making a chorus of a hundred million voices.

Communities all over the country are already appointing committees to make plans for the celebration of this great anniversary. Naturally the City of Alexandria, in Virginia, has a most important committee at work, and is making plans for a celebration of great dignity. We must suppose that in the very near future Morristown, where George Washington spent so much time, and where he made so many plans for the winning of American independence, will appoint a committee of leading citizens to prepare for a celebration here.

ZONE HELD TO BAR PSYCHOLOGICAL ART

OPPOSE HER PONY ALSO

The Chevy Chase Gardens Citizens Association, at a meeting in the Somerset School House, last night, branded as "obnoxious" a business conducted by a woman in the neighborhood who is a self-styled "psychological reader."

R. P. Huff, who drew the attention of the place to the association, said that the business was in violation of Montgomery County zoning laws which prohibit business places between the District line and Bradley lane. A resolution opposing its continuance was adopted. The case will be taken to the Maryland Park and Planning Commission. It was also charged that the woman kept a pony in a shed in violation of the zoning law.

The association also opposed the application made for a permit to conduct a tea room at Hunt avenue and Langdrum lane.

Officers were elected as follows: Robert A. Littleton, president; Charles E. Jackson, vice president; Mabel V. Royce, secretary and treasurer; Charles H. Squire, Robert M. Pease and Mr. Littleton, delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation; Norman D. Keller, Otto Ruppert and Fred H. Cox, delegates to the federation; Kent G. Paxton, E. E. Snyder, J. C. Virginia Negroes Eligible to Vote

Failure of Democrat Party Officials to Appeal Gives Them Primary Ballot.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Failure of Democratic party representatives to take an appeal to the United States Supreme Court within the statutory time leaves Negro Democrats free to participate in Democratic primaries in Virginia, it was learned today.

The time for appealing from decision by Circuit Court Judge Lawrence Groner, which had been upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, expired on Saturday. The decision, made in a suit brought by James O. West, Negro, against A. C. Bliley, William Boltz and William Ricker, election officials, held that West was entitled to vote in the primary in spite of the party plan which barred all except white voters from participating. Nominal damages were awarded West.

An appeal was taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and on June 12, 1930, Judge Groner's decision was sustained. The defendants had three months in which to appeal.

Treasurer of County Federation Resigns

The resignation of J. J Miller as treasurer of the Montgomery County Civic Federation was received "with regret" last night at the first fall meeting of the organiation, held in the Bethesda, Md., elementary school. John Farnum was elected to succeed Mr. Miller, who will leave shortly for an extended stay in Berlin, Germany.

Heads of various standing committees reported on summer activities. In the absence of President Stephen James, Vice President Joseph Cissel presided.

Three Movie Operators Face Disorderly Charge

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 15.—Charges of disorderly conduct were placed against J. M. Burnett and G. A. Browles, striking motion picture projectionists, and J. L. Prickett, nonunion operator, following a fight on Seventh street here this afternoon.

Prickett, who came from Danville when the projectionists union struck September 1, told police he was attacked by Burnett and Browles without warning. The other men made no statement.

New Water Supply Is Urged in Repot

Committee of Capital Park Board Cite Situation to Col. Grant.

Need for providing additional sources of water supply or more effective use of present sources was stressed in a report submitted to Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d yesterday by the water committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. More water must be procured for hte city within the next 50 years, in the opinion of the committee.

The report covered Montgomery County and Prince Georges County in Maryland, and Fairfax and Arlington Counties in Virginia. The report also called attention to the following "possibilities or combinations of them" as being worthy of consideration:

Increase of water quanlity taken from the Potomac River at Great Falls, taking water from the Potomac River at Little Falls, development of reservoirs on one or more branches of the Patuxent River above Laurel, Md., development of one or more reservoirs on Seneca Creke, or its branches, in Maryland; development of a reservoir on Occoquan Creek, Va.; development of smaller streams in Virginia for local use.

Hyattsville Plans To Improve Road

Cecil Avenue Will Undergo Construction of New 20-Foot Roadbed.

Plans for improving Cecil avenue from Carroll avenue to the town limits were adopted by the Hyattsville (Md.) town council at a meeting last night. Specifications called for construction of a 20-foot roadbed with regulation sidewalks and gutters, in conformance with the street's development in Riverdale. Property owners affected were said to be unanimously in favor of the project.

The chairman of the road committee and the town's attorney were authoried to enter into negotiations with C. A. Ketchum with a view to securing a deed to a lot on Dewey street necessary for extension of that street from Columbia avenue to Rhode Island avenue.

The clerk was instructed to ask the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for assistance in persuading citizens of Carroll and Morse avenues to connect their sewerage lines with the main system.

MINISTER RESIGNS ALEXANDRIA PULPIT

Presbyterian Church Gives Delaney Resolution of Regret in Matter.

ILL HEALTH IS BLAMED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Delaney, who has been pastor of that church for the past eight years; and, while the resignation will become effective October 1, the salary will extend until December 1. In the meantime the church will be served by a supply minister while seeking a new pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Delaney stated in his letter of resignation that he is suffering from a nervous breakdown, and physicians agree that his improvement will be more rapid if he is relieved of all responsibility associated with the church.

A resolution expressing the deep regret at his resignation by the congregation and the high esteem in which Mr. Delaney is held, and praise for his work while in this city both in the church and in civic affairs was presented by Frank W. Noxon and adopted by the church body.

R. C. Bowton, superintendent of schools of this city, has been chosen chairman of the committee to arrange the program for the District Teachers Association to be held in Warrenton, Va., October 24 and 25.

The Alexandria Rotary Club will omit the regular 12:30 luncheon at the George Mason Hotel today, and hold a crab feast at the Old Dominion Boat Club house tonight.

The funeral of Lee R. Evans, who died on Saturday, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from his home, 113 South St. Asaph street, conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Marina C. Stiles, wife of William Stiles, died yesterday at her home, 514 Cameron street, and the body was taken to the Cunningham Funeral Home to await funeral arrangements.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home.

James K. Garlington, Negro, is in the Alexandria Hospital with his head and throat cut as the result of an argument with his wife, Bessie Garlington, who wielded a milk bottle with disastrous results to her spouse. The wife is locked up at police headquarters, claiming self-defense for her act.

Mrs. W. K. Griffith, jr., of 1219 Prince street, who was injured in an automobile accident a week ago, and has been in an unconscious condition practically ever since, is considered to be improving, having regained consciousness.

Old Dominion Commandery, Knight Templar, will resume meetings on Friday evening, and a school of instruction will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

SHOWERS REPLENISH WATER IN ANNAPOLIS

ENGINE STOPS PUMPING

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 15.—The showers of the week-end may prove a salvation to the City Water Co. and its consumers, officials today predicted. The downpour resulted in more than 3,000,000 gallons of water flowing into the East Basin, one of the principal supply tanks.

The water, while too muddy for present consumption, will clear up within a few days and will mean at least three days' supply, according to T. Roland Brown, president of the water company. While the new supply is most welcome, it will not mean that the conservation campaign will be stopped.

"Residents must conserve as much as ever for the next 60 days if present conditions continue," Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt said. The rain, while proving of great advantage, caused the fire engine which pumped continually for one month to stop operations.

"The fire engine was pumping direct into the supply basin of clear water. The muddy water could not be poured into this basin; in addition, the supply in the stream due to the rain caused the dam to break away. The dam has now been prepared, and as soon as the stream clears a gasoline pump will be used to resume pumping from the stream," President Brown commented.

The rainwater in the new east basin can not be emptied into the reservoir until it clears. Meanwhile the Naval Academy is supplying the city with one-fifth of its daily supply, 200,000 gallons daily.

The Layne Atlantic Co., of Norfolk, Va., which will drill one and possibly two new wells, each of which will be guaranteed to supply 1,000,000 gallons daily, began moving equipment into the company's property this morning. One of the first endeavors will be a move to reopen one or more of the old small wells which have become closed. If these wells can be opened the city will be assured of a supply to last until larger wells are completed, some 60 days distant.

Mayor Quenstedt said today that he would recommend that all consumers charged with hose connections on their quarterly statement have this item stricken off for the quarter just ended, because such lines have been restricted since June, when the drought was first noted here. He will make the recommendation at the regular monthly meeting of the water board.

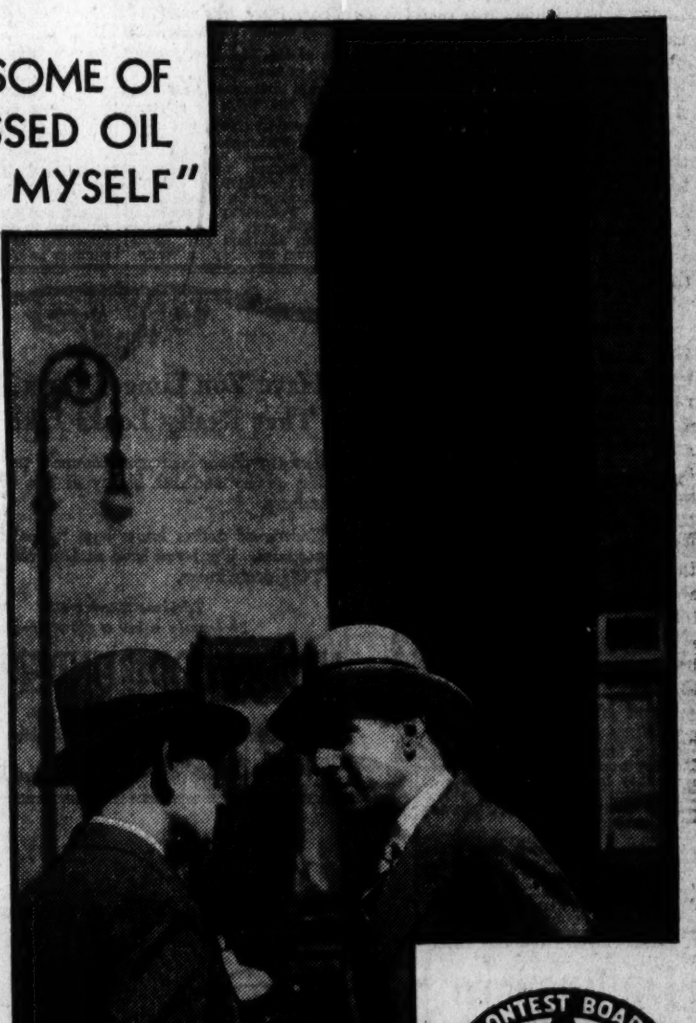
"I'M GOING TO TRY SOME OF THIS GERM-PROCESSED OIL AND FIND OUT FOR MYSELF"



CONOCO

Talk . . . talk . . . talk . . . was there ever so much talk about a motor oil before? And small wonder, for the introduction of Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil marked such an advance in lubricating laws that the whole oil world was set agog. Motorists like you and I, who have always felt that motors wore out too soon, learned that the metal-penetrating features of this new oil meant many more useful miles for our car and a dollar saving that amounted to real money.

The Pike's Peak Tests proved that Germ-Processed lengthens motor life. The achievement at Indianapolis and Altoona, where Conoco Germ-Processed oil successfully lubricated racing motors that finished "in the money" at speeds from 92 to 120 miles per hour, means that fast driving in summer heat of regular motors can be done with confidence. That's why Conoco Germ-Processed oil has excited so much comment and conversation. That's why you should change now to this first really new oil in 25 years. Drive in at the Sign of the Red Triangle and begin now to use this remarkable oil.

CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY

CONTEST BOARD AAA CERTIFIED TEST

Following the Pike's Peak Tests, where Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil was tested side by side with three other popular, nationally known oils, the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association issued Certificate of Performance number 2268, comprising 14 points, of which the point below is one.

POINT NO. 10

"That during these tests the subject oil showed improved compression pressure, decreased rate of crankcase dilution and decreased gasoline consumption, indicating an improved ring seal."

Mrs. Sanford And Her Sister Sailing Abroad

Envoy and Mrs. Stirling Also Plan Departure to Europe.

AT this season of the year, the tide of travel is turned both ways. The vacationists returning from mountains, seashore and foreign ports, are almost balanced by those who have waited until the "summer crowds" are safe at home before venturing on their way.

Mrs. Edward Terry Sanford, widow of the late Justice Sanford, is passing a few days in New York before sailing on Thursday with her sister to pass the winter and next spring abroad. Mrs. Sanford has passed most of the summer at her home in Tennessee, and has for a short time recently been resting in a hospital in New York. Mrs. Sanford and her sister have no plans for their trip further than their arrival in Paris some time next week. They expect to follow the seasons from one pleasant spot on the continent to another. And as Mrs. Sanford says if their mood dictates darkest Africa, to Africa they will go."

The United States Minister to the Irish Free State and Mrs. Frederick Stirling have sailed recently for Ireland, where the former will reassume his duties. The Stirlings have been in this country for some time this summer visiting Mrs. Joseph Leiter, sister of Mrs. Stirling, at her summer homes in Saratoga and at Beverly Farms, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Lyon have sailed for their home in Berne, Switzerland, where Mr. Lyon will assume his duties as commercial secretary of the United States Legation.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyon have been here on a vacation, during which time they visited Mrs. Lyon's father, Mr. Herbert Gill, of Washington, and Mr. Lyon's relatives in the Green Spring Valley, near Baltimore. Mrs. Lyon was formerly Miss Helen Gill. Mr. Gill and another daughter, Miss Mona Gill, have returned to Washington after passinge part of the summer at Nonquit, Mass.

Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, who is passing the summer at Gloucester, Mass., will leave there Friday for Kansas City, where she will make her usual autumn stay. About November 20 Mrs. Loose will return to her apartment at the Mayflower for the winter.

Judge I. F. Fischer, chief justice of the custom division, Department of Justice, and Mrs Fischer have arrived in town from their home in New York, accompanied by their daughter, and are stopping at the Carlton.

Lieut. Col. T. W. Barber, U. S. M. C., is at the Powhatan.

Mrs. F. W. Olds, of Williamstown, Mass., and the Misses Nash, of New York City, are at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Titus End Stay at Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Titus returned yesterday from Rehoboth Beach, Del., where they have been the guests of the Assistant Dean of the Georgetown Foreign Service School, Dr. Thomas Healy, and Mrs. Healy.

A wedding of interest took place yesterday at 12:30 o'clock when Miss Flora Kraus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kraus, and Mr. Richard Joseph Casey were married. Mr. Casey is from Stamford, Conn., and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henry Casey, of that city.

They started immediately after the ceremony for New York by airplane, and, after a wedding trip, will make their home in Washington.

Count Soyeshima, of Japan, is also a guest at the Mayflower en route to New York, where he is sailing for London on Wednesday. While in Europe he will visit his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Shida, at the Japanese Embassy in Berlin.

Mrs. Fowler was the widow of Mr. John A. Cunningham, a pioneer of finance in Jacksonville, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Arthur Pickett, of that city. Her daughter, the former Miss Inez Cunningham, is now Mrs. William P. Gilbreath, jr., also of Jacksonville. Col. Fowler and his bride will pass the winter in Florida and will then go to California for the spring.

Col. Fowler still retains the managership of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association and is president of the Tennis Patrons Association.

Dr. and Mrs. Foote Return From Europe.

Dr. Foote, who is dean of the School of Medicine at Georgetown University, was designated by the State Department as a delegate from the United States to the Second International Pediatric Congress, which was held in Stockholm during August. Besides their stay in Sweden, the Footes visited France and England and were guests of friends in Weisbaden and Cologne.

The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ludo C. Pickett, of 2043 Park road, are bringing to an end their summer activities and are preparing to continue their studies this fall. Miss Frances Day Pickett will attend Gunston Hall. Miss Dorothy Blackburn Pickett will attend Mount Ida Junior College at Newton, Mass. Why should a school child have a Waterman's?

Any writing teacher will tell you quickly enough! It's just this—the better the pen, the better the handwriting. Don't handicap your child—give him the best.

Waterman's pens write better. Ask any bookkeeper, or other steady users of pens. He'll tell you that the way a fountain pen writes depends on two things—the pen point itself, and how the ink flows to the point.

Waterman's make their own gold pen points and have done so for 47 years—no wonder they are better. Then, every Waterman's has the patented spoon feed which brings the ink to the pen point just as it is needed—no skimping, no blotting.

Every Waterman's has these features—writes better. Select the one that suits your purse and your child's hand. It will amply repay both of you for years to come. There is a wide choice of Waterman's pens suited for school use. Those illustrated are $4 and $5. Others both higher and lower in price. All are fine writing instruments. Always use Waterman's Inks—for school and general correspondence Waterman's new Blue Ink is especially good—a clear, bright blue, easy to read and easy on the eyes.

Every Waterman's is guaranteed forever against defects. Service Stations are maintained at the addresses below for the purpose of making good our guarantee and for servicing our pens as required.

VITAMIN D PATENT SUIT IS INSTITUTED

Wisconsin Foundation Asks Rights to Process Be Given Professor.

RICKETS CURE CLAIMED

Claiming that Dr. Harry Steenbock, of Madison, Wis., had invented a process by which certain foods could be made to possess Vitamin D, the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, organized under the laws of that State and incorporated under the laws of Illinois, yesterday asked the District of Columbia Supreme Court to compel the commissioner of patents, Thomas E. Robertson, to issue letters of patent. The suit is accompanied by an affidavit signed and sworn to by Dr. Steenbock, who describes himself as a professor of chemistry in the Agricultural College of the University of Wisconsin.

The foundation, explaining its interest in the suit, sets out that it was "formed by alumni of the University of Wisconsin for purposes of introducing Steenbock's inventions and discoveries to the world and for the purpose of fostering research of a kindred character at the University of Wisconsin, said corporation undertaking to introduce the inventions aforesaid, the net proceeds therefrom to be devoted to research purposes as stated at the University of Wisconsin."

The petitioner declares that Dr. Steenbock has invented a process that will entirely cure rickets. This is described in the petition as "a series of discoveries that substances having food of medicinal value could be antirachitically activated and thus made to possess a principal or factor, sometimes known as Vitamin D."

It also is pointed out that Dr. Steenbock obtained a patent on his broad invention—that is, Vitamin D—but the foundation wants him to have a more specific patent relating to ramifications, claiming that his invention will vitamize cereals, milk and butter. Attorneys Brown and Phelps appear for the foundation.

Guatemala Must Find Coffee Markets To Relieve Depression of Price Collapse

Once Affluent Planters Are Threatened With Bankruptcy.

Match Monopoly and Port Concessions to Foreign Nations Proposed.

This is the third of a series of articles about present conditions in the nearer Latin-American neighbors of the United States.

By EVELYN TRENT.

Some of the financial and economic problems that today agitate the Republic of Guatemala, second largest of the five nations of Central America that stretch between Mexico and Panama, were discussed in an interview granted by President Lazaro Chacon in the national palace at Guatemala City.

Coffee, bananas and communications constitute the key problems of Guatemala, as indeed most of the Central American republics, those Balkans of the Western Hemisphere, many of whose internal troubles originate in the fact that they constitute important pawns in the great international chess game for ultimate control of the great trade routes between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

The narrow isthmus, once the seat of prehistoric Indian civilizations whose vestiges still remain to challenge the modern archeologist, was formerly united by the Spanish Conquest in the captain generalcy of Guatemala, and again, following the revolt against Spanish rule, it formed the Central American Federation that has been dissolved and revived again several times within the last century.

Today Central America is divided into five sovereign republics, proud of their freedom and vigilant to maintain it in the face of foreign usurpation, but the dream of a possible union still persists in the hearts of many of their statesmen and sporadic efforts are yet made to keep alive the idea of a Greater Republic of Central America that may confidently pool its resources and face the world as a political and economic entity of sufficient importance to command international recognition.

Switzerland of New World.

Guatemala may well be termed the Switzerland of the New World whose capital, Guatemala City, lies beautiful and brooding within its mountain fastnesses, 5,000 feet above the sea, hemmed in by 10,000-foot volcanic peaks that threaten the city with destruction, as in the past. In the clear blue of the sky above the low, earthquake proof buildings with their flat rocks and verdant patios, hovers the zopilota, dark vulture and natural scavenger of tropical America, while higher still, piercing the clouds, is the airplane, man's latest challenge to nature in their unending struggle for supremacy.

The path smoothed by a personal introduction that admitted me to the presence of His Excellency, President Chacon, I made my way to the National Palace, one of the old, fortress-like buildings of the capital, over cobble stoned streets and past a formidable bodyguard armed to the teeth, into the sunlit patio with its luxuriant tropical foliage and past several anterooms to the official reception hall with its double file of chairs, where I waited the appearance of Guatemala's chief executive.

In a few moments he appeared, not in the gold lace uniform of his photographs, but in simple civilian costume, his eyes hidden by shaded glasses, small of stature and simple and unassuming of manner, an unaffected personality who gave me hospitable welcome to his country in words of the utmost cordiality. President Chacon, once a general in the army, looks far from military and bears no resemblance to a dictator.

Beset by economic problems of a most pressing nature, brought on by the world financial crisis and accentuated by the recent drop in coffee prices that threaten this single-crop country with financial ruin unless sufficient money can be found to tide the coffee planters over until the autumn harvest, there is sufficient to occupy his mind and he consented to reply to questions as to the most urgent problems that face the country today, the first, of course, touching on the effect of the fall in coffee prices to the general situation in Guatemala.

Country Invites Foreign Capital.

"The exceptionally high price of coffee in recent years created a false situation in our market, producing a state of inflation that has been accentuated by the general depression in the world coffee industry," said President Chacon. "As regards our situation in Guatemala, the fall in the principal export product has caused a depression that influences other national institutions of an economic character, but we hope very soon to readjust the balance between the cost of production and the selling price."

"What measures have been taken to counteract the effects of the fall in coffee and sugar prices in the republic?" he was asked.

"Recently a congress of Central American coffee growers met in this capital, in which everything relating to the production and export of Central American coffee to foreign markets was dealt with in a complete and scientific manner," replied his excellency. "The Guatemalan government has taken and continues to take special note of the conclusions reached by this congress. As for sugar, the world crisis does not affect our internal market, which is supplied by our own production."

"What is the attitude of the present administration towards foreign investments in Guatemala, particularly towards investments of American capital?" was the next question.

"The Guatemalan government protects the investments of foreign capital in the country and it seeks the cooperation of all enterprises that tend to assure the development of the nation," he replied. "American capital, on account of its universal acceptance as a unit of value and in view of the facilities it offers for investment purposes, is in a condition to stimulate economic exchange with those nations that need wise investment to hasten their own progress."

"What measures have been taken by the present administration to aid the economic development of the country, for example, in the promotion of public works, roads and highways, railways, aviation, mining, agriculture, &c.?"

"The present government is devoting itself with special interest to the development of public works in general," replied his excellency, "and the construction of railways is a very important part of its program. Recently two new railways have been added to our service: That of Los Altos and the other belonging to the eastern city of Zacapa, extending to the frontiers of El Salvador. Such railroads will contribute to the greater productivity of two rich and extensive zones of the republic, which can thus count upon an easy and rapid means of transporting their products."

Little Prospect of New Federation.

"Two recent contracts tend to stimulate the growth of aviation in the country. One is with the Pan-American Airways with international air lines to the north and south; the other is with the National Aviation Co., which serves to connect our internal routes.

"As for agricultural development, we are seeking to diversify our crop cultivations, particularly the banana, which can be made to become an important source of economic wealth."

"What the relations of Guatemala toward the other Central American republics, and what prospects exist, if any, for the formation of a Central American Federation, or a Greater Republic of Central America?" was the final question asked the President.

"Today Guatemala maintains the best possible relations with the other isthmian republics. The frontier dispute that arose with Honduras will soon be resolved, as it has been submitted to the decision of an arbitration commission, recently appointed, which is supported by the good will of both nations," he replied.

"As for the project of uniting the five Central American republics into a single nation, a project that has constituted the spiritual goal of the majority of the peoples of Central America, no immediate prospect exists that may lead one to anticipate the political reintegration of the old federation, unless it may be that through the broadening of economic relations we may yet attain, at some future day still undetermined, an identity of such a nature."

The interview was over, and leaving the national palace, I was free to roam the picturesque city and to glean such other information as I could of its peculiar problems and necessities. On all sides the great question is that of coffee, whose low price on the world market is causing concern and threaten bankruptcy to the wealthy and once spendthrift planters.

"Commercially speaking, Guatemala is a single crop country, with 2,000 coffee plantations covering about one-fourth of her total cultivated area and producing annually some 130,000,000 pounds of coffee of which 80 per cent is exported, chiefly to Europe. When it is realized that coffee constitutes over 66 per cent of Guatemalan exports, some idea may be had of the disastrous effects that the world drop in coffee prices has produced upon the national economy.

Match Trust Wants Monopoly.

Several questions that agitate public life in Guatemala today are, besides the coffee situation, the granting of two concessions to foreign concerns. One is a port concession to the United Fruit Co. on the Pacific Coast, to serve as an outlet for a new banana growing region that is being opened up there for development.

The other is the proposed sale of a 30-year-old match monopoly to the powerful Swedish match trust, the Svenska Tandsticks Aktiebolaget, in return for which the Guatemalan government is to receive $110,000 a year and a loan of $2,500,000 at 7 per cent, which will probably be used to establish a much needed mortgage bank, to help tide over the coffee planters until the present financial stringency has passed.

There is considerable unemployment, but no one can say how much, and there is some talk of labor agitators being sent over from Mexico to try to organize the Guatemalan workers.

Aside from coffee fincas, which are largely in the hands of resident Germans, the greatest amount of foreign capital in the country has been invested by American citizens. From investments of $20,000,000 before the war, American capital invested in Guatemala has risen to over $50,000,000 in the last fifteen years, of which some $40,000,000 is represented by the International Railways of Central America, an American concern that controls 65 of the 850 miles of railways in the country.

Over $5,000,000 has been invested by the United Fruit Co. in banana holdings, largely on the Atlantic Coast. The Guatemalan subsidiaries of the American & Foreign Power Co., Inc., of New York control the electric light and power that serves eleven of the chief communities.

Palais Royal Day has passed into history —and will go down in the annals of our Store as one of its really remarkable events . . . remarkable in attendance . . . remarkable in values . . . and in the response of our Friends and Customers to our efforts to bring to them out-of-the-ordinary savings in this great twice-a-year event.

To those Friends and Customers may we take this opportunity of expressing our thanks for their part in making it one of the most successful Palais Royal Days since the inauguration of these sales.

And Now for Your New Fall Wardrobe!

For the Fall of 1930 the Palais Royal has assembled the outstanding fashions of the season. Fine fabrics and furs have been combined in reproductions of the most expensive models . . . created by the foremost designers. And these charming models, which will meet the demands of the most discriminating, are brought to you by the Palais Royal at prices within the range of the most modest purse.

The New Coats!

Beautiful broadcloths, trimmed with such furs as Badger, South American Kit Fox, Russian Fitch, Imported Lapin, Beaver and Fox are here for you at prices from $79.50 to $98.50.

Equally fashionable coats—in splendid materials and furs—are here at the surprisingly low prices of $39.50—$49.50—$59.50 and $69.50.

Advertisements can show but one or two models—come into the store and look over the dozens assembled for your inspection. You will be delightfully surprised at both the quality and the prices.

The New Dresses!

Dresses that will give a new thrill to the heart of Summer-weary fashionables . . . these, too, have been most carefully chosen by our corps of stylists. The newest silhouettes have been fashioned of crepe faille—cantons—satins and velvets. Fashion details in collar and sleeve treatments have emphasized the individual touches which make the new Autumn mode so flattering and becoming. So many models . . . so many silhouettes . . . an almost limitless array of new treatments and trimmings make it possible for every woman to express her own individuality in the selection of her Fall wardrobe.

The out-of-the-ordinary frocks—every woman loves them—some of wool lace made on the molded princess silhouette with low-placed flares . . . very tight fitting and very young looking.

Velvet frocks for afternoon combined with wool lace . . . there is an unusual combination! Others with thread lace or lingerie trimmings.

The beautiful satin evening gowns that take their lines from the ancient Greek and Roman statues—for to be beautifully statuesque is the acme of fashion. Dresses for Misses and Women. $8.95 to $29.50.

And Moderate Prices!

And the most important thing to consider . . . the point which we stress without qualification . . . is that the Palais Royal brings to you . . . the latest in fashion . . . the best in materials . . . the smartest accessories . . . all the things that are combined to make a well-planned winter wardrobe . . . at very moderate—very reasonable prices.

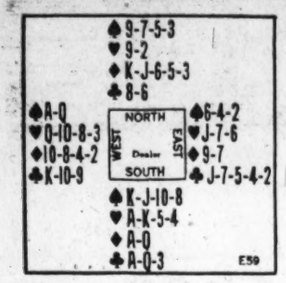
WORK ON BRIDGE

BRIDGE AS IT IS PLAYED AND MISPLAYED.



The above hand was played in a regular weekly Duplicate Contract tournament in Detroit. South, with all four suits stopped and a No Trump count of 23 (2 more than necessary), bid three No Trumps and everybody passed. In Auction one No Trump would have secured the declaration.

West's opening lead was the Trey of Hearts, showing exactly four cards in suit as dummy exposed the Deuce. South won East's Jack with the Ace. At all but two of the tables, Declarer led his Ace and Queen of Diamonds to tricks 2 and 3, overtaking the latter in dummy, and then led dummy's Jack hoping to find the adverse Diamonds split 3-3. It was two to one that he would be disappointed and he was; West had four Diamonds which stopped the running of the suit and no matter how Declarer then played, he failed to make his contract.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

At two tables South realized that as the adversaries could win only two Heart tricks, he could afford to allow them to take two Spades; and that by leading from his King, Jack, Ten and Eight, he would insure two Spade tricks for himself. By using the Nine of Spades in dummy as an entry for dummy's Diamond game would be won.

There was only a small chance that one of the adversaries held the lone Queen of Spades; but as leading the King of Spades had no chance to lose, both of the two successful Declarers made that play. West won with the Ace and led the Queen of Hearts, which was allowed to hold the trick; but when West continued with the Ten of Hearts, South took it with the King and led the Jack of Spades. West won with the Queen (a bit of hard luck that West had that card also) and cashed his good Heart.

One more trick for the adversaries would save game, but that trick was not forthcoming, as it now was easy sailing for the two Declarers who planned the play as above outlined. South made his Ace and Queen of Diamonds and the Nine of Spades having been made an entry, dummy was put in to make his good Diamonds and the remaining tricks.

Missouri Gold Star Unit Will Visit in Capital

Missouri Gold Star Pilgrims, mothers and widows who are returning from a pilgrimage to war cemeteries of France, will arrive in Washington Saturday afternoon and will be guests of the Washington Hotel until Monday.

They will be entertained by local Missourians with a dinner and reception Sunday night. A committee of Missouri ladies, who are in charge, is headed by Mrs. Bessie Parker Bruggeman.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Sept. 15.

WHAT is chic? It is the French name for the good taste and sense that men and women do or do not display. And there is no equivalent of this word in any other language.

Only a few years ago it was a fairly rare quality. Today, no longer. This is an age of intelligence, particularly of womanly intelligence, and everything combines to awaken and stimulate that intelligence. It is almost impossible for a modern woman not to display good taste in her clothing. Yet, you are right, many of them do not do so.

Can Chic Be Acquired?

How, if a woman is not born with an instinctive knowledge of good taste in her clothing, can she acquire this? How is she to know what colors are becoming to her? What is the appropriate type of garment to wear at the right time? How to assemble her wardrobe, and to put everything in its proper place in relation to itself.

In the first place, it is an art. As such, one should not grudge it a little study and practice, such as one gives to every other profession and art. And the art of being chic is the most satisfying art of all, developing in one, as it does, an appreciation of all things beautiful and developing in one an instinct for good taste in everything.

Choosing Colors and Lines.

Study your surface self—meaning your personal coloring and the lines of your figure. Upon your personal coloring, a thing that does not alter rapidly, base the selection of the colors you wear in your garments. And upon the lines of your figure base the selection of the lines you wear in your garments.

And, oh, yes, read this column for all the additional hints it gives you!

Somehow or other, when you think of smart traveling or sports things, you think of Hermes, if you are in Paris. For this unusual type of shop always manages to have on hand the last word in things of this type. For instance, couldn't you travel a l-o-o-n-g ways in the tweed coat I sketched for you today, seeing as how it was navy blue and white tweed, and all trimmed with blue leather, which was white stitched?

Or how about an orange sweater trimmed in white hand-twisted wool, if it had an orange lacquer cane to match!

Now you just know you've always wanted a big velvet picture hat! They do manage to come back in style so every now and then, don't they? And then they always cost a quarter or so of $100, and you tear your sparse locks and wonder why, when you had the chance, you didn't send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make one!

Better not let that terrible "eventuality eventuate" again! Even if you don't think right this minute that your mood calls for a large velvet hat cut in the new way so that it swoops around your face without any trying, you had better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet. The time will surely come when you will just want to make a picture hat very badly for some reason or other!

Of course you'll want to read the next weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date are of a depressing nature, and a dark cloud crosses your path. Will meet with a great annoyance. Let reason be the keeper of your passions. Old interests revived through the renewal of a friendship. Health slightly below normal, more mental than physical causes.

Children born on this September 16 will have stubborn nature, fiery tempers, and strong emotions. They will be combative and aggressive and will show no indications of laziness. They will be lacking in pliability and adaptability. They will make faithful friends and unchanging enemies.

You are a Sunny Jim or a Sunny Jane as the case may be. Both men and women born on a September 16 will keep their color, so to speak, in spite of disappointments and world-weariness. You are never a traveler on a bus of lost hopes; there is something within you that keeps your spirits buoyed up, and your faith alive. You do not choose an easy life, and you live hard, love hard, and work hard. You are of use to the world and of help to your fellowmen. It is what you put into life and not what you get out of it that makes you the happy, contented being that you are.

Your success with people and your legion of friends is due to your power of making one and all feel that they are your only interest at the particular moment. You are not a hypocritical listener, for you are indeed interested in others and their affairs. You are a safe confidant, and many secrets are poured into your ears. You do not sap the vitality of others, either by too great an exuberance or by depression.

You have general, rather than specific, ability, and with your energy and dexterity of hand and mind you may turn to many types of work and meet with success. You are fond of sports, but none of them will ever become your fetish. You are fond of reading, without being a bookworm. You love to travel, and are an intelligent visitor to foreign fields. You are eager to learn and to see.

Successful people born September 16:

William C. Sproul, former governor of Pennsylvania.

The Fable of the Goofus Fish

It's told that once upon a time
There lived a Goofus Fish
Who tried to scale culinary heights
By composing a special dish.

For years he tried all sorts of things
In every combination,
But nothing new could he contrive
To his growing consternation.

Desperate, one day he threw himself
Into a pan of boiling milk;
They say the chowder he turned out
Was smoother than the finest silk!

(Bureau of Dairy Industry.)

Serve Neufchatel or cream cheese with crisp crackers, thin dry slices of oven-toasted bread, or biscuit and a tart vegetable relish or fruit preserves. For an hors' d'oeuvres, or appetizer at the beginning of the meal, a sour relish is generally preferred. If the cheese and crackers are for dessert, accompany them with sweet jam, marmalade, preserves or jelly. Ginger pears, preserved ginger root, Bar le duc currants, orange marmalade, or apricot and pineapple jam combine especially well with the cheese flavor. Arrange the crackers, cheese and whatever goes with it attractively in a three-compartment or double decker dish. Or put the preserves, jelly or relish in the center of a large plate, cut the cheese into pieces and arrange them around the preserves and place the crackers around the outside. Another attractive way of serving this combination for afternoon tea is to spread the cheese on crisply toasted crackers, leaving a hollow in the cheese toward the center and dropping into it a bit of the preserved fruit or jelly. These give a festive touch to the tea table and yet can be prepared very quickly. The cheese softens the crackers on standing, so do not combine them until a short time before serving.

Several of the combinations of cheese with chopped peppers, onions and other highly flavored foods can be used on toasted crackers as appetizers at a meal or for afternoon tea.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Have Children Any Rights?

DEAR Miss McDonald—Years ago a man and I were engaged to be married. On account of a difference in religion my aunt persuaded me to give him up. When I told him he said I could not love him very much to promise such a thing, and I would never see him again. Once, when he did call to see if he could do anything when my sister had an accident, he said for me to call him if I ever needed him. I was too proud to admit I needed him when the time came for me to pay alone for our mutual mistakes. I went away and he does not even know that I am raising our child alone.

I have been too busy working for the dearest little boy in the world to worry about the father, until this spring during a severe illness, I realized that if I died my son would be left entirely to strangers. I can not stop worrying about this. I feel that I must be assured of his willingness to keep an eye on his son before I can give my work the clear thought it requires. I can not tell him now. He has recently been married. I am taking the one chance in a hundred that he will see this article and answer through this column. What else can I do? ALONE.

The chances of the man's seeing your letter are slight. You owe some consideration to this child whose rights thus far you have completely and most selfishly ignored. He was entitled in the first place to a name, which you could have secured for him by sending for the man prior to his marriage. Due to your selfishness, the child faces life now with neither name nor future. Once more you are forcing the child to take all the chances, bear all the consequences of your acts. If you die the child faces years in some institution. And all that you may have the satisfaction of saying that you never sent for the man concerned. The utter callousness of such behavior is beyond the comprehension of the average mind.

If you know where the man is—and I take it you do, since you follow his movements sufficiently to know of his marriage—it is your duty to tell him of the existence of the boy. It seems invariably characteristic of those who most stress religious issues that the practical side of religion which embraces the rights of others, and duty toward others, means absolutely nothing to them. Their own little ideas, their own little god, their own little vanities, are all that matter to them. Others can pay for years in pain and sorrow, and they are not touched. Their way is all they ask and all that matters.

Visit a few orphanages, then decide whether your small son has any rights in a world where children pay for the pettiness, hatreds and intolerance of those who gave them birth.

Naturally, it is unfortunate for the wife of this man that such an unfortunate revelation should be made at this time. But if she is a real woman she will make the best of a situation that can not be altered. She is not the first, nor will she be the last, to face such a condition. If the man is wise he will tell her all about it. In any case, the adults concerned are well able to adjust themselves. It is the child only who counts. And of his rights there can be no question.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Shopping with Bab

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: People are coming home thick and fast now. Yesterday in the shops there were scores of suntanned women, who, in spite of the heat, were dashing about the displays of autumn attire, absorbing their first news of what is to be the thing this fall.

They were making purchases, too, for most women come back to town with nothing ready to wear on the first cool days, which are always just around the corner in September.

Glaser's Millinery Announces That —their workroom is now open for fall. This shop is better prepared than ever to give perfect service in remodeling your hats from last season, and doing any refreshing of millinery which you wish.

Glaser, 1532 Connecticut avenue, will give you prompt attention at all times, but even so, I advise that you take your hats in before the rush starts. Chiffon hose are One Dollar a pair.

Little Coats at The Baby Mode

—have matching bonnets or caps. A model in orchid wool has a sweet little bonnet edged in white fur. A very sporty-looking brown woolly coat and a gay one marked like squirrel fur have jaunty caps of the same warm, cozy material.

Little knitted sweater suits are in three pieces, and are in the loveliest colors. These are priced at $2.95. The Baby Mode, 1770 Columbia road.

Schwartz Have Coats This Autumn

—priced from $65 to $89.50. Modish woolens and tweeds in sports models, lavishly trimmed in smart furs, comprise the collection.

You have a right to expect something unusual in coats at this price, for Schwartz's reputation for gowns at small prices has grown space. An increasing patronage has learned to depend on the quality and styling of all models shown in this shop.

You will want a little dress to wear right now, so step in and select something for yourself. Velveteen bolero frocks in colors are $18. Wool laces are $29.75. Schwartz, 1325 Connecticut ave.

Margaret Gray Has Importations

—from Paris, which you will want to see before you decide on that important frock you have promised yourself.

Margaret Gray, 1702 Connecticut avenue, always has (just in case you happen to be new here) the most engaging of each season's creations. Women of discrimination like to select their wardrobes from Margaret Gray's. It is pleasant to sit in her attractive salon and view, in peace, the gowns which have arrived for your consideration.

At this season Margaret Gray has, as usual, original French things for sport wear, for day and evening, with new arrivals coming constantly.

Mme. Florenz Gave The First Showing —of fall fashions which has taken place on the Avenue this season. It was her initial showing, too, in the beautiful salon she has just opened on the second floor at 1145 Connecticut avenue.

Local girls acted as mannequins, and displayed during a two-hour review a collection of autumn models which surely represent the most approved of the favorite designs which have come out of Paris.

Mme. Florenz, a Parisian as you might imagine, is a stylist of note and a graduate of the Fashion Art School of Paris and New York, and has been associated here with Mme. Ash.

In her new establishment Mme. Florenz will feature attractive gowns priced from $15 to $59.50. Until you see the wonderful frocks at these prices, you will scarcely believe that they are actually obtainable.

Be sure to visit Mme. Florenz at once. You will be delighted with everything about her shop.

Affectionately,

Bab

Free wheeling Studebaker using Amoco-Gas breaks ALL records up Mt. Washington, N.H.

SINCE 1899, Mt. Washington—highest of New England's mountains—has been the target of all drivers of automobiles noted for their hill-climbing ability.

Up the eight miles of winding road, special racing cars and stock models have dashed to the summit and back for over thirty years. But last month, all records fell to the whirling wheels of a President 8 Studebaker with Ab Jenkins in the driver's seat!

From the Glen House to the Summit the free-wheeling Studebaker, a strictly stock car, covered the course in 14 minutes 23 seconds. This completely eclipsed not only the previous stock car record of 17 minutes but clipped almost half a minute from the fastest previous trip on record made by a special racing car.

Turning around at the Summit and dashing down the course again—an even more dangerous task at high speed than the climb—Ab Jenkins completed the round trip in 29 minutes 20 1/5 seconds—cutting more than 10 minutes from the existing round-trip record.

ALEXANDRIA DUEL VICTIMS IMPROVE

FUGITIVE NOW SOUGHT

Doctors in the Alexandria Hospital yesterday removed two bullets from Robert G. Brafford, 27 years old, of this city, shot by Patrolman John L. Stewart, who was also wounded in a pistol battle on the waterfront in Alexandria Sunday night.

Hospital authorities have pronounced the policeman as out of danger. The bullet which struck the policeman entered his back under the right shoulder blade and came out his chest.

Brafford, who is recovering, is under police guard at the hospital and is charged with felonious assault with intent to kill. The pistol battle took place on the wharf on South Strand street after the policeman tried to arrest the man.

Seeking Companion.

Capt. W. W. Campbell is searching for a companion of Brafford, who escaped in a rowboat after the policeman had been pushed from the wharf.

Capt. Campbell believes that Brafford's companion is a bootlegger. When arrested Brafford is alleged to have had a bottle of liquor in his possession. He lives on Third street near R street northwest.

Stewart is the fifth Alexandria policeman to be killed or injured while on duty in the past two years. Elton Hummer was killed on duty by an unknown assailant in August, 1928. Charles McClary was shot down in June, 1929, while trying to arrest a colored man.

Nine days ago a colored bandit killed A. Perry Pierce while resisting arrest. Whitfield Lipscomb died of injuries received when struck by a fire apparatus on September 4.

Double Patrol Urged.

Citizens of Alexandria have suggested to police authorities that patrolmen should go in pairs while patrolling the less frequented parts of the city. Because of the hazardous work in some sections, they pointed out, this precaution might curtail the unusually large number of casualties. Capt. Campbell is unable to put this plan into effect because of the small number of police he has to patrol the city.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

SINCE this is what in sports would be termed the crucial week, and Friday will see the termination, one way or the other, of the controversy that has been waging between the motion picture theater owners and the musicians for a month and a half now, I have made it a particular point these past few days to inquire of those whom I have thought might know how they think the squabble is coming out. Almost without exception they have professed the belief that everything will be smoothed over and nothing drastic will happen.

It is astonishing with what unanimity this view seems to prevail, and this despite the fact that the theater people have declared that they will concede nothing beyond what they have already offered the musicians, and the musicians, on the other hand, aver that they have spoken their last word and the mooted Clause V of the contract must stand —or else. The popular view that encompasses, for no tangible reason, a conviction that Friday will see everything adjusted, patently is based on a hunch.

I, also, have been of the opinion from the outset that something would be done before it is too late, but this attitude on my part has a substantial foundation in past experience in the same, or approximate, circumstances. Something always has been done.

So my friendly advice would be to bet that the musicians, stage hands, electricians, floor staffs, cashiers, janitors and everybody else hanging around the theaters will walk out and the houses close down permanently this week.

That's how good MY hunches are!

In case you were unable to identify the actress who played Pansy Gray's room mate in the early sequences of "Anybody's Woman," familiar as she looked at the Fox, it was Cecil Cunningham, former vaudeville soprano, frequently seen at Keith's, and wife of the late Jean Havez, author of the old song hit, "Everybody Works But Father," and for years publicist and chief gag man for Lew Dockstader and his minstrels.

But on another bit of more remote casting I am very much at sea—very much. It is, of course, perfectly clear in my mind that John Barrymore played Ahab in the silent version of "Moby Dick," presented under the title of "The Sea Beast," and that Dolores Costello, who afterward became Mrs. John Barrymore, played Faith, but who it was that appeared in the role of Derek in the earlier version of the thriller now at the Earle it seems to be beyond the power of what I laughingly term my memory to recall. It may have been Gareth Hughes, but I am a good deal more doubtful than I am sure about that.

However, it is of no importance beyond thwarting my intention to intimate how much better he was in the part than Lloyd Hughes, the present incumbent.

By the way, there will soon be another of these vivid whaling yarns on the local screen, if all goes well with the Friday confabbers. The bill assembled for the observance of the Fox Theater's third birthday anniversary, beginning Friday, September 19, has as its screen feature the new dialogue version of Jack London's much pictured tale of "The Sea Wolf," with Milton Sills in the stellar role of Wolf Larsen, and Helen Chandler as the girl.

And speaking of the Fox, that Eddie Pepperpot Peabody is certainly kept on the jump filling social engagements—if that is what they are. Tomorrow at 2:15 p. m. he will visit the United States Naval Hospital to cheer up the convalescents. This is an assignment that he particularly likes, since he is a former gob himself. At 6:30 he will be heard again over station WOL in a new program of songs and banjo numbers. On Thursday at noon he will be the guest of the Kiwanis Club at luncheon at the Hotel Washington

It has come to my positive knowledge that the widely circulated report that one of the union projectionists in a downtown, first-run theater employs only nonunion projectionists in an outlying house which he operates independently, is nothing but a base calumny of deepest dye and that whoever started the rumor is a big dyer—or something!

It appears that the projectionists in the house in question are members in good standing of a recognized auxiliary of the union and are sanctioned by the national body.

George Rothwell Brown: "And up the street from the drug store corner, on the west side of Thirteenth street, between E and F streets, where the Fox Theater now stands * * *"

So that merger must have gone through after all—eh, George?

July being what it was, and September being what it is, October's Indian summer ought not to go over 112, do you think?

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—In a deluge of selling, wheat prices today plunged below 80c a bushel, touching the bottommost level since 1907, barring only 1914. Word that a big increase of the United States wheat visible supply had brought the total up to a new high record did much to pull the market down. Selling was also induced by an official statement that $30,000,000 bank credit which the grain stabilization corporation had obtained would be used to refinance the corporation's present holdings of wheat and not for new purchasing.

Despite early upturns in quotations wheat closed unsettled at nearly the day's lowest point. ¼@⅝c under Saturday's finish. Corn closed ⅜@1⅛c off, oats varying from ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

Downturns of wheat prices today not only resulted in fresh bottom records for wheat but for rye and oats as well. The pressure on the wheat market was chiefly manifest after advices indicated the domestic visible supply total today would be heavily enlarged. Even so, few traders were prepared for the final announcement near the end of the day that domestic stocks had augmented 7,585,000 bushels during the last week, more than double the increase of the week preceding and almost seven times as much as was the case at this juncture a year ago.

With the United States wheat visible supply today reaching a total of more than 198,000,000 bushels the largest amount ever known, sellers were greatly in a majority as the day drew to an end with buyers relatively few. Earlier, the reverse was true, owing a good deal to a 5,000,000 bushels curtailment of the amount of wheat on ocean passage and to Argentine reports of dry weather unfavorable for crop prospects. At first also, traders friendly to higher prices for wheat were encouraged by announcements that the grain stabilization corporation had obtained a $30,000,000 credit, through which Chicago and New York banks would advance 80 per cent of the market value of grain, whereas Canadian banks are loaning but 60 per cent to the traders friendly to higher prices for Canadian growers' pool.

On the resulting bulges in wheat prices, however, selling increased especially from sources Northwest and the depressing effect of the huge increase of the United States visible supply was added to by the fact that export business today in North American wheat amounted to only about 300,000 bushels, virtually all of it Canadian.

Corn averaged lower, sympathizing with wheat toward the last, although earlier the corn market displayed firmness at times as a result of spreaders buying corn against sales of wheat. New investment buying helped to steady the oats market.

Provisions rose on account of scattered demand from previous sellers.

MISS MYSTERIOUS - - - By Larry Lawrence

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A co-ed at the State university, affectionately known as Babe, gets a letter from her guardian, Clement Forseith, of Seattle, Wash., saying he has lost all her money and is going to commit suicide. He also says that her real name is not Thelma Townley, as she has always believed. But he gives no further clew to her identity. She confides to a friend, Violet Kimmel. A handsome young man from the West Coast appears and says he knows of her trouble and proposes that she marry him as a way out. A telegram warns her against this man, who uses the name Morgan. At a fraternity dance Pete Jones, Milwaukee senior, proposes. Babe turns him down. He says he has seen suspicious characters following her. The same night she is kidnaped. Pete rescues her from the kidnapers, takes her to his father's summer home. The captured kidnapers escape and Babe and Pete have to flee from them. They spend the night in hiding in a small shack. Getting back to Milwaukee the next day, Babe sends Pete back to school, saying that she must go West and fight to learn her real name, but she decides to stay in Milwaukee and get a job. She learns that her room at college has been robbed and two old brooches taken. After days of search she fails to land a job. Coming into the lobby of the hotel where she is staying under the name of Theodora Thomas, she is seen by a man who offers her a strange job. She accepts. They go to a gambling resort and the man, who uses the name Mac, tells her to vamp a man he indicates. The man is Morgan. She goes to his apartment and he says that Forseith is not dead. Morgan then makes violent love to Babe and she accidentally shoots him. She is found in his apartment by Mac, who searches the room and finds the brooches that were stolen from Babe. Morgan disappears and Mac tells Babe that he is searching for a murderer. By comparing notes they decide it is Forseith and they are certain that it was Forseith who had her kidnaped. Babe decides to get her picture in the papers as a lure to Forseith. She feigns amnesia and is taken to the Emergency Hospital for mental observation. Gus, leader of the kidnapers, learns this and drives to the hideout of a Chicago gangster to get Forseith, known as The Duke. Mac is waiting outside the hospital to protect Babe when he suddenly realizes that he is in love with her. An automobile draws up.

Mac sees the Duke go into the hospital. He follows. The Duke tries to fool authorities into believing he is the uncle of the mystery girl, but fails and leaves. He gets a look at Mac and decides that he is a menace. The next morning Pete sees a paper with Babe's picture in it.

He gets Violet and they race to Milwaukee. Babe is released by police when she "recovers" her memory at the sight of them.

When Mac finds Babe he holds her in his arms and kisses her; she returns his caress. Pete and Violet are told about the hoax and about Forseith. Pete and Mac realize that they are rivals. Babe can not determine which she loves the more. She tells Mac she is going to play into the hands of Forseith in one more attempt to learn his game.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN.

"You didn't mind me going with Morgan!" Babe shot back at him.

"That was different—and besides, well I wasn't in love with you then."

"And you are now?" Babe seemed startled.

"You know I am."

"This is the first time you have mentioned it."

"Babe! You know I love you. You know I do."

"How do I know?"

"You know. You knew, there in the hall. I couldn't help it. I had to take you in my arms. I was so happy that you were out of that rotten police station. And you kissed me."

"I was nervous, excited. I didn't know what I was doing."

"Babe, I thought you knew. I was happy. Happy."

"Let's not talk about that now. I'm ashamed. I should not have done it. Honestly I didn't know what I was doing."

"But I want to talk about it. It was the most wonderful moment of my life. I saw everything differently. I would never have believed that one moment could change me entirely, but it has. Babe, listen to me. It has changed me. I am willing for your sake to forget revenge, forget hatred."

"Why, Mac, I'm ashamed of you. If I thought I admired you a lot, and I did, it was because you were so strong, so commanding. I even admired your hatred. Now you are turning soft because I forgot myself for a second. How could I love a man who could be turned from a purpose by a woman's kiss?

"We are partners in a man hunt, not in a candy kitchen. And even if you are willing to stop the hunt, I—am—not. For my part I am more determined than ever. Mac, can't you see that I've got to learn who I am, even if I learn that I am a waif, a foundling, it will be better than to go on in this way, never knowing?"

"Babe, when one is young things seem so much more important. For years, as I have already told you, the only important thing in my life was revenge. I cut myself off from human contacts to earn money and to save it, just so I could get that revenge. And now that I am close to it," (he waved his hand) "it is not half so important. And I am not getting soft either. I am just getting a broader outlook. You have given me that. I can see us happy together, useful in this world, rearing useful, healthy children."

"You certainly are a far sighted person," Babe said, and there was a sting in the way she said it. "You have not even seen fit to tell me your right name. I can't tell you mine because I do not know it. Oh, can't you see that I can never let a man talk love to me until I can tell who I am and where I came from?"

"Babe, I can see how you feel; how important it seems to you! And I am willing to do anything in the world I can do to help you. But promise me, Babe, when we learn that you will marry me."

"Mac, I can't bargain myself off. What a strange situation. A few days ago I was working for you, a sort of female lure and detective. Now, it seems, you are working for me. And the object of my search is the same person you hate. And now you want me in payment for your help."

"No, Babe; now you are still working for me. You have a way of making me seem wrong. Babe, all I want is to see you happy. Suppose we forget all that we have just said and go on to work.

"When we have found all that we can find, then may I speak?" Babe's answer was to lean over and kiss him briefly on the cheek.

There was a silence. Then Babe shook her head. "I should not have done that, Mac. I guess I am an unscrupulous woman. It looked like I was giving you an answer. All I meant was that I think you are a dear. And I like you. Maybe I like you more than I should, but I am not going to give any answer until I have gone the limit in my search. And that limit will never be reached as long as I have any life in me, unless the search is finished.

"When I can stand up before the whole world and say, 'I am who I am, my father was such and such a person and my mother was so and so,' then, if you want to ask me to marry you I will be ready to listen.

"But I've got a confession to make. I am very fond, just as a friend, of Pete. He asked me to marry him and I have told him just what I am telling you this minute.

"Now if you want to go on and help me, or if you want to go on with your plans I am ready. But, as for pay, your paying me to help you—that's out. I have a few dollars of my own. A very few. You may go on paying expenses since it is part your search, too, but that's all.

"If you don't want to continue that way then we must dissolve partnership here and now and I'll go it alone. I'll go back to my original plan, get a job, any kind, and earn my way and expenses. I ought to be able to take care of myself? I am 21 years old now. I had a birthday just the other day."

"You didn't tell me!"

"It was the day I met you. I guess you were a sort of a birthday present—a good sort."

Mac laughed. "Well, I'm glad to be called a good sort. And you know what my answer is. What you say from now on goes. I'm here to finish my job, the job I started long years ago and I am also here to see you through with your mission in life. Then maybe we can talk about yet another, and I think, a much more real, worth-while mission. I didn't know love was going to be anything like this."

"And I don't know what love is, I guess," Babe shook her head. "I must be honest with you. I have thought a dozen times that I was in love with you. And every time I suddenly decided that I was not and suspected that it was Pete I loved. Tell me, Mac, how can any one be like that?"

"I can't tell you, Babe. I have never loved a girl before. I have had a few infatuations as a boy, but they didn't last, and since I have been a man, well, I mean old enough to be a man, I have not permitted myself to think of love. It just came over me in the few days I have known you.

"Life certainly is funny. I guess every one who has lived to reach the age of 9 has made that sage remark several hundred times, so I don't claim it is original, but it is funny. The more I think of it the wilder and stranger our lives seem to be.

"No, I can't tell you, Babe. But I can tell you this. I hope that love will hit you as hard as it has hit me, and that I will be the cause of it. That it will be love for me. If it isn't, well, I want you to be happy and I will be willing to give you up to another if I think he is worthy."

"Mac, you are the swellest fellow I know. It sounds slangy, but I mean it. You are worth loving. I almost wish I could love you now and could forget my oath to myself. But, Mac, that would be the softy's way out. I don't want to be a softy. I want to be a woman who is not afraid. A woman who would dare anything to do what she thinks is righ' And Mac, sometimes while I lie awake and think it all out, I feel that my father would want me to be like that. I think that my father would want me to show courage and not go creeping off to the protection of a man's arms.

"Then my fear for what I may find evaporates and I know that I will find I had a real man for a father. A fighter, a square man. When I was a little kid and had to make up to my parents it was my mother I thought most about. She was a wonderful, romantic mother, kind, generous, loving. I didn't think so much about my father.

"But now I am thinking more of my dad, leaning on him for strength. Gee, Mack, if I should find that he was a weakling, a no account, I believe it would kill me. But I won't find that. He may have been a—a—I don't know—only a sailor, but I'll bet he was a tough sailor. I mean a hardy, fighting sailor."

Mac did not interrupt her flood of feeling. He seemed closer to her than he had ever felt before. He wanted to stroke her gorgeous hair, pet her as he would a child.

"I certainly am talking a lot," Babe laughed, a mirthless laugh. "But, Mac, it has done me good to say these things. I've had 'em bottled up in me ever since I got that letter from the cursed scoundrel. And now maybe you can understand better why I will not give up—why I will not talk about love."

"Yes, I do understand," Mac said. "I understand and will try not to make it any more difficult for you. I'll try to keep still and saw wood. And now, dear, er, Babe, let's make some definite plans, if we can."

"That's it, Mac. Some definite plans. They are never out of mind but all I can think of is getting hold of Forseith and making him tell me the truth. But how can we get hold of him?

"Since I can't think of any way of grabbing him, the next best thing seems to let him get hold of me. That will be easy, I guess. I imagine that even now that half pint gangster is dodging around to see when one of us leaves here. Well, all I would have to do is walk up to him and say 'here I am. What are you going to do about it.' He doesn't look so dangerous to me. In fact, he is rather kind at heart I know. He hated to hit me on the head. He hated to ram that gag in my mouth.

"I have thought a dozen times that I should never have resisted. I might have found out by this time if I hadn't been rescued."

"But Babe, the runt is not the brains of this affair. He is not the one you will have to deal with. He doesn't know a thing, except that you are supposed to be delivered like so much jewelry to his master."

"Oh, I know that, but they won't kill me. At least I don't think they'll kill me."

"No, perhaps not. But they may. If they don't get whatever it is they're after. You can't be sure. I tell you Forseith has killed once. Whether he has killed more than once I do not know, but if he was ever capable of murder he is still capable of it.

"And, Babe, there are things worse than murder. You know what I mean?"

"Yes, yes, I know."

A picture of Gus, leering, advancing upon her loomed big in her mental vision and she shuddered. Babe had not told Mac of those few seconds when her blood froze with fear, when Pete, dazed as he was from the blow on his head, fought off his coma and leaping to the attack, saved her. She did not tell him now. But she steeled herself again.

"Well, Mac, it's not because I'm a girl Forseith has made this outlandish gesture to get me. No. He has another reason. It's beyond my powers to figure it out. If he had wanted to get me all he needed to do was write and ask me to come to him while I still believed him to be my guardian. I thought it queer that he never asked me to see him. And then he framed his elaborate exit from this world to reappear as another man." Mac broke in: "I think the man is crazy. Shrewd, probably. Certainly a crook, a thief. Insane. Yes, insane. Brooding on his evils may have sharpened his wits and destroyed his balance.

"That's one reason I do not want you to be alone with him, ever. He may be completely insane. You know that insane men have managed to put over big deals, go on for years before their insanity has been discovered."

This thought had not presented itself to Babe. It was more forbidding than any she had had. And it seemed logical.

"What are we to do, then?" she asked. "We can't sit around idle while he's here. We don't dare. Even if we do nothing, he'll not be idle."

"I've got it," Mac said. "It just came to me. You gave me the idea some time ago, but it's just now registering. "We'll catch the runt, that little shadow of Forseith's, and we'll make him lead us to Forseith."

Mac was on his feet. "I'll go now. You stay here and wait. I'll be back in ten minutes. Even if it takes a little longer, you stay here. Keep your door locked until I give a little short rap followed by a loud one."

He was out the door almost before he had finished. Babe waited.

Ten minutes passed. She consulted her wrist watch again. The next five minutes seemed like an hour; she looked at her watch again. It was still ticking, but the hands seemed slow to move.

A half hour passed. It was becoming torture. But still she waited. Now she was walking back and forth, back and forth.

"Will he never come? Oh, God! what's happened?"

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to start the inclosed flowers, which apparently are growing on a tree.
MRS. W. E. W.

The bigonia or trumpet vine is propagated by cuttings or layering. The cuttings are best made in late spring from strong shoots and are rooted in sand. This vine is useful for draping dead trees.

This spring I planted a wisteria vine. It was slow in coming up, but now is growing splendidly. I just noticed that the tips of the leaves are wilting. What causes this and how can I prevent it?
EDWIN G. S.

Give the vine more water. It will be best to water it every day. Scatter enough bonemeal over the soil to whiten it, then apply water to wash it down to the feeding roots.

I just received a poinsettia from a friend who didn't have much time to care for it. How shall I water it?
MARIE C. C.

A poinsettia must be watered every day. The tops should be frequently sprayed with cold water. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope I shall be glad to send you a circular we have prepared for readers of this column on "The Care of the Poinsettia."

Is a spruce tree dead when it loses all its needles? A weigelia which bloomed rather profusely this past spring is now losing its leaves, though new shoots are pushing out from the roots.

There may be some life in the root of your spruce tree, but surely all its beauty is gone when the needles have dropped off. Where this occurs nothing can be done to restore its beauty, so the best thing to do is to uproot it and plant another specimen in its place. A weigelia should be pruned immediately after it has finished flowering. Better keep the bush well watered and in the late fall spray it with bordeaux mixture.

Please examine the inclosed rose leaves and tell me what the trouble is and also a remedy. I don't want to lose the bushes.
BETTY.

Your roses are attacked by black spot. Better dust them with Massey dust. This is a preparation composed of nine parts of powdered sulphur and one part of lead arsenate. The dust must be applied in such a manner that it covers both sides of the leaves and all of the stems. Apply it when the foliage is damp, so it will be sure to adhere. You will have to make several applications several days apart. It will also be necessary to go over the plants each day and collect and burn all fallen leaves or flowers. It is a very contagious disease, and this is one way to prevent the spread of the malady.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed flower. Also the name of the inclosed stem and leaves, and if I am not asking more than my share of questions tell me why my lilac, which is five years old and healthy does not bloom.
MRS. W. H. D.

The plant of which you inclosed a flower is a sweet william. The leaves and stem are from a variety of hardy shrub. With no futher description it is impossible to identify the variety. Better give your lilac bush some bonemeal at this time. Scatter a sufficient quantity over the soil to whiten it, then apply water to wash it under. You need not be afraid of using too much bonemeal.

ROBINS TAKE FULL GAME LEAD AS CUBS DIVIDE PAIR

Westbrook Pegler Says

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 15.—With a number of the St. Louis Cardinals lolling in ringside chairs awaiting the opening of their series on the Brooklyn grounds Tuesday, Uncle Wilbert Robinson's Nonsense Boys went in for broad humor in the closing game of their series with Salvation Dan Howley's Cincinnati reclamation class today, winning their eleventh consecutive game amid sounds of hilarity. They made seventeen hits, all told, including four apiece for Babe Herman and Del Bissonette, and the score was 13 to 5.

As in their previous game, the Nonsense Boys staked the Cincinnatis to three runs in the first inning to make their tricks look harder, but even so, the winning seemed more a prank than an effort.

Hack-Drivers' Holiday For Cards.

Being disengaged for a day after their brief series in Boston, the Cardinals declared a hackdriver's holiday and gathered together in a section of box seats, which were in no great demand of a Monday, to scout the Robins. They went away baffled, however, because it didn't seem reasonable to suppose that shy ball club could be as goofy as the Robins without a conscious effort to be goofy. "They wouldn't fool us, would they?" inquired Mr. Branch Rickey, much puzzled.

The result was decided before the first inning ended. Salvation Dan's earnest band of missing men took their places on defense feeling right proud of their three runs and looking a little startled, like men who hadn't known their own strength. Yawning Bob Meusel had busted a home run into the slum quarter of the two-bit seats and another run had scored when Stripp and Cuccinello doubled.

Ray Moss, the starting pitcher for Uncle Wilbert's clowns, was then relieved, and Lefty Clark came in to face Harry Heilman, an old former ex-ball player himself. Heilman lined out, but Ford singled and Cuccinello arrived with the third run. Johnny Gooch then fouled out, closing the incident, and the fun began to transpire, although it took a few minutes to prepare the situation.

Wright's Homer Only Moral One.

With one man out, Gilbert walked and Herman sent him to second with a single. The customers, about 10,000, at a generous guess, were twisting their score cards and projecting their necks in eager expectancy when Glenn Wright, the principal brain of the Brooklyn Team, hit a moral home run on the bounce into the circus seats in center field. Mr. Meusel's snores broke off as the ball approached, but he had been sleeping pretty soundly out yonder, and he just ran along behind the baseball with its night shirt flapping around his shanks and shooed it over the low fence on the bounce as the Athletes on the bases went into their comic routine.

Herman waited on first and Gilbert dallied on second as though expecting Meusel to catch the ball, which was a delicate touch of humor in itself, when Wright gamboled past Herman yelling, "Get out of the way and let a guy run that can run." So yelling, he passed Herman, who presently got going himself and scored behind Gilbert, but the umpires had to inform Wright that he was out for passing a preceding runner on the bases.

This reduced the moral home run to a technical single and, there being no better way to account for a put-out in which nobody handled the baseball, it was decided to give the

Fitzsimmons Pitches Giants to 6-1 Victory

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Fred Fitzsimmons' three-hit pitching turned back the Pirates and broke New York's five-game losing streak, the Giants winning 6 to 1 in the final game of the year between the two clubs today. The result left the season's series standing at: Giants, 14; Pirates, 8.

Bill Terry packed the Giants' big bat, pounding out four hits in five times at the plate. Included in his assortment of blows was triple, a double and two singles.

Lloyd Waner's infield out sent in the only Pirate run in the third and saved Pittsburgh from a shutout.

This is the third of a series of articles analyzing the strength of the possible world series rivals.

(Famous Statistician).

WITH Rogers Hornsby on the shelf during the greater portion of the season, and with the consequent lack of any significant record for the Rajah for this year, any attempt to compare rival second basemen in the impending world's series must perforce be qualified. Hornsby's enforced absence from Memorial Day until after Labor Day left the race for keystone honors very much of a free-for-all.

Hornsby's bat, had it functioned this season with the same gusto that characterized its past performances, would probably have overshadowed even Frankie Frisch's enviable .344 mark which was good enough to top the field of seven contending second basemen. Defensively, even though Hornsby has unquestionably slowed down considerably, his 1929 fielding average of .976 was good enough to top Max Bishop by 7 points, so there is no reason to suppose that he wouldn't have at least been among the leaders this season.

And the important thing to remember is that Hornsby is now back in harness and will be cavorting around second base if the Cubs land on top of the heap again.

He is certain to be an improvement over Clarence Blair. Blair did a noble job of filling Hornsby's shoes through three full months of the season; he fielded brilliantly and his hits, while not so numerous, were timely. But the fact remains, Blair's .274 batting average is a little more than 100 points short of Hornsby's, when the Rajah is hitting on all cylinders.

Frisch's ability has frequently been tested under fire, and his record this year makes it certain that the Cards will have first-class protection around second against the A's, in case they nose the Cubs out. As for the other National League possibilities, the Giants and the Robins, the second basing of the former is the best in the world defensively but only mediocre offensively, while Brooklyn's keystone guardians have been above the average at the plate, with little or nothing to recommend them defensively.

Critz Is Dazzling Fielder.

Hughie Critz is a dazzling fielder, who perennially accepts more chances than any of his rivals, but who always falls short with the stick. Jake Flowers and Neal Finn, of the Dodgers, are both good stickwielders, but neither is in a class with Frisch or Critz defensively.

The American League entry in the second-basing race is pretty certain to be "Camera-Eye" Max Bishop, with Buddy Myer a possibility. This pair are about on a par defensively, and their respective averages of .975 and

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns and the Boston Red Sox divided a double-header this afternoon, the Browns winning the first game, 3 to 1, and the Red Sox taking the second in eleven innings, 2-1.

In the first game the Browns went scoreless six innings, tied the count at 1-1 in the seventh and won in the eighth when Goslin got his thirty-second home run of the season. In the second game the Red Sox went scoreless until the ninth when they tied the count 1-1. They scored the winning run in the eleventh when Oliver singled, advanced on Scarritt's bunt and went home on Blue's wild throw.

Sorrell Has Bad Frame, Yanks Beat Tigers, 5-3

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Vic Sorrell had just one bad inning today, but the four runs scored by New York in that inning were enough to give the Yankees a 5-to-3 decision over the Detroit Tigers. The fifth Yankee run came in the ninth off Cantrell.

Roy Sherid, making his third start in the series, was hard hit, but managed to keep the Tigers' eleven blows well scattered. Detroit had runners on the bases in every inning except two, but Sherid managed to wiggle through the bad spots with the aid of some brilliant fielding, which included a one-hand leaping catch near the screen by Combs in the fourth. Two singles, a double, a triple and a base on balls combined to give the Yankees four runs in the second. Sorrell had them helpless in every other inning.

the cup on this side of the Atlantic.

The betting tonight favored Enterprise to make a clean sweep or, at the very worst, to clinch the series in no more than five races, barring accidents or a sudden turn of racing luck. Skill and not luck has been the deciding factor so far.

The third race is slated to be sailed tomorrow, with the customary proviso as to weather conditions, in spite of the challenger's decision to make more changes in her ballast in a desperate effort to regain much-needed speed. In some secrecy, approximately 2,000 pounds of lead ballast were removed prior to today's race.

The challenger also was hastily remeasured to make sure she still came within the race specifications. It was a vain measure, however, for the Shamrock still performed sluggishly in a breeze from about six to ten knots. There was still some doubt concerning the real ability of the Shamrock as the pleasure fleet, substantially reduced in size over the week-end, sailed out to watch the second duel of seamanship and billowing canvas this morning. Many felt that, beaten by slightly less than three minutes on Saturday, the challenger had not quite done her best; that she had been outmaneuvered at the start and thereby lost a good chance to win. Her crew was hopeful the changes in ballast would prove effective.

Challenger Napping At Outset.

But as the armada scrambled hazardously and slowly back to port through a heavy fog this afternoon, there were few who held out even a faint hope for the Shamrock's ability to come back and make a race of it under almost any conditions. The challenger again was caught napping at the outset by Vanderbilt's quickness. She was again outmaneuvered in the windward beat. She was badly outfooted and outpointed before the breeze that kicked up occasional whitecaps.

There was hardly anything in Shamrock's performance today worth a cheer, except on the last leg, where the green sloop made up perhaps half a mile with a better break of wind. At the time, however, the race was lost beyond recall, barring accident, and Enterprise ran away again with an added lift of canvas making up lost ground and adding to it.

The most exciting features of the entire race were crowded into the first dozen minutes in which Skipper Vanderbilt scored what proved to be a decisive blow to his rival, Capt. Ernest (Ted) Heard. The start, in contrast to Saturday's foggy delays, was exactly on the minute at 10:40 a. m. (Eastern standard time), and Enterprise's skipper judged his getaway to the split second, while Shamrock dawled behind for some unaccountable reason, losing nearly a minute's precious time.

Flying Start Big Aid To Enterprise.

Enterprise's flying start paid immediate dividends. Vanderbilt had so substantial a lead that he was able to tack quickly and get to weather of his rival in a smart maneuver that put Shamrock unexpectedly at a crushing disadvantage. In effect, the challenger was in a sea-going trap. It was a cat-and-mouse game after that for the whole 10-mile beat to the first mark.

Shamrock tacked and tacked again in vain attempts to shake herself loose from Enterprise's grip. Until the turning buoy was close at hand, however, Vanderbilt never relinquished any part of his control. In fact, Shamrock lost ground steadily in coming about so often. To cap the climax, the challenger misjudged her ability to shave the mark closely. She failed to go high enough on the

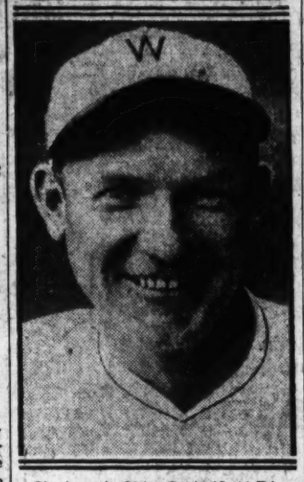
SOLD TO REDS



Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Nick Cullop, Minneapolis, champion home-run hitter of the American Association, was purchased today by the Cincinnati Reds for a sum which Sidney Weil, Reds' president, did not disclose. Cullop has been ordered to report immediately to Manager Dan Howley in Boston. He has hit 55 home runs this year and is batting over .370.

Cullop was obtained from the Yankees by the Nationals during the winter of 1926 and tried for a berth with the Washington Club in 1927. He failed to make the grade, not hitting particularly well and proving himself to be only a mediocre fielder, later being sent to the Cleveland Indians on waivers and failing to finish out the season there.

"Sophomore's Year" On Dixie Gridirons

This season might well be called "sophomore's year." Probably no other campaign in recent years has found so many positions vacant on Southern teams with first-year varsity men having the inside track on obtaining these posts.

The unusually large number of seniors who hung up their moleskins last year and the equally unusual quantity of promising sophomores have combined to give the newcomers a great opportunity to break into the first-string ranks.

Five sophomores are found in one of the first tentative line-ups formed at Vanderbilt. They are about evenly divided in the line and back field, and sophomores have helped to give Vandy its best reserve strength in years. Georgia has contributed two of the most likely sophomores to make their bid at the Nashville school in Julian Foster, an end, and Fortune, a full back.

Small Center Squad Faces Hard Schedule

Danville, Ky., Sept. ... (A.P.).—Centre College, State S. I. A. A. champions last year, will have one of the smallest squads in its history for what probably is the hardest schedule ever arranged for the college that gained fame during the days of "Bo" McMillan.

Coach Edwin Kubale believes that he has the best back field material of any Kentucky S. I. A. A. team and he expects the line to be materially strengthened by the addition of three of last year's frosh team. But with a total squad of approximately 25 men, Kubale fears difficulty in keeping the gridmen in condition for the hard games scheduled.

October 4 Centre plays Tennessee and a week later meets Chattanooga, 1929 S. I. A. A. champions. In order the following weeks come St. Xavier, Northwestern, Louisville, Wabash, Transylvania, Kansas Aggies (now coached by "Bo" McMillan) and Georgetown, Ky.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Encouraged by the shaky infield play of its opponents, the Washington run-scoring machine went into quantity production this afternoon to smother the White Sox, 14 to 9, in the closing game of their final series.

The victory, achieved at the expense of Ted Lyons, who was seeking his twenty-second victory of the season, gave the Nats the series by a margin of 3 to 1 and permitted them to leave Chicago still so far in front of the third-place Yankees that there is now hardly a chance of the gap being closed before the end of the season. As the Mackmen were idle, their lead was reduced to seven games.

Idle Cardinals See Leaders Gain 13-5 Triumph.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins increased their hold on first place in the hot National League pennant race to a full game over the idle Cardinals and a game and a half over the Cubs today, when they won their eleventh straight victory at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds.

Many of the Cardinals, who open an all-important three games series at Ebbetts' Field tomorrow, sat in the stands while the Brooklyn sluggers hit four Cincinnati pitchers hard to win a 13 to 5 decision, while the Cubs were dividing a double bill with the Phillies.

Reds Again Open With 3-Run Lead.

For the second day in succession, the Reds scored three runs in the first inning, knocking the Robins' starting pitcher out of the box. Moss was the victim today, but, as in Sunday's game, a Brooklyn southpaw stepped to the rescue and won, Watson Clark allowing the Reds only two runs for the remainder of the game.

The Robins were quick to overcome Cincinnati's advantage, however, scoring six runs in their half of the first inning, despite some weird base running. The rally found Glen Wright credited with only a single on a drive deep into the left-center bleachers. He was declared out for passing Babe Herman on the base paths. Red Lucas was driven from the mound, but the Robins continued their attack on Benton. The latter went the way of Lucas in the fourth, while Frey, his successor, left the mound in the fifth. May finished the game.

Robins Make Series Sweep.

The game ended the season's operations between the two clubs. As the result of its clean sweep of the last four games the Robins took thirteen of the 22 games played.

Cubs and Phils Split as Wilson Gets His 50th

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—With a chance to gain valuable ground in the feverish pennant race, the Cubs could only split a double bill with the Phillies today, losing the first 12-11 and winning the second 6-4. They slipped to a game and a half behind the winning Robins and a half game behind the Cards.

Lefty O'Doul's home run with one out in the ninth and the score deadlocked at 11-11, decided a hectic, exciting first game in which both clubs overcame apparently insurmountable leads.

Bush Whole Show In Second.

Guy Bush was the whole show for the Cubs in the second tilt and held the Phils in the palm of his hand until they rallied in the ninth to score three runs. On the other hand,

40 HUSKY G. U. FRESHMEN REPORT FOR FOOTBALL

High and Prep School Stars In Group

Mills Lightens Drill for Varsity Squad at Camp.

VIRTUAL assurance that Georgetown University will not suffer from lack of capable football players for its varsity elevens the next three years was received yesterday at the Hilltop where about 40 husky young men among the incoming freshmen class reported for practice.

After watching them undergo a light workout, Georgetown athletic enthusiasts declared the new yearlings to be the most promising crop of gridmen to enter the Hilltop institution in four years.

Drawing especial attention among those who came with big high school reputations was Dick Lutz, 170-pound half back, who hails from Chicago. Playing with the Tilden High School Eleven last year, Lutz won a position on the all-Illinois scholastic team.

Dashiell Closely Watched.

"Whitey" Dashiell, 20-year-old Alexandria, Va., player, formerly of the United States Marines, was another whose work was watched closely. Dashiell, who practiced with the varsity candidates at Point Lookout the last two weeks, is far advanced in his training, and for this reason he holds an edge on his rivals for freshmen berths.

From Uniontown, Pa., were Roy Gucker, 190-pound tackle, and Dick Bradley, a half back, who tips the beam at 175. This pair were sensations in Pennsylvania schoolboy grid ranks last fall.

Mickey Leoni, a speedy half back, reported from Stamford, Conn., the home town of Johnny Scalzi, the Hilltop varsity quarter back. Leoni, according to reports, has the qualities that will enable him to rival Scalzi when he becomes eligible for varsity competition next year.

Heavy Linesmen On Squad.

Joe O'Neill, 200-pound guard or tackle, from Wilmington, N. J.; Jack Rowan, an end weighing 180, from New York City; Tom Carolan, another bulky flankman, of Asbury Park, N. J., and Jim Murphy, 195-pound end from Sharon, Pa., were others among the squad whose fine scholastic "reps" had preceded their appearance.

The Hilltop freshmen eleven this year will play two local opponents' the yearlings of George Washington and Maryland universities. These games doubtless will stir up much interest among the fans.

Mills Delays Hard Workout.

Special to The Washington Post.

Point Lookout, Md., Sept. 15.—Owing to the presence of numerous cases of "charley horse," Head Coach Tommy Mills eased up on the Georgetown varsity football candidates here today. The anticipated scrimmage sessions were called off and in their stead the players went through dummy scrimmage and forward pass drills.

Mills plans to restore hard scrimmaging to the training program on Wednesday, hoping that the injured players will have recovered by that time.

There are three, however, whose ailments are of such nature as to prevent their participation in rough work for another week and maybe longer. They are Johnny Bozek, half back, and Joe Bandzul, guard, both of whom are on crutches, and Ray Hudson, who is being treated for an infection of the foot.

American U. Football Squad Adds Material

Academic enrollments at American University yesterday brought additional football candidates to Coach Walter Young, four players reporting to bring the personnel of the Eagle squad up to 16.

The newcomers are George Dorsarl, half back, formerly of Bucksport, (Me.) Academy; Lee Esper, a guard, from Altoona, Pa.; Carl Levin, tackle, who played on the Eagle team in 1928, and Forrest Diehl, regular end last year.

Sad news was mixed with the good when Young heard that two of his prospective regulars were declared ineligible by the school heads. Richard Jarvis, half back, and Robert Fuchs, quarter back, are the pair who were counted out by the classroom referee.

JEM WINNER IN CHICAGO FEATURE

Jem Leads From Start and Pays $17.04 for $2 Ticket.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Jem, Mrs. E. Denemark's consistent colt, won his fifth consecutive victory when he captured the Sun Flower Purse here today over a heavy track. The son of Friar Rock, seeming to revel in the going, won all the way, leading Typhoon to the finish by eight lengths with Fleche d'Argent five lengths further back.

The race was worth $1,200 to the winning stable and the time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:51 2-5.

Jem was off first and showing a decided liking for the heavy track, increased his lead at every pole to win as his rider pleased. Typhoon, the favorite, was in close quarters on the first turn, got through on the inside on the back stretch to reach a contending position and racing Golden Auburn into defeat went on to take the place easily. Fleche d'Argent, far back at the start, closed well in the stretch drive to take the show from Golden Auburn by a neck.

The mutuels on Jem was $17.04 to $2.

Belmont Park Race Track, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Over a very muddy track Frank Brown's Bud Broom, ridden by E. Watters, won the Beh Brush Handicap, all ages, here today. M. Shea's Sandy Ford was second and the Arden Farm's Sun Edwin third. The heavy rain of Saturday and Sunday made the track very muddy, with the result the program was blue penciled to the extent that the third, fourth and fifth races were reduced to three starters.

In the Ben Brush Handicap the three horses got away to a good start and Sandy Ford went right to the front, with Sun Edwin second and Bud Broom third. Sandy Ford held a slight lead over Bud Broom around the turn, while Sun Edwin dropped right out of it, being unable to run in the mud. Bud Broom took command when ready and held on gamely to win by a head in the good time of 1:38 3-5.

BOBBY JONES IN EXHIBITION AT COLUMBIA TODAY

5,000 Crowd Expected at Benefit

MacDonald Smith to Have McLeod for His Partner.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ALL arrangements have been completed for the exhibition four-ball golf match to be played this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, on the course of the Columbia Country Club between Bobby Jones, with Roland Mackenzie as his partner, and Macdonald Smith, runner-up to Jones in the 1930 British open and American open, and Fred McLeod, the veteran professional of the host club.

This will mark the first appearance here of the incomparable "Bobby" since April of 1928, when, paired with Philip Finlay, he beat Mackenzie and Jess Sweetser, 3 and 2, shooting a phenomenal 72 in rain, sleet, hail and snow, in a benefit for the Olympic fund.

President to Receive Golfers.

Jones, who is the holder of twelve major golf titles, a record unequaled in golfing annals, will arrive here this morning from Atlanta. At noon, he, Smith, Mackenzie and McLeod will be received by President Hoover at the White House and then they will be escorted to the Columbia Club.

After lunch and shortly before 2 o'clock they will be taken to the first tee, where they will be introduced to the gallery, which, it is expected, will number at least 5,000 golfers, by Hon. Andrew Jackson Cummings. After that, all that can be said is that may the best pair win.

At a conference yesterday afternoon, when the final details were arranged, it was decided that members of the club who hold admission tickets costing $2 each, and who motor out to the club, must enter at the Cypress street entrance to the parking space, which will be at their disposal until it has been completely filled. Other motorists will park on Connecticut avenue or elsewhere under the direction of the detail of Maryland State police, who will be present in sufficient numbers to prevent congestion.

Match Benefit One for Bobb McWatt.

"In order to correct any misapprehension," said W. M. Kochenderfer, manager of the club, last evening, "it should be stated that the club disclaims any responsibility for this exhibition. We have simply loaned our grounds for a charitable object and all the rest is under the auspices of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association, which has planned a benefit for one of its number, Bob McWatt, who, many years ago, was the professional at the old Columbia Golf Club, but who has been incapacitated during the past two years by an automobile accident. We will, of course, look after the management of the gallery and for that purpose four captains have been appointed, all members of the club, each of whom will be assisted by twelve fellow members.

McWatt, who is the beneficiary of the exhibition, came to Washington yesterday from Hampton, Va., where he is now located, and, supported by his crutches, spent the afternoon at the Columbia Club renewing acquaintance with the older members who knew him when he was the club professional. McWatt, by the way, has a fine record in the World War and the story of his experience as told yesterday afternoon to a group of interested listeners in the grill room would fill a column.

Mrs. J. M. Haynes Leads Qualifiers.

Women members of the Congressional Country Club yesterday began their competition for the club championship, playing a qualification round of eighteen holes up. Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, who has held the title consecutively for every year since 1926, led a field of 21 players with a gross score of 87. Mrs. H. A. Knox finishing as runner-up with 92. As many of the women players desire to see the exhibition match this afternoon, the first round of match play will be played tomorrow with the following pairings:

First flight—Mrs. J. M. Haynes, 97, vs. Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, 95; Miss Virginia Williams, 94, vs. Mrs. Herbert Moffitt, 102; Mrs. S. P. Colladay, 94, vs. Mrs. M. E. Miller, 102; Mrs. H. A. Knox, 92, vs. Miss Evelyn Murphy, 102.

Second flight—Mrs. Henry J. Richardson vs. Mrs. Robert Jones; Mrs. William Bush vs. Mrs. C. B. Murphy; Mrs. J. B. Bayliss vs. bye; Mrs. Frank Yates vs. Mrs. B. Awalt.

The Middle Atlantic open tournament, which was to have been played yesterday and today on the course of the Woodholme Club, near Baltimore, has been postponed until October 9 and 10.

West's Golf-Women Add to Par Distances

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Women's Western Golf Association today took official cognizance of the increasing golfing ability of its members by increasing the distances for par. The change, which will mean a new computation of handicaps, will be effective next year.

The new order establishes par as follows for women: Par three, up to 200 yards; par four, 201 to 375 yards; par five, 375 yards and up. There will be no par six holes, except by special ruling.

30 Grid Candidates Out at Western High

A squad of 30 candidates, with here and there a familiar face, reported to Coach Dan Ahern at a pasture near Western High yesterday and was put through a light workout.

Coach Ahern's uppermost problem for the present is to uncover several huskies capable of taking the places of the linemen whom graduation has removed. Another inadvertent blow that Western's line has received is Ahern's decision to shift Tommy Webb, last year's guard, to the backfield.

Lieut. Neun New Coach Of Quantico Eleven

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Sept. 1.—Lieut. Neun, former Notre Dame football star, has been appointed as coach of the Quantico Marine Grid Team for the coming season. He was a star linesman with South Bend Eleven in 1927. A large squad has reported to him for practice. The Quantico Eleven has a tough schedule and hopes to again capture the service title.

Capt. E. M. Hall has been named as athletic officer of the Quantico Post. He succeeds Lieut. Johnny Fellers, who is now on active duty in Nicaragua. According to reports from Quantico, the Post Team and the All-Marines Eleven, under the direction of Tom Keady, at Philadelphia, will combine at the end of the season for a game against the Army champions for the President's Cup.

Schmeling Declared Champ by Boxing Body

Omaha, Nebr., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Formal recognition as heavyweight champion tonight was accorded Max Schmeling, of Germany, by the National Boxing Association in convention here.

The association, which has jurisdiction over boxing in about 30 States, listed Young Stribling, of Macon, Ga., as its choice for leading contender of the heavyweight division. Primo Carnera was accorded number 3 ranking.

Al Singer, of New York, who recently stopped Sammy Mandell, was recognized as lightweight title holder. All the other generally recognized champions were approved. The association voted to give Primo Carnera a clean bill of health and overthrew all and any suspensions against the giant Italian.

Mrs. Fraser, Medal Winner, in Canada

Laval Sur-Le-Lac, Quebec, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, Hewlett, N. Y., youngster, shot a fine 74 in the qualifying round of the Canadian women's open golf championship today but was forced to share the lead with the famous Ottawa star, Alexa Stirling Fraser.

Although sharing the honor of turning in the lowest score of the day, Miss Hicks, the defending champion, was forced to see the medal go to Mrs. Fraser. Under a special rule, in the event of a tie for eighteen holes and also for the last nine, the medal went to the player with the lowest total for the first five holes.

The strong United States contingent made an excellent showing in the qualifying round, placing 17 in the low 32 who qualified for the first round of match play tomorrow.

Texas League Flag Won by Fort Worth

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Fort Werth won the Texas League pennant today by defeating Wichita Falls, 3 to 2, in the fifth and deciding game of the play-off series. The victor will meet Memphis, Southern Association champion, in the first game of the Dixie series at Memphis Wednesday.

SOCCER LEAGUE MEETS.

Emerson Gridders In Action This Week

Irving Sanborn, major-domo of Emerson's imposing staff of grid coaches, is beginning to believe that the impending football season will witness an unprecedented group of stellar young gridmen carrying the colors of the institute.

Oblivious to the zooming tendencies of the mercury, Sanborn has been putting his charges through daily workouts at the Monument Grounds. Thirty men reported yesterday, but twenty more huskies will be skirmishing by the time registrations close.

Lewis, Cabell, Sutton, Casey, Montague and Payne, all of whom are veterans of many a local scholastic grid fracas, have weathered the summer well and appear fit to face the stern competition studding the Emerson schedule.

Sanborn takes his squad out to the National Training School Thursday afternoon for a practice tilt against the alleged incorrigibles. Friday at 2:30 he will further sharpen up his squad by encountering Episcopal High. This game will be played at the Monument Grounds.

BONETTI, C.U. BACK, OUT FOR YEAR

Suffers Concussion in Baseball Game in Home Town.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S football forces, none too strong from the beginning of training three weeks ago, received a blow yesterday when word was received from Ted Bonetti, sturdy junior half back, that he would be unable to return to school this year.

Bonetti, who is in his home town, Springfield, Mass., said that he recently had been injured in a baseball game, suffering concussion of the brain. While trying to score from third base, he was struck in the head by a baseball hit by the batter.

Bonetti Will Be Missed.

The loss of Bonetti especially weakens the Cardinal back field department, as he was one of the ballotoers on whom Coach Dutch Bergman was depending for valuable service this fall. As a sophomore last season, Bonetti served capably as a relief man.

With several of the players nursing minor ailments incurred in practice last week, Bergman yesterday sent them through only a light practice. He will not order scrimmaging until next week, he said, fearing that further injuries or aggravation of those already suffered will cripple the team for the first game, which is scheduled on September 27 with Boston College.

Costello, Improved, Lost to G. U. Team

Hillary Costello, promising sophomore quarter back, will in all probability be lost to the Georgetown University Football Team for the entire 1930 season as a result of illness that confines him at present to Georgetown University Hospital.

He was reported resting comfortably last night and in no danger. A further diagnosis of his illness will be made today.

In the daily practices at Point Lookout, Costello had been exhibiting fine form until taken ill Friday. The coaches had been expecting him to furnish lively competition for the regular quarter back position.

A's Receive 10 Sacks Of Series Requests

Philadelphia, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Philadelphia fans who want to see the champion Athletics play whatever National League team turns up at Shibe Park October 1 for the world's championship, began filing their applications for tickets today.

Under the conditions laid down by the club management, applications must reach the club today by mail and each applicant must take one or two tickets for each of three games, money to be refunded if a third game is not played in Philadelphia.

The first mail truck to drive up to Shibe Park today contained ten sacks of applications. More mail was being sorted in the North Philadelphia branch postoffice for delivery.

Those in charge of the ticket distribution said the applications this year probably would outnumber those of last year, despite the fact that it is not known which National League club will oppose the probable winners in the American League.

As soon as the first sacks of mail were received 50 men and girls were put to work sorting and checking the applications.

CHOICES WIN WARDMAN MATCHES

Mangan Drops 1 Set; Keiles-Morrison in Feature.

THE second annual Wardman Park tennis tourney moved into the third round yesterday with but few obstacles in the path of the seeded players on their march to the later rounds.

Only one match caused a little concern in the gallery. Tom Mangan, veteran District star, dropped the second set in his match against Muscoe Garnett, one of the many promising public courts netmen. But the Columbia ace quickly dissipated any hope the younger man may have had of scoring an upset. In the final set he poked his flat forehand drive deep into the corners of his young opponent's court, and was never threatened.

Keiles-Morrison Match Features.

As far as stirring tennis was concerned the best match of the day was the Keiles-Morrison battle, played yesterday morning before a scant, but appreciative, gallery. Morrison, who is one of the best young players in Washington, but who has not exhibited his wares here, quickly captured the first set from the invited Baltimore luminary. Keiles, however, eventually found his stride and finished strongly.

Mrs. Ruth Martinez stroked her way into the third round of the women's singles, with Mary Duffy as the stepping stone. Josephine Dunham, another prime favorite, captured the first set from Betty Whitfield at 6—2 and had piled up a lead of 3—0 in the second when darkness intervened. The match will be completed today. Miss Whitfield had gained the right to play Miss Dunham only after turning back Alice Rose at 4—6, 7—5, 6—2.

MEN'S SINGLES.

Second round—Seidel defeated Birch, 6—1, 6—1; Keiles defeated Morrison, 1—6, 6—0, 6—3; Considine defeated Haney, 6—4, 8—6; Sendel defeated Heiskell, 6—2, 6—1; Peck defeated Zamora, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4; Williams defeated Rutter, 6—4, 6—4; Judd defeated Love, 6—1, 6—1; O'Neill defeated Bradley, 6—1, 6—3.

Third round—Mitchell defeated Judd, 6—2, 6—3.

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

Second round—Mrs. Martinez defeated Mary Duffy, 6—0, 6—2; Betty Whitfield defeated Alice Rose, 4—6, 7—5, 6—2; Frances Walker defeated Dorrette Miller, 6—2, 6—0; Mary Ryan defeated Sarah Moore, 6—3, 6—3; Petty Keyser defeated Betty Cochran, 6—1, 8—6.

NATS TAKE BIG LEAD TO DEFEAT CHICAGO

the White Sox scored five runs to come within three tallies of a tie, was the winning pitcher. He yielded thirteen hits and nine runs in his seven innings on the mound, and Bob Burke, who succeeded him as the eighth began, was touched for two hits, which included a triple, but succeeded in turning the Comiskey hired men back scoreless.

A variety of pitching talent faced the pounding bats of the Nats, and off the four moundsmen who worked during the afternoon, Washington likewise got fifteen hits. One was a home run into the left-field stands, which Cronin made off Ed Walsh in the eighth with Manush on base, and two others were doubles by Judge and Manush.

Ted Lyons started for the Sox, but two infield errors and four hits allowed the Nats to get away to a five-run lead in the first inning. He followed this disastrous session with four hitless and scoreless innings, but weakened in the sixth when two more errors and three hits sent three more runs across the plate. Bill Wehde, a rookie right-hander, who recently reported from Dubuque, took his place and two more runs, for which Manush's double was responsible, scored before he finished the inning.

Dutch Henry, the veteran southpaw, pitched the seventh inning for the Sox, and three more hits brought two more runs to the winners. Ed Walsh finished the game, the Nats scoring two runs off three hits in the eighth, and getting a single hit in the ninth which proved fruitless.

Sox Start Whittling Down Nats' Lead.

With Jones fairly effective in the early innings the Sox were a long time in getting into the running. They got two tallies off three hits in the third and two more off three hits in the sixth. Four hits and two errors gave them five in the seventh and cut Washington's lead to 12 to 9, but after the left-handed Burke had taken the hill in the eighth they got one hit an inning and were not able to add to their total of runs.

The Nats sent ten men to the plate in the first inning. Myer starting the offensive as first man up, when he was safe at first on Watwood's error. Rice singled to send him to third and Manush sent a roller to shortstop. Appling made a bad throw to second in an effort to catch Rice and Manush and Rice were both safe, Myer scoring. Cronin forced Manush as Rice scored and Judge walked before Harris fanned. Hayes singled to center to score Cronin and to send Judge to second, and Spencer's single to right field scored Judge and sent Hayes to third. Jones singled over third base to score Hayes and on the next play Myer forced him.

Nats Add Five More In Sixth.

After going down in order for the next four innings the Nats got five more runs in the sixth inning. Judge opened the inning with a double to center field, and went to third when Harris beat out an infield roller. Harris stole second and Hayes was safe at first when Appling muffed his grounder. Kamm made a wild throw to first on Spencer's roller, Judge scoring and the other two runners moving up a base. Jones sent a single over second base that scored both Harris and Hayes and sent Spencer to second. Lyons was relieved by Wehde and Myer flied out. Wehde took Rice's roller and retired Spencer at the plate, but Manush slapped a double down the right field foul line that scored Jones and Rice. Judge, Harris and Hayes all singled as Henry came to the hill in the seventh, and with the bases full, Henry walked Jones to force Judge in with another run. Harris scored after the catch on Myer's fly to center field.

Little Chance for Victory Is Admitted by Sir Thomas

By ED NEIL.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Sir Thomas Lipton sat tonight in the cabin of his steam yacht Erin terribly disappointed at the second defeat of the green Shamrock V, pride of his declining years, in his 31-year quest of the America's Cup. He says bravely, however, that the series for the battered old mug is not over yet, but he feels, like all who saw Enterprise win today's race, that he has little chance of success.

His ship has sailed two races in the light airs that were supposed to be her favorites and has lost both, the second by an overwhelming margin. Sir Thomas had even experimented with the trim sloop to the extent of removing almost a ton of lead from her ballast overnight so that she might point higher and perhaps foot better in the light breezes prevailing.

"I'm terribly disappointed," he said as he leaned back in an easy chair in his cabin, worn with the strain of the day and the weight of his 81 years. "I thought she'd do better than that. The Shamrock won't be beaten as badly again as that in this series," he added proudly, "and you must remember that the series isn't over yet. There will be more changes. She's not the boat she was when we raced in England; she's nowhere near as fast, but I have no alibi, no excuse. The weather has been just what we wanted. Heavier wind would not help her.

"Something very unusual seems to have happened to her. She seems dead under her sails. It might have been the trip over."

"I'll have to do something," he concluded, regaining his customary jovial spirit. "Maybe I'll put a crew of girls on there to run her tomorrow."

Greenville Win Today To Clinch Sally Title

Macon, Ga., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Greenville (S. C.) Spinners clouted twelve hits off three Macon hurlers here today, which combined with three Peach errors and slow fielding gave them the fifth game of the Sally play-off series, 6-3. The Spinners now have won 3 and the Peaches 2 games.

A win by Greenvile tomorrow would clinch the pennant. However, if Mason wins, the two clubs meet here again Wednesday for the deciding contest. An agreement was made this morning between managers of the two teams to keep the remaining games here on the condition that Greenville play Young, Columbia shortstop during the last season, in the place of Jay Boggs, regular Spinner short fielder.

Half-Million Profit For Arlington Meet

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Arlington Park Race Track earned a profit in excess of half a million dollars for its 30-day meeting this season.

Total receipts were $1,688,164 and the net profit was $520,475. Arlington Park is a non-profit making track, and the money will go back to the track in improvements for next year.

Infected Finger Kills Dempsey Ex-Manager

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—John J. Reisler, known in sporting circles as "John the Barber," manager of Jack Dempsey before he became heavyweight boxing champion, died in a hospital today of an infection caused by an ingrown hair on a finger.

At his deathbed were his wife, four sons and two daughters. He had been in the hospital three weeks. Funeral services will be held in Brooklyn Wednesday.

Reisler came into the public eye through his long litigation over the management of Dempsey after Dempsey won the championship. He contested the right of Jack Kearns to managed Dempsey, claiming a prior contract.

Reisler was barber by trade. He conducted an elaborate shop in the West Forties, a remodeled theater, where the manicurists, billed as "former Follies beauties," would break into a tap dance for the customers if the tip was sufficient.

U. S. TWINS BALKED BY CHANNEL

DOVER, England, Sept. 15 (A.P.), Bernice and Phyllis Zittenfield, the American girl swimmer twins, failed this evening in their attempt to swim the English Channel, though nearly reaching the French coast.

Coldness of the channel water, which a sharp wind made increasingly rougher, obliged the girls to abandon their swim within 4 or 5 miles of Cape Gris Nez. They climbed into their accompanying motorboat at 7:22 p. m. and returned to Dover.

Their gallant effort won the admiration of the people of Dover, who now consider themselves connoisseurs of channel swims. Since the channel was choppy, every one admitted conditions were far from ideal.

Twins in Water For 12½ Hours.

The twins, who are 15 years old, entered the water at South Foreland near Dover, at 6:50 a. m. They swam for a little more than 12½ hours.

They wanted to keep on, though numbed by cold, but Jack Burville, their pilot, said it would require another five or six hours of swimming to reach the French Coast and urged them to give up.

It was emphasized that the coldness of the water, and not failing strength, defeated the twins. They were still quite fresh on leaving the water. On arrival at Dover they walked home to their lodgings.

The twins will not try the channel swim again. Their mother, who was aboard the motor boat all during the trip, said they were going back to America without another attempt.

Jack Dempsey Acquires Grinning Negro Servant

Thomasville, Ga., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey today realized another ambition—he hired a grinning, amiable Georgia Negro as his personal man servant.

Ever since his bank account would allow it he has wanted one, he said, and henceforth, wherever Mr. Dempsey goes he will have with him "John Ross, suh, of Thomasville, Gawgia."

The former heavyweight champion came here today with W. L. Stribling, jr., who has been his host for a short visit to the Stribling farm near here.

Three Rookies Bought By Shotton's Phils

Philadelphia, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia National League Club today announced the purchase of Howard Wiltse, of the Wichita Falls Club of the Texas League. Wiltse was obtained from the Milwaukee Club of the American Association, which had acquired title to his services after the completion of the Texas League season.

The Phillies also have purchased Pitcher Lil Stoner and second Baseman Leo Mallon from the Fort Worth Club.

FRISCH RATED BEST OF SECOND SACKERS

.974 surpass any of their National League rivals, although neither of them has accepted as many chances as Critz. At the plate, Myer's average is 56 points higher than Bishop's, yet many smart baseball men regard Bishop as Buddy's superior offensively. The reason is simply that Bishop's chief value does not show in the averages. Max's keen eye makes him the hardest man in the league to pitch to, and each year he draws more bases on balls than any man in the league, with the exception of Babe Ruth.

Both Myer and Bishop are lead-off men. The function of the man at the top of any batting order is first to get on the bases, and then get around, and the lead-off man's value to his team is measured accordingly. Now, Myer has made 150 hits against but 104 for Bishop this year, yet Bishop has scored 105 runs, which is 18 more than Myer has counted. The answer lies in Bishop's ability to draw passes.

Bishop is a clever player, and he will give any rival, with the possible exception of Hornsby, a stiff battle for world's series honors around the keystone sack.

STOCK PRICES LOSE IN QUIET TURNOVER

WHEAT, CORN AGAIN SAG

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Persistent heaviness of the grains, combined with a few other news items subject to unfavorable interpretation in speculative quarters, played into the hands of the bears on the stock market today and prices declined in quiet trading.

The selling, in evidence from the opening, came from professional sources and, although net losses ranged from 1 to 3 points in the important shares, Wall street was probably as much interested in the yacht race as in the course of quotations. Most of the losses had developed by midday, at which time the shorts began to encounter increasing difficulty. There was some short covering in the late afternoon, but final prices were mostly around the lowest. Sales in the last 50 minutes amount to less than 250,000 shares and the total volume to 1,562,000.

One of the outstanding developments in the day's markets was the break in September wheat to 79⅛ cents, the lowest since 1914. A large increase in the visible supply, as well as favorable weather reports from the Southwest, were factors in the selling at Chicago, and, although the grain showed some recovery from the bottom, closing prices on the various futures were ¼ to ½ cent net lower. Corn sagged ⅛ to ⅜, reflecting a poor cash demand. Cotton finished 3 points lower to 2 points higher, an extremely moderate range.

European Boards Weak.

Some of the early selling on the stock market may have been due to apprehensions over the political situation in Germany, although little if any liquidation was reported to have come from abroad. However, some of the European boards were weak, especially the Berlin Boerse, and holders of the short position here, casting about for clouds on the horizon, doubtless capitalized the German election results.

The fact that stocks, in making their recovery Saturday, had been unable to regain last Friday's losses was also brought forward as a bearish argument. Of more importance was the uneasiness of copper, for one customer smelter cut to 10½ cents, a quarter-cent below recent levels. Prominent producers were also said to be willing to take 10¾ cents, likewise a concession of one-fourth cent. Sales were small at the lower price. Wall street has heard that the copper people expected an improvement in their industry.

One prominent banker-economist whose views attract the financial community's attention said he saw evidence that a turn in business was in the making, pointing to the strength of bonds and the apparent arrest of the decline in commodity prices as among the significant indices. Other commentators were of the opinion that while conditions were doubtless improving, it would be well to see whether the gains were more than seasonal.

Call Money at 1¼ Per Cent.

The usual quarterly combination of the Treasury financing and the income tax payments found banking circles prepared for the turnover of considerably more than a billion dollars. The Treasury's overdraft at the Federal Reserve was estimated at around $225,000,000, but the Central Bank was understood to have sold participations in this accommodation to large banks having surpluses at the Federal. Call money eased to 2 per cent and funds were available in the outside market at 1¼.

Utility, merchandising shares and steel shares, as well as the coppers and specialties, led the decline on the stock exchange. United States Steel sold 6 points under the high for the recovery of a week ago, closing off 2⅜. American Can lost 3 points net. General Electric, Kennecott, American Smelting, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone, Radio, International Harvester, Vanadium, Auburn Auto, Woolworth and Johns-Manville yielded 1 to 2. Autostrop Safety Razor rallied 5 points on revival of the Gillette merger rumor and closed 3⅛ higher. Warner Bros. Pictures closed strong, more than a point higher.

Foreign exchanges were irregular, featured by further heaviness of sterling and by easiness of the German mark.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Advances from rather an irregular opening in cotton here today was attributed to covering and trade buying. But after selling up from 11.02 to 11.18, or about 15 or 16 points net higher, the market eased off again under realizing and Southern selling. New December sold back to about the opening price, closing at 11.03, with the general market closing barely steady net 3 points lower to 2 points higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 2 points. There was some further liquidation of near months particularly in the old style contracts, but offerings were light and quite readily absorbed by trade buying and covering. The latter was promoted by steady Liverpool cables and the failure of Southern hedge selling to develop in larger volume and after the initial offerings had been absorbed, the market became very steady.

New October sold up from 10.85 to 11.00 and March from 11.26 to 11.40 during the middle of the day. The demand seemed to taper off at these figures however, and the market eased later under liquidation or reselling by early buyers and some increase in the offerings from the South. Prices sold back to about the early lows and the close was within a point or two of the lowest for the day on most positions. Old style October and December contracts were again relatively easy showing net losses of 1 to 3 points while other positions were net unchanged to 2 points higher.

Some of the afternoon selling may have been due to the easier showing of the wheat market but prices held fairly steady until Southern selling increased in the later trading. There were rumors of trade buying orders in the market for execution at around the 11-cent level for new December contracts, and there appeared to be a little more buying as prices approached that figure on the late decline.

The factor chiefly discussed in connection with the day's fluctuations, however, was the comparative absence of Southern selling during the early trading and the increased offerings from that source in the afternoon.

Liverpool cables said that hedging and liquidation there had been absorbed by Continental buying and reported a broadening demand for cloths and yarns. Exports today 44,135 making 702,400 so far this season. Port receipts 72,979. United States port stocks, 2,189,795.

GERMAN BONDS SINK WHEN HEAVILY SOLD

FEW RAIL ISSUES RISE

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Uncertainty over the political situation in Germany following the general election brought a wave of selling of dollar bonds of the republic and industrials on the New York Stock Exchange today.

The new German international 5½s were the most heavily traded issue, reacting 1⅞ to reach the lowest quoted price since it appeared, and German 7s sagged to a new year's low. Agricultural bank bonds and several industrial bonds moved a point or more lower.

Despite the reduction of call money rates to 2 per cent the volume of business was the smallest in several weeks and changes were narrow, with the preponderance on the up side. The brightest spot in the domestic section was United States Governments. Buying interest centered in Treasury issues, and Treasury 4¼s, 4s and 3⅜s made the best gains.

Some observers were inclined to attribute the slackening in business—the total volume of sales was $6,936,000—to the large volume of new offerings last week. Today's new issues approximated $5,000,000, with two offerings for tomorrow totaling $22,500,000. Consumers Power Co. is offering $20,000,000 4½ per cent mortgage bonds, and Twin States Natural Gas Co. will issue $2,500,000 6 per cent convertible debentures.

A few railroad and utility bonds profited from a good demand. Brooklyn-Manhattan 6s, St. Paul 4¾s, and United Drug of Delaware 5s were the most active domestic bonds. The St. Paul issue reached a new high for the year on a gain of 1½, and a similar advance was registered by Erie 5s of 1967.

Small changes occurred in the stock privilege group, buying being centered in several railroad convertibles.

In addition to the sharp reaction that developed in German bonds, some of the South American issues worked lower. Several Chilean, Brazilian and Colombian municipal and industrial issues sagged. Further recovery was made by Argentine, Peruvian and Uruguayan issues. In the European section, French 7s and British 5½s duplicated their recent year's highs and closed firm.

The first public offering of certificates of Independent Trust Shares, a fixed investment trust, will be made today by Church, Wooten & Co., Inc., and Southern Investment Dealers, of this city, it was announced yesterday.

The portfolio of the trust is composed of stocks of a large number of well-known utilities, industrials, rails and oils, all of which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange or the New York Curb Exchange. Also bank and insurance company stocks either listed on one of the above or other exchanges or having an active "over the counter" market.

The annual open meeting of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking will take place tonight at the New Willard Hotel. About 900 are expected to attend. The principal speaker will be Paul B Detwiler, assistant cashier of the Philadelphia National Bank and a former president of the American Institute of Banking. A number of certificates and other prizes will be awarded.

Curb Review

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Active curb stocks lost ground today as sentiment appeared to be overwhelmingly on the selling side. Practically the whole list was affected. About two dozen of the most active stocks yielded a point or more. Among the different groups, utilities were most uniformly weak, although their losses were overshadowed by some of the industrials. Trading was in small blocks of stocks principally, and the day's transactions totaled 335,600 shares.

The weight of offerings carried stocks down to their lowest point around noon. A feeble attempt was made during the afternoon to force a change of trend, and new stocks made an about face to regain some ground and closed above the day's low but the general list failed to respond.

Technicolor, off 3⅛, United States Foil B, and Diamond Match were among the industrials which closed at the year's lowest figures. Missouri Kansas Pipe Line was under pressure until late afternoon, touching new low ground for 1930 but turned upward near the close, finishing ⅞ lower. Driver Harris yielded 3¾ on a small turnover, and Aluminum of America, American Laundry Machine, Safeway Stores about 3 points each.

Electric Bond & Share, which was well supported around 82 throughout most of last week, led the decline of utilities, breaking to 80¾ during the forenoon and finishing at 81¼, off 1⅞. American & Foreign Power, American Gas & Electric, United Light & Power A, and Central Public Service closed about 1 point lower. Short covering operations carried Duke Power up 5 points on a small turnover. American Superpower and Niagara Hudson were steady.

Petroleum issues were little affected by the bearish activity. Standard Oil of Ohio reappeared in trading to rise 1 point, while other Standard issues held firm. Vacuum was firmly active and finished ¼ lower. Humble reached 1⅛. Cities Service fluctuated narrowly and closed steady Goldman Sachs was the weak spot in the investment and holding companies group, selling off 1 point. Underleider Financial Corporation moved against the trend, to gain ⅝. Others in the group were little changed.

CLAIRVOYANT
THE MAN WHO KNOWS
608
Over Woolworth's
5c & 10c Store

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been. Just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

Over Woolworth's 5c & 10c Store

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful powers.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay

LAUNDRYMAN RUNS WILD WITH PISTOL; SHOOTS UP STREET

PASSERBYS MOVE FAST WHEN SHOTS RING OUT

Trio of Policemen Subdues Lone Warriors, Who Is Held for Drunkness.

Maybe it was the heat and maybe it was snake-blood whisky, which is the police theory, but anyway Charles Jong, 44-year-old laundryman, ran amuck yesterday near his shop at 1333 Fourteenth street and proceeded to shoot up the place in the best wild Western fashion.

Rushing from his laundry shop brandishing an automatic revolver, the Oriental inaugurated a brief reign of terror as he dashed through the street firing his pistol until he ended his wild escapade at Thomas fied heletr-skelter and were continuing to give a wide berth to Jong as Detective C. E. Strange and Policemen Charles Tucker and Oliver Van Orman arrived at the scene in response to more than a dozen frenzed telephone calls for help.

Advancing from different directions, the three policemen quickly overpowered the Celestial and tore the pistol from his grasp. In view of the heavily traveled area in which the man ran amuck, the fact that no person was struck by bullets was regarded as almost a miracle.

FIREMEN'S OXYGEN FAILS TO SAVE MAN

TENT ERECTED OVER BED

Replenished supplies of oxygen yesterday failed to save the life of Nathaniel Tuttle, 38 years old, salesman, of 2737 Devonshire place northwest, who died of double pneumonia at Georgetown University Hospital. The man had been receiving treatment since Friday.

Sunday attendants noticed that the supply of oxygen was low, and applied to the Fire Rescue Squad for more, commercial sources of supply being closed. The squad furnished an amount sufficient to keep the man alive until yesterday.

This is the second time within two weeks that the Fire Rescue Squad has been called upon to furnish oxygen or oxygen applicators, and both times fate has been against them. Last week little Shirley Carlton, of Takoma Park, Md., died after firemen had tried for more than sixteen hours to induce natural breathing, in place of the artificial respiration which they were applying. The apparatus for supplying oxygen in Tuttle's case was owned by the hospital.

According to his prysicians, Dr. M. J. Keane and Dr. Matthew E. Donahue, Tuttle was given the oxygen while occupying a tent erected over his bed in the hospital, in which his chances for surviving had been regarded as enhanced.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two children by a former marriage, Nathaniel, jr., and Elizabeth; a brother, J. H. Tuttle, of Philadelphia, and three sisters, Mrs. J. H. Daley, of Belmont, Mass; Mrs. W. W. Mott, of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Mrs. E. E. Reed, of New York City.

BREEZES ALSO TO COME

Cooler weather to be accompanied by thundershowers is forecast for Washington today after the hottest day of the month, which registered 97 degrees at 4 o'clock, was recorded yesterday at the Weather Bureau.

The relief today in the form of showers will be also aided by cooling southerly and southeasterly breezes. Unofficially the highest reading for yesterday was at the kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue, where the indicator reached 102 degrees at 4 o'clock.

At the kiosk 78 degrees were indicated at 8 o'clock, with 88, 94, 98, 102 and 100 registered at 10, 12, 2, 4, and 5 o'clock, respectively.

The heat was felt more early in the day when the cups on the anemometer at the Weather Bureau were motionless for the lack of breeze. In the early afternoon, however, a cooling breeze swept in from the southeast to fan the sultry city.

Utilities Commission Studies Taxicab Rates

New regulations to govern taxicab operations were considered briefly by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday but no decision was reached. It is possible that something may be done in the next few days but just what will be done has not been worked out, it was said.

The commission is to hold a public hearing Wednesday on the new gas rate schedules submitted by the Washington Gas Light Co. This new schedule of rates is designed to increase consumption and thereby make up, company officers said, the money they will lose because of the lower rates. Several objections are expected to be raised at the hearing, one point listed being the proposal to establish a minimum monthly charge.

Daily O'Currences

—By JOHN DALY—

NO sign of the stolen car, Luella had to ride in street cars and taxis.

"I'm all worn out," she said, after a hard day's shopping. "What we'll have to do is get a new car——"

"What're we gon-a buy it with, coupons?"

"Oh, that——"

"Certainly that! Whatd'y think?"

"Haven't thought about it. So far as I'm concerned, we can do without a car. Too many of 'em on the streets now!"

She squelched me: "If we haven't a car, how're we gon-a take trips?"

"We had a car, but we didn't take that last trip—the fishing trip."

* * * *

EVEN the thought of it broke her heart: "And my umbrella's gone, too," she sighed.

"And my fishin' tackle."

"Well," she said, cheering up, "the only thing to do is get the money from the insurance company and——"

"And what?"

"Buy a new car."

Always somebody is taking the joy out of life—and here was another d-ath bomb: "Even if we do get the money," I explained, "it'll be 60 days——"

"What'd'y mean, sixty days?"

"No, a clause. It states that 60 days must elause——"

"What for?"

"So the company can make sure the car's stolen."

"But it is stolen——"

"We think it is, but——"

"We think it is? We know it is!"

"Oh, well, that's the law."

"The law? What kind of a country is this?"

"It may have its shortcomings, but it's a pretty good country after all."

* * * *

"I DON'T think so," she snapped. "Here we are, peaceful citizens, leaving our car outside our own door, and somebody comes and walks away with it——"

"They rode away with it, Luella."

"Whatever they did, it's a terrible commentary on our country—and something ought-a be done about it."

"Something will be done about it, dearie!"

"What?"

"Search me. We'll have to watch and wait."

POLICE ARE RAPPED BY JUSTICE COX IN WARRANTLESS RAID

Court Declares It Can Not Believe Story Told by Letterman.

CONSENT TO SEARCH PREMISES NOT GIVEN

Motion to Suppress Evidence Granted in Favor of Noccolino.

Holding that police who enter a private home without a warrant are doing so illegally, Justice Joseph W. Cox, in District Supreme Court, yesterday granted a motion to suppress evidence against Frank Noccolino, of 1211 Otis place northwest, who, with Jesse Noccolino and Nellie Pittore, was under indictment charged with violating the national prohibition act.

Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman, Richard Cox, George McCarron and James A. Mostyn, who raided the premises, testified that occupants of the premises had permitted them to make search and seizure. This testimony was contradicted by Noccolino and the other defendants, and after hearing all of it Justice Cox ruled that the police were in the wrong.

The justice in effect declared he disbelieved the testimony of the policemen, for he stated, "After hearing the testimony I do not think there was any consent given to the raiding officers."

Raid Made in 1929.

Lieut. Letterman and his men made the raid May 13, 1929. He and members of his squad testified that they had no warrant, but that he had been invited into the place.

The defendants, however, testified that no invitation had been extended to the police, and one of them—Jessie Noccolino—declared that Letterman and his men had stated that they were policemen when she opened the door, but that they waited for no invitation to enter. Instead, the woman asserted, Letterman and his men shoved her aside and pushed their way in. A 300-gallon still was found in the place, it was revealed.

Noccolino, in his petition to suppress evidence, declared through his attorneys that his home had been illegally entered and his property unlawfully seized. He declared that entry made by the police was against his will and over his objection.

Letterman Was Sergeant.

The raid was made during the period when Letterman was sergeant of the vice squad. During that period he also made another illegal raid which was thrown out by Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, when presented in Police Court.

As a result of that raid Letterman was tried on a charge of illegal entry but was acquitted when Judge Isaac R. Hitt, of Police Court, held that the police had probable cause to believe the law was being violated since they had sensed such a thing through their olfactory organs.

Letterman in his affidavit made in the Noccolino case and in his testimony also declared he had been prompted by his sense of smell.

Delivery Boy Victim Of Old Change Fraud

The old change trick, which has been enjoying such popularity in Washington recently, netted $5 and toilet articles worth another dollar yesterday when practiced on a delivery boy for the drug store at 724 East Capitol street.

The boy, in response to a telephoned order, went to a house on East Capitol street, near Sixth street, with the articles and change. He was met by the customary man who told the boy to wait while he went into the house for money. He did not reappear, having left the house by the back door. Henry E. Miner, proprietor of the drug store, reported the occurrence to police.

28 Week-End Speeders Are Assessed in Court

Twenty-eight cases of speeding, all originating in the vicinity of the Twelfth precinct on Saturday night, were tried in Traffic Court yesterday morning and a conviction and fine resulted in each case. The arrests were made by Private Raymond V. Sinclair, of the Traffic Bureau.

Fines ranged from $5 to $15. The cases were tried before Justice Isaac R. Hitt. As the policeman arrested each man he was released to meet the officer later and all were booked at one time at the Traffic Bureau, filling nearly a full page of the blotter.

Boy Held as Housebreaker.

Floyd Robinson, 16-year-old Negro, who escaped from the National Training School for Boys last June, was arrested yesterday at his home on Irving street near Thirteenth northwest by Policeman E. L. Dalstron, of the Tenth Precinct. The boy is said to have confessed participation in a number of housebreakings committed in recent weeks.

POLICE UNIFICATION OF LIQUOR RAIDERS DETAILED TO HEADS

McGinness Named Lieutenant and Winfree Promoted to Sergeant.

The reasons for the new unified administration and direction of the liquor and vice squads were explained yesterday in a conference of squad members, precinct captains and inspectors in the office of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police. Captains were told that the new regime does not mean that they can slacken in their supervision of their sections, but that all raiding will be under one head. The liquor men who have hitherto been attached to the precincts are now members of the squad, under Inspector Thaddeus R. Bean.

It is understood that recently the various enforcement agencies have been unintentionally working at cross-purposes. A precinct man and one of the squads might both be observing the actions of a suspected lawbreaker, and one would raid while the other might be still pursuing an investigation which would involve more persons than those primarily concerned in the unlawful action.

Under the new dispensation the precinct commanders will report all suspected violation of the liquor and vice laws to Inspector Bean, who will have entire charge of the investigation.

It is hoped that the new plan will also improve the quality of evidence submitted to the courts which will result in more convictions.

After 36 years in the Police Department, Capt. Charles T. Peck of the Eleventh Precinct yesterday turned the command over to his successor, Capt. William E. Holmes, and retired. He has a retirement salary of $150 per month.

Capt. Peck's retirement resulted in three promotions. Capt. Holmes was promoted from lieutenant in the Third Precinct; Sergt. John W. McGinness, of the Tenth Precinct, was made lieutenant and moved to the Third to fill Holmes' place; and Private Archie W. Winfree of the Twelfth was made sergeant in McGinness' place which he vacated in the Tenth Precinct. All these changes were made effective yesterday morning, when Capt. Peck retired.

Three From City Injured in Crash

Mrs. Albert O. Stearns Reported to Have Received Broken Neck in Mishap.

Three members of a Washington family were hurt, one critically, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed Sunday near Philadelphia, Pa.

They included Albert O. Stearns, of 211 Webster street northwest, an electrician connected with the District Building for the last twenty years; his wife, who was said to have received a broken neck, and their daughter, a Mrs. Klock, whose husband is an electrician at the Capitol. The only other member of their party, Albert Stearns, jr., was reported as unhurt.

With Mr. and Mrs. Stearns in one machine and their two children occupying another car, they left Washington Friday for a week-end visit in Pennsylvania, and were believed to have been returning to this city when the accident occurred. Details were meager and the reports of the accident failed to state the extent of the injuries or to what hospital they had been removed.

Shakespearean Library Walls Are Completed

With occupancy expected for next year, the Henry Clay Folger Memorial Library of Shakespearean and Elizabethan Literature has assumed a stage of partial completion with the completion of the exterior walls at its imposing site on Capitol Hill just back of the Library of Congress.

The $1,500,000 structure, the gift of the late Henry Clay Folger, former president of the Standard Oil Co. of New York, will house his Shakespearean collection of some 20,000 volumes, and his all-Elizabethan collection of almost 75,000 volumes, declared to be the finest of its kind in this country and one of the most valued private libraries in the world.

Plumber's Tools Are Stolen.

Two cmoplete sets of plumber's tools were stolen from the cellar of a house at 1512 Forty-fuorth street northwest, since Saturday, two workmen told police yesterday. The men who lost their implements were Roy Johnson, of Hyattsville, Md., and Eddie Adcock, of Takoma Park, Md. Each set was worth $35, they said.

NEW YORK AVENUE GRADING JOB IS LET

25c Cents a Cubic Yard Is Lowest of 12 Offers; Total Cost $25,000.

WILL OPEN NEW ARTERY

Contract for the grading of New York avenue from West Virginia avenue to Bladensburg road northwest was awarded yesterday to Latimer & Maloney Co. The firm bid 25 cents a cubic yard of earth removed, which was the lowest of twelve bids. The other offers ranged up to 55 cents a cubic yard.

The 25 cents unit price will make the job cost the District about $25,000, highways department estimated. There had been set aside $40,000 out of the gasoline tax street improvement fund for the opening of the new stretch of New York avenue, and the low price at which the work will be done will mean that $15,000 will be available for additional street improvement work.

Grading of the stretch of New York avenue is a part of a plan to open the avenue to the District line, although this will not be done at once. Grading and improvement of the avenue between West Virginia avenue and Bladensburg avenue, however, will open an important cross-town highway for which the need is increasing rapidly, highway officials said.

Funeral Benefit Is Object of Suit

Woman Explains in Action That $500 Estate Is Due Her.

Alleging that she will suffer irreparable damage if $500 funeral benefits on the life of William L. Lester, who died June 11, 1930, are paid to Hettie M. Lester, of Richmond, Va., Emmo O. Lester, of 436 New Jersey avenue southeast, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking an injunction to restrain the payment.

Hettie M. Lester, T. Hume Henry, of 315 Rock Creek road northwest, and Old Glory Council, No. 24, Junior Order United American Mechanics, are named as defendants. The plaintiff states that Mr. Lester died without making a will and that she is one of his heirs at law. She also explains that the order through Mr. Hume, the secretary, to pay to Hettie M. Lester the sum is because of the fact that Mr. Lester in 1911 directed that she be the beneficiary.

The plaintiff states that Mr. Lester owed her considerable money and unless she receives the $500 she will never be able to recover anything from his estate, sinc ehe left nothing. The money due her she sets out is for funeral expenses and other items incidental to his last illness. Attorney Emmett L Sheehan appears for the plaintiff.

DETECTIVES ASSIST DESTITUE FAMILY

TICKET, FOOD DONATED

A father and his three small children yesterday boarded a train in the Union Station firm in the belief that Washington's policemen are about as sympathetic and as helpful as any group of men can be.

The quartet landed here penniless, hungry, and without a place to sleep. They had no way of getting any money for the folks back home in West Virginia have been hard hit by the drought and have barely enough for themselves.

The father, Joseph Day, of Philipi, W. Va., was the victim of a pickpocket on the train between here and Baltimore. The result was that his two daughters, Rose, 13, and Evelyn, 2, and his son, George, 10, couldn't get anything to eat.

Mr. Day informed a policeman of his plight and the children were sent to the House of Detention, where they were fed. In the meantime, the father roamed the streets, seking a way out of his dilemma.

Last night his story became generally known at headquarters and detectives there took up a collection. They bought him a ticket home and gave him spending money. At home his wife and a month-old baby girl await their return.

Community Chest Aid Seen in New System

Further economies in administration work of the Community Chest are expected to follow the recent installation of a new accounting system, donated by the accounting firm of Councilor & Buchanan. Under the new system acknowledgements of pledges to the chest and the entire year's set of statements to contributors will be made out at one time.

Along with this procedure is a plan for analyzing all pledges received day by day during the campaign, both as to results secured by each team and also as to their distribution by number and amount, according to the size of the donation. The latter task has heretofore been performed some months after the campaign was over, and has taken considerable time.

WOMAN, 65, TAKES LIFE BY USING GAS; MAN ALSO SUICIDE

ATTEMPTS OF SQUAD AT REVIVAL FUTILE

Another Discovered Dead; Apparently Without Relatives in City.

Mrs. Pearl Spivock, 65 years old, of Delafield place northwest near Eighth street, yesterday committed suicide when she opened two gas jets on a kitchenette stove at that address and calmly sat down to await the end.

She was found by Maxwell Sherman, 21, when he returned to the residence for lunch at noon. He detected the odor of escaping gas, he told police, and when he investigated, found Mrs. Spivock in a kitchenette on the second floor which was used by Sherman and his wife, Mrs. Ida Sherman, stepdaughter of Mrs. Spivock.

Rescue Squad No. 1 and Emergency Hospital ambulance were called, and they worked for more than an hour trying to revive the woman, but, according to Dr. R. W. Cozby, Emergency physician, she had been dead for more than an hour when she was found, and their work proved useless.

Reason Is Unexplained.

No reason for the act could be given by neighbors of the family, although they stated that Mrs. Spivock was very nervous, and had been complaining of headaches recently. She had arranged to accompany her daughter-in-law on a shopping trip yesterday morning, but at the last minute canceled the arrangements and the daughter went alone.

The dead woman's husband, Morris Spivock, who is connected with the Capital Fur Co., at 1208 G street northwest, was called and reached the home shortly after the body was discovered. He also was unable to assign a reason for the act.

Had Seven Children.

Survivors of the dead woman, in addition to her husband, include four daughters, Mrs. Anne Shapiro, Mrs. Beatrice Weiss, Mrs. Rose Kneifel and Mrs. Clara Berger; three sons, Jack, Michael and Louis Stein and five stepchildren.

Fred Turner, 55, of 1201 Twentieth street northwest, was found dead in a gas-filled room at that address late yesterday afetrnoon. Acting Coroner Joseph D. Rogers issued a certificate of suicide.

The Fire Rescue Squad responded, but was unable to revive the man, who apparently had no relatives in this city. The body was removed to Friend's undertaking establishment.

Representative Stedman Lingers at Death's Door

No change has been noted during the last 24 hours in the condition of Maj. Charles M. Stedman, sole surviving Civil War veteran in Congress, where since 1911 he has represented the Fifth North Carolina District in the House of Representatives.

Physicians at Mount Alto Hospital, where the 89-year-old legislator has been confined since suffering a stroke of apoplexy a week ago today, in making the announcement last night reiterated their belief that his death may be expected soon.

Traffic Policeman Unites Aged Couple Lost in Capital

Mrs. Samuel Hollingsworth and Husband, Separated in F Street Movie Crowd, Wanders Four Hours Till Rescued at Fourteenth and the Avenue.

In recent years trips to the teeming business section of Washington have been rare experiences in the life of Mrs. Samuel Hollingshead, of 106 Rosemary street, Chevy Chase.

Bewildered by throngs that crowded F street at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Hollingshead, who is 80 years old, became separated from her husband as they came out of a movie theater and found herself alone on Fourteenth street at the District Building.

Not realizing that it was any more serious a case than that of an aged woman frightened by traffic, Policeman Johnson left his post and crossed to the sidewalk to help the woman across the street. She was so terrified that she was almost inarticulate. It was then nearly 8 o'clock and Mrs. Hollingshead had been lost for almost four hours.

The policeman took the woman to a nearby drugstore, where he questioned her and, after learning her address, telephoned to relatives, who came and took her home where she was found by her husband.
